Their best wedding gift, end to strike

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Neither Bloomingdales nor Filenes has this wedding present in stock.

Yet for Susan Catino and William Birse, who are to be wed at St. Josephs Church in Waltham on Oct. 4, an end to the now 28-day-old air traffic controllers strike would be the best present either of them could unwrap.

You see, both Catino, a 1973 graduate of Newton North, and Birse are air traffic controllers. Since the job action by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) on Aug. 3, premarital chores have taken a backseat to walking picket lines.

"It sure would be a nice wedding present," said Catino, who earned $23,000 a year as a controller at Barnstable Municipal Airport in Hyannis. "Being only a month away from the wedding doesn't help either financially or future wise."

However, neither Catino nor Birse feel that the current conditions for controllers warrants a return to work. Despite PATCO's "illegal walkout," and the subsequent firing of all air traffic controllers by President Ronald Reagan, the couple believes PATCO had no choice but to strike.

"They don't really listen to our gripes," said Birse about the FAA. "The relations between labor and the FAA is very poor. We tried every other avenue but the FAA has not backed us."

Union demands include a reduction of the work week from 40 to 32 hours, increased retirement benefits and increased pay with a top salary of $59,000 a year.

However, the two sides - when talks publically broke off - remained as far apart as Logan Airport and Kennedy International. The union package according to government officials was 17 times what the administration was prepared to offer.

Catino, 25, attended Mass Bay Community College and received her flight training at the Federal Aviation Association (FAA) in Oklahoma. Birse, a graduate of Littleton High School, attended Daniel Webster College in New Hampshire and received his flight training at the FAA.

The two met in Hyannis where Birse worked for three years before transferring to Portland two years ago. However, Catino's attempts for a similar transfer have been ignored by the FAA. She plans to file for a hardship if and when the strike is settled.

As noted by Birse, 26, "It's not the money issue that we're stressing, it's the health issue."

Birse, an air traffic controller at the Portland Jetport and Vice President of local 289, pointed out that only 11 percent of the country's controllers make it to normal retirement.

For Birse and his fiancee, those numbers make them uneasy. "What we're looking for is a career," he said. "What am I going to do at age 35 when I am forced out because of medical reasons?"

"I don't really care about the money," continued Birse, whose yearly salary was $26,000 before the strike. "I would take the shorter work week."

"I like the job but not what it's going to do to me," he added. "I consider myself an average person and according to statistics, I'm not going to reach retirement."

And the element that strikens most controllers is the constant pressure in the tower. "The pressure comes from knowing you can make a mistake involving hundreds of lives at one time."

Runaway bulldozer injures worker

By Steven Burke and Philip Roosevelt
Staff Writers

AUBURNDALE — A five-ton municipal bulldozer ran wildly out of control on Lexington Street Thursday afternoon, injuring its driver, flattening a nearby car and damaging two others.

Leo Tracy, a 57-year old city employee who was operating the dozer at a landfill site, suffered minor injuries from the bizarre incident which is under investigation by police.

Tracy, who allegedly came back to the site after work, is expected to be charged with operating a vehichle without authority and driving to endanger, according to police.

Tracy, who lives at 3 Warren Ave. in Newton, remained at Newton Wellesley Hospital that night after being treated for a fractured left foot and head and arm lacerations.

According to police and witnesses, Tracy parted from the bulldozer and was struck by it before the lone vehicle rumbled through a grassy field to an apartment complex parking lot at 99 Lexington St. and hit the three cars.

"It just came out of nowhere," said Dale Nelson, a witness who observed from a nearby apartment as the bulldozer entered the lot.

"When I first saw it coming through the field I couldn't tell whether it had a driver or not... I ran to get my camera, and when I got back it was climbing up on the Oldsmobile. No one was driving it."

Nelson's 1977 Datsun sustained minor front end damage, while a 1970 Oldsmobile owned by Daniel J. Driscoll was completely crushed by the runaway vehicle. The bulldozer also ran over the hood of a 1977 Chevrolet Camaro owned by Alan Anastos.

Driscoll, 74, appeared visibly shaken as he and some neighbors salvaged tools and supplies from the trunk.

"It was a fine car. I thought it would last the rest of my life," he said.

Department of Public Works Director Charles Thomas, who was on the scene after the bulldozer went out of control, said: "The incident had nothing to do with work. It happened after the site was closed down for the day...He (Tracy) came back after everybody had left."

Tracy apparently returned to the site, where he works during the day, and unlocked the gate which surrounds the landfill at approximately 3:45.

Thomas said Tracy, a municipal employee for more than 10 years, was a "good worker." He noted that Tracy was never "disciplined" or reprimanded on the job.

Police issued a short statement, but refused to answer specific questions on the incident.

Runaway City bulldozer climbed onto this Oldsmobile. It also hit Camaro and Datsun in background.

School's reopening dates set

NEWTON — Meadowbrook Junior High School students will have at least another two days to purchase their school supplies.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink last Wednesday confirmed that seventh grade students will not return to school until Sept. 11 and eigth graders will begin classes on Monday, Sept. 14. Before the fire, which caused more than $2 million in damages, students were slated to return on Sept. 9.

Fink also said he will recommend to the school committee that the library, which was completely gutted, not be rebuilt in its former site.

Instead the library wouls be built on the first floor area that now includes rooms 202,203 and 204 and trhe audio visual storage rooms.The new facility , if approved by the school and city officials, would be "the same size if not a bit larger." than the former facility and spread out over one floor.

Fink made the announcements after a 45-minute closed door session with city and school personnel.

"With declining enrollment, we don't need the all the area destroyed by the fire," said Fink in reference to the tentative plans to not to rebuild the library in its former locality

Meadowbrook, which will not house ninth graders this year under the city's school consolidatrion program, will be home to 693 for the next three years. The number is expected to hold steady at around 680 to 720 students before plummeting to 608 in 1984 and a low of 515 in 1987.

As pointed out by Fink, the numbers will again climb to 658 students in 1996 but will never reach the current figure of 693.

"When we think in terms of rebuilding, we're thinking in terms of projected needs," added Fink."We must determine educational specificatrions for between 650 and 700 students."

"My present feelingis that this will not necessitate that we rebuild all that was destroyed in the fire," Fink added.

A temporary library will be set up in the area used as the facilty dining room and be ready ready for the first day of classes. The facility, which will be about one-quarter of the size of the former library, will be shelved with books from the othr junior highs in the city.

Approximately 15,000 library volumes including most of the books from Warren Junior High School library, were destroyed in the Aug. 15 fire. In addition, 15,000 paperback books, most of which were in the field of foriegn language and social studies, were lost.

Due to the loss of several science rooms, seventh graders will be forced to use three classrooms at the Oak Hill Elementary School. The school library as well as the Newton South High School library will be made available to Meadowbrook students.

Fink, who has supervised three fire reorganizations over the past two years, praised the city and school personnel for their efforts.

"I feel the city has done a magnificent clean-up job," he said. "The combined personnel will get the building in excellent shape for the opening of the Charles E. Brown Junior High School."

The school officially becomes the Charles E. Brown Junior High School on Sept. 1.

Officials at the mid-day meeting included Fink, School committee persons Ann Berwick, Sandra Flieshman Robert Ricles; PTA president Angela Neilson;Assistant Building Commissioner James Cameron, Director of Support Services Roy Cornelious,Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Helen Thomas; Assistant Superintendent for Program Norman Colb; acting pricipal William Jesdale;Librarian Louise Freedman and Eugene Sweeney.

Nonantum mourns death

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NONANTUM — There was no attempt to hide the grief.

As patrons of Zepps Restaurant on West Street watched the local news late Monday afternoon, informing them of a neighbor's tragic death, the wailing of an elderly woman could be heard from the lime-colored house two doors down.

The woman, Fiorita Leone, was in shock. Her husband, Paul, described by friends and neighbors as a "quiet, wonderful man," had been pronounced dead on arrival at Cambridge City Hospital just after 2 p.m.

The 56-year-old Leone, along with another man who was later freed, was trapped in a mid-day landslide at the Porter Square MBTA construction site.

"Everybody is shocked right now," said a female relative leaving the home. "Everybody is shaking. It's a terrible thing."

Fiorita, 54, heard of her husband's death over the car radio traveling home from her job in Burlington, according to the woman.

Funeral Services for Leone will be at 8:15 a.m. Thursday at the Andrew J. Magni Funeral Home in Newton. A Funeral Mass will be held at 9 p.m. at The Church of Our Lady.

Leone was born in San Donata, Italy, approximately 18 miles north of Cassino in Frosinone Province. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Patty and Carmine, four brothers and two sisters.

According to Robert Devin, an MBTA spokesman, Leone was working at the construction site when a retaining wall, holding between 40 to 50 feet of sand, collapsed just before noon trapping the construction worker.

After 70 minutes of feverish digging by more than 20 people, including Leone's brother, Bob, the Newton man was pulled from the debris. Efforts to revive Leone by mouth to mouth resuscitation proved unsuccesful.

Cambridge firefighters on the scene were hampered in their rescue attempt by the loose sand, which kept sliding down, and the inability to use heavy machinery. One fire official noted: "Part of the problem was no one could tell exactly where he was buried."

The Porter Square Station is one of several stops on the $43 million Red Line extension project. Construction on the tunnel began about two years ago and is approximately 60 percent completed, according to MBTA officials.

The cave-in is under investigation by both Slattery Construction Company, the Vocal conservative in liberal bastion still aims sights high

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

The aldermanic chamber at Newton City Hall was packed several months ago by a group of Auburndale residents fighting a proposed $15 million expansion of the Marriott Hotel.

Only one aldermen, Robert Tennant, stood up on the floor of the chamber that was filled with opponents of the plan and defended the expansion.

Tennant, a self described conservative and the pro-business conscience of the Newton Board of Aldermen, berated his colleagues for "railroading" the plan. "I have accused this board more than once of being anti-business," he said.

When the rollcall was announced by the city clerk, Tennant was the only aldermen who voted for the expansion.

Tennant was recently one of only five aldermen voting against an ordinance regulating condominium conversion, despite pressure from renters threatening to form a political coalition against opponents. Tennant called it an "infringement on free enterprise."

After a heated meeting on the ordinance, an elderly woman, anxious to intimidate Tennant, approached him and asked for his name. The angry Tennant lashed back. "My name is Robert Tennant. T-E-N-N-A-N-T. Don't forget to vote against me!"

When the board approved a symbolic resolution calling for a world wide freeze on the proliferation of nuclear arms, Tennant was one of only two aldermen in the opposing column.

Tennant called the resolution "absurd."

"I don't know what makes us such proficient people that we can get involved in a situation of world importance," he said.

Tennant (a Republican Ward - Three Alderman-at-Large) is used to standing alone. Despite the nationwide shift to the right, the fiercely independent alderman, who has served the city for nearly 20-years, remains one of only a handful of conservatives on the 24-member legislative body.

He is the most notable conservative in this wealthy, progressive city that prides itself as one of the the last liberal frontiers. Surprisingly, he has been a top-vote getter in recent municipal elections and is unopposed this year.

If there is such a thing, the 59-year old Tennant is a self-made man. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland and came to America with his Scottish parents when he was three.

His mother died when he was 12-years old. Only one month later, before he could recover from the shock, his father, an engineer at the Saco Lowell Machine Shop in Newton Upper Falls, died suddenly from a poor heart.

After the death of his parents, Tennant was separated from his two sisters and older brother, but remained with an aunt in the area.

"Those were hectic days," he recalls.

Life was tough growing up as a protestant orphan in a catholic neighborhood. Those days influenced him greatly. It made him strong, hard, independent and unafraid to stand alone. It also made him hungry for success.

"It does not bother me to stand alone because I got used to that in my life," Tennant says as he sits in his comfortable Insurance Agency Office in West Newton. "I had to make decisions alone all my life. It does not come difficult. It made a better man out of me. I had to defend myself all the way through life much more than the person that was protected by his mother and father. I never had that. I've been on the street taking the hard knocks and I think it made me a better person."

Tennant's life is a Horatio Alger story, the kind you often read about, but shrug off. As a young boy, he worked in a Newton Upper Falls grocery store Monday through Friday after school. On Saturdays, he worked from the early morning to midnight. On Sunday, he worked as a caddy at the Charles River Country Club.

After high school, Tennant spent four years in the Air Force where he was a top-turret gunner in a B-25 and saw action in World War II. He does not talk about his

DePasquale, John Stewart support White

NEWTON — In the second of a series of endorsements by Newton elected officials, Alderman Joseph DePasquale and former Alderman, John Stewart, announced their support for the candidacy of Alderman Mark White.

In endorsing White, DePasquale said "Mark White's proven concern for this city and its people demand that he be elected Mayor."

Commenting on the performance of his colleague, DePasquale noted, "Mark White's record is one of courage and accomplishment. The people of Newton need good representation and Mark White can do the job."

DePasquale is a two-term alderman from ward 1 and serves on the committees for Public Safety and Public Facilities. DePasquale becomes the second ward 1 alderman to endorse Mark White, joining Alderman Bruce Carmichael.

In commenting on the endorsement, White noted, "I am extremely pleased to have the support of both Bruce and Joe. It indicates strong support for my candidacy from the Newton Corner and Nonantum communities."

John Stewart said of White's record, "Mark White has demonstrated, in his four terms on the Board of Aldermen, that he has a keen understanding of municipal affairs. As we all know, these are difficult times for cities and towns in Massachusetts.

"The 'old way' of doing things, which worked to some extent throughout the 1970's, will be pretty much obsolete in the 1980's. The times demand a new, rational, hard-nosed, tough kind of public management, an approach that only Mark White is apt to bring to city hall."

"I am supporting Mark White because he is the only candidate who seems to view government in a positive, optimistic way," Stewart said. "He rejects the notion, too often expressed these days, that government is simply a burden, a necessary evil to be tolerated and fearfully controlled."

"I realize that Mark White faces an uphill effort in convincing a majority of voters of Newton that it is time for a change," Stewart continued. "Like most residents, I feel that the current mayor has made many good decisions during his long tenure. This is the year, however, for a new mayor, a new administration and a new effort at resolving the host of problems that are preventing Newton from achieving its full potential."

Newton sting picture perfect

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — In a sophisticated "sting" operation, Newton and State Police teamed up with the FBI Monday and recovered three art treasures valued at $50,000. Two Massachusetts men were arrested in the sting.

The arrests were the result of a six month investigation which began after the art treasures, signed and numbered lithographs by Marc Chagall and Salvador Dali, were stolen from a Newton home. Police said the $50,000 estimated value of the prints (one Dali and two Chagalls) was conservative.

Louis F. Royce, 44 , of 320 O'Neil Blvd., Attleboro, was charged with breaking and entering, larceny over $100 and receiving stolen property in connection with the art theft. Ralph Rosetti, Jr., 46, of 72 Bennington St., East Boston, was charged with receiving stolen property.

Royce and Rosetti were being held in the Newton Police station jail cell Monday night. Both men were scheduled to be arraigned in Newton District Court Tuesday.

Clerk of Court Henry Schultz set bail for the two men Monday afternoon. Royce was being held in lieu of $50,000 bail. Rosetti was being held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Rosetti and Royce were arrested in a parking lot across from the Callahan Tunnel in East Boston at approximately 1:30 p.m. Police had the area blocked off and the two men were arrested without a chase.

Law officials reportedly set up the rendezvous with the two unsuspecting men who were allegedly expecting to sell the stolen art treasures for $10,000. The sting operation, directed by Special Agent in charge of the Boston F.B.I. Lawrence Sarhatt, was specifically set up to recover the art treasures.

Royce allegedly stole the prints from the Newton home and enlisted Rosetti to help unload the three art prints, police said.

The rare prints, which were displayed by Newton Detectives in a special press conference at 6 p.m., are considered irreplacable by art collectors. Chagall, born in 1877, was a Russian painter. Dali, born in 1904, is a Spanish surrealist painter.

The lithographs, evidence in the case against Royce and Rosetti, are being kept in a safe at the Newton Police Station. Police refused to release the name of the owner of the art treasures, fearing that the house might be broken into again.

Newton Police Lt. James Cox and Detective Manley Kiley played an integral part in the investigation of the art theft and arrest of the two men.

Pre-primary debate set for Sept. 12

NEWTON — State Rep. Susan Schur will act as moderator for the pre-primary Mayoral debate on Saturday evening, Sept.12, at MacKenzie Hall, Scacred Heart Church in Newton Centre.

Rep. Schur will introduce the candidates for mayor. Each candidate will be allowed a two-minute opening statement.

Panelists questioning the candidates will be Cynthia Black, editor of the Newton Graphic; Colleen Hughes of Radio WNTN in Newton; and Marcia Francis of the League of Women Voters of Newton.

All candidates will be given time to respond to each other. The debate structured to provide the audience an opportunity to ask questions of their own. Each candidate will then present a three-minute closing statement.

Pizza, beer and wine will be from 7-9 p.m. During this time, there will be the opportunity to meet all the candidates running for public office. The League of Women Voters will man an information booth to introduce new and prospective members to the League's activities. The debate will begin at 9 p.m.

"Pizza and Primary Politics" is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Newton and Newton Newcomers. The public is invited. Admission is free. For more information call 244-3411.

Master plan established

NEWTON — Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce President Bryan E. Carlson has announced the establishment of a three-year Master Plan program for the Chamber of Commerce, appointed a Nominating Committee to select officers and directors for 1982 and named a new Chairman of the Chamber's Planning & Zoning Committee.

Named to a steering committee to establish task forces to guide the Chamber's development over the next three years and to guide the growth of the Chamber are Paul B. Rubenstein, Security Mills Realty Trust, Chairman; Kenneth Bleakney, Honeywell; Verne Edmunds, Andover Newton Theological School; Atty. Oscar Wasserman, Wasserman & Feinberg; Chamber Executive Vice President Lewis B. Songer and Dr. Carlson. The task forces will be formed within the next month to consider future needs for programming, membership and public relations, staff, property and financing.

Immediate Past President Colin G. Nadeau of the Marriott Corporation will Chair the Nominating Committee. Other members will be Anita Capeless, immediate Past President of the Newton League of Women Voters; John Day, Glover Memorial Hospital; John Fox, GTE Sylvania and Robert Stevens, Hcme Town Cooperative Bank.

Nathan Berkowitz of Fox & Hounds Properties has been named Chairman of the Planning and Zoning Committee, succeeding Philip E. Meany, who has resigned due to a business transfer to Washington, D.C. with Leggat McCall & Werner.

DeNucci backs elders' bills

BOSTON — Representative A. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton-Waltham), House Chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, addressed the Massachusetts Silver-Haired Legislature recently at Framingham State College.

DeNucci spoke on several senior-related issues, citing the silver legislators' important voice in the formulation of a legislative package addressing the concerns of older citizens.

DeNucci stated, "Your presence at legislative committee hearings was both recognized and appreciated. You not only helped propose and sponsor legislation, you also showed up physically in support of these measures." DeNucci said, "You can, by your organization and efforts, help get legislation out of committee and onto the law books of the Commonwealth."

DeNucci applauded the senior legislators for their "courage and commitment to run and to serve." Adding, "You provide a very important voice and we in the Massachusetts Legislature take you very seriously."

DeNucci outlined several measures which came before his legislative committee during the 1981 session. DeNucci's committee reported favorably on a bill that would ensure that home care services be provided on a sliding-fee-scale basis, to all elders who need services or legislation to authorize the Department of Elder Affairs to establish a congregate housing supportive services program; a bill to assure full SSI benefits to residents of shared housing; and a measure to provide for the mandated reporting of suspected abuse of elders in the community and give victims of abuse necessary protective services.

These bills are currently pending before the Legislature's Ways and Means Committees.

DeNucci also spoke on behalf of a bill which he co-sponsored with the Silver-Haired Legislature, the Nursing Home Receivership Bill. This legislation is designed to protect the residents of nursing homes by authorizing the Department of Public Health or the Attorney General to seek receivership when a nursing home is providing sub-standard care.

DeNucci also cited two successful budget initiatives: a 7-percent increase in SSI benefits and the inclusion of SSI recipients in the food stamp program.

"These are major gains for senior citizens," DeNucci said. "I am particularly pleased about the food stamps program. For the small amount of money appropriated for administration of the program ($1.6 million, 50 percent of which is federally reimbursable) the commonwealth will receive $10 to $20 million in federal money which will go directly to our most needy citizens for the purchase of food.

Anna, 100, still lively

By Donna Lombardi
Staff Reporter

UPPER FALLS — When birthdays roll around, many people are a little hesitant about admitting their ages. But there's an Upper Falls resident who will hapily tell you hers.

She's Anna Hawley, who last week, surrounded by dozens of friends and relatives, celebrated a century of living. The huge white, yellow and pink birthday cake read,"Happy Birthday Anna-100 years old!"

"I don't feel any older," remarks the spirited woman who was the life of the party, celebrated at the Elliot Manor Nursing Home, where Hawley lives.

In fact, she is quite alert and wonderfully witty, with a sense of humor that's been the key to her popularity at the home. "Oh, she's very funny. She has quite a sense of humor," family and friends agree.

And for anyone there who wasn't already aware of that, Hawley was sure to let them know. As part of the birthday celebration, a church service was held in her honor. Hawley, dressed in a pink and white suit and pearl jewlery, sat and waited for the mass to begin when Monsignor Granville of Sacred Heart Parish approached her . "What is your favorite hymn dear?"he asked Hawley.The crowd was silent as the monsignor waited patiently for Hawley's answer.

"Well, I think you should sing HAPPY BIRTHDAY," exclaims Hawley in her usual engaging voice.The crowd bursts into laughter.

Once again, Monsignor Granville asks Hawley, who is still beaming from ear to ear, what church song she would like to hear. Giggles can still be heard from observers as Hawley says, "How about Jingle Bells?" Everyone roars with laughter, knowing that Hawley isn't senile, just very funny. She won't let this be a solemn occasion.

Enjoying the limelight, Hawley smiles brightly, posing her head in various positions as the cameras click and bulbs flash. "Look at me," she sings,"I'm thinking of something very funny. That's why I'm smiling!"

A family member soon appears with a photograph that was taken a few minutes earlier. "Why I do think it flatters me!"

Hawley is very lively for a 100 year old woman. She is also independent.A former bookbinder, Hawley worked up until the age of 70 when she was forced to retire because the company she worked for went out of business.

Up until last year, she lived alone in her apartment. But a frightening fall resulted in her moving to Elliot Manor to avoid any more accidents.

But Hawley has had few medical problems, and aside from being hard of hearing,she is in reasonably good health for a 100 year old woman. She participates in daily exercise classes, various other activities and enjoys frequent day trips.

However, Hawley admits that her memory is short. "It comes and it goes. I live in the past. I remember things that happened years ago, but not yesterday."

Hawley often talks about the events that she does remember, such as a trip to the World's Fair or dancing a ballroom waltz. Nor has she forgotten relatives and friends that she doesn't often see. Throughout the celebration, Hawley would ask about various family members, names, places and special events. "I'm kinda nosy','she says with a grin.

Her birthday gifts included a letter from President Ronald Reagan, several bouquets of flowers, a gold chalice which Hawley presented to Monsignor Granville and a check for $100.

A religious woman who attended church services daily when she was able to, Hawley refused to keep the money she had recieved and insisted on giving it to charity, though she was told to keep it. "One of her favorite pasttimes is collecting pennies for the missions," says Mrs. Dorothy Marietti, the home's activity director. "She's very concerned for other people."

Some 70 people gathered to celebrate with Hawley, and wish her well. And during the service one friend exclaimed, "For Anna-that she'll always be as funny!"

Anna Hawley, who recently turned 100 (August 28), jokes with friends during birthday celebration at Elliot Manor Nursing Home.

Ald. McGrath (r.) with candidate White

Ald. McGrath pledges support for Mark White

NEWTON — Joining an ever increasing number of Newton aldermen, Alderman Richard McGrath of Ward 4 Monday endorsed fellow Alderman Mark White in his bid to become mayor of Newton.

McGrath explained that he endorsed White because of "leadership qualities, courage, and expertise, that Newton has been lacking for too long." McGrath stated "Mark White's record of accomplishment is by itself a clear mandate that he be elected Newton's next mayor."

McGrath also commented on Alderman White's "calm, thinking, aggresive approach to problem solving."

"It is time for a change," McGrath said. "Change for changes sake is not enough reason to elect a new mayor. Change to someone with a record of involvement and action is the only beneficial type of change. Mark White has that sort of record and this is why I am endorsing his candidacy."

Alderman White was especially pleased with this endorsement saying "Dick McGrath is one of the real leaders on the board and his support means a lot to me."

Alderman McGrath has been an alderman from Ward 4 for eight years, and a former state representative. He serves as chairman of the Public Facilities Committee.

Joshua Davis, chairman and founder of the Newton Youth for Political Action and student representative to the Newton School Committee from Newton South also announced his support for Alderman Mark White Monday.

Davis said, "Mark White's record with regard to youth is excellent. He was the driving force behind the UpStart bus program, and has always been at the forefront of battles for improved recreational facilities."

In concluding his remarks, Davis noted, "I will be spending the rest of my summer working for Mark, and I urge others who are interested in the future of youth and education in Newton to do the same.

Crystal Lake's new facility for disabled to be dedicated

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — A dedication of the completely wheel chair accessible swim facility at Crystal Lake, Rogers Street, Newton Highlands, in honor of the "International Year of Disabled Persons", will be held on Sept. 3 at 12:30 p.m.

The facility was completed through the cooperation of various Newton departments including: the Mayor's Committee on the Environment of the Handicapped and groups concerned with handicapped citizens.

Millions will send pledges to Jerry's kids

BOSTON — The 16th annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) will be broadcast in the Boston area by WCVB-TV 5 Sept. 6-7.

Originating from Las Vegas, the TV spectacular is held to raise funds to support the association's medical services and research programs. The entertainment marathon will be carried by a "Love Network" of some 200 TV stations in the continental U.S., Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico. Ed McMahon will serve as Jerry Lewis's anchorman for the ninth straight year, backed up by "Good Morning America" host David Hartman and Hollywood's Chad Everett.

Last year the 21 ½-hour show produced a record pledge total of over $31 million for the national health agency's work, and was seen by an estimated 92 million Americans. The show's unduplicated total audience included more than 47 percent of the households with TV sets in the United States.

WCVB-TV 5 will "cut away" from the network show approximately 15 minutes every hour to present firsthand reports of MDA activities in the Greater Boston Area supported by proceeds from the telethon and other of the health agency's fund-raising events. MDA maintains three clinics in the Greater Boston Area, operates a summer/winter camp for people with muscular dystrophy at Camp Allen, N.H., and supports research at twelve different medical centers

King's Department Store,171 Watertown Street in Newton will be giving away a bicycle to the youngster who raises the most money for the telethon.

Girls and boys interested in winning the bicycle may pick up a collection kit at the customer service desk at King's. The kit includes an MDA volunteer badge, Jerry Lewis stickers and a collection canister.

For more information, call King's at 969-5650.

Taking a bead on water use

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The city is planning on installing 23,000 water meters in the city within the next year which will conserve water and generate an estimated $200,000 a year.

The purchase may result in higher bills for some customers benefiting from inaccurate meters.

Mayor Theodore Mann said that the city will sign a contract with a firm to install the new meters which will be more "accurate and efficient."

The Board of Aldermen has approved the $1.2 million bond authorization for the meter purchase and the city is in the process of finalizing the contract.

Mann emphasized that the new meters will conserve water and generate revenue. "This will save the city money in the long run," he explained. "It will be a more efficient operation."

The water meter purchase was put on hold after the passage of Proposition 2½ last November. Mann was waiting to see if the city's Triple A credit rating would be affected by the passage of the tax-cutting measure.

Newton is one of only a handful of communities that has a Triple A credit rating, the highest awarded by Moody Investors. A community's credit rating is critical to borrowing funds and bonding expensive purchases.

Under Proposition 2½. which has forced Newton to eliminate 365 municipal positions and implement a host of user fees, property taxes can not exceed 2½ percent of a community's value.

After the passage of the tax cutting measure, Mann implemented a freeze on capital expenditures that put the water meter purchase on hold along with the purchase of two garbage compactors and three automobiles.

The Water Department had had not replaced five people who left the department in anticipation of the water meter purchase. The new meters will result in greater conservation and efficiency.

As a result of the purchase, a water meter reader will be able to read 200 to 300 meters a day, an increase of 50 meters.

The city was originally given a Jan. 31 deadline to purchase the meters from a New Jersey firm, Rockwell Meter Co., whose low bid was $1,040,000. The company was one of three low bidders considered.

Newton resident named to Fire Protection post

NEWTON — E. G. Page, president of Grinnell Fire Protection Systems Company, Inc., has named David S. McNitt of Newton as vice president and general manager of the alarm and detection systems business.

In this new position he will be responsible for Grinnell's nationwide alarm and detection operations.

Time for bold move in Ireland

Maybe it is now time for the Brits to get out.

The IRA Provos' most recent series of indiscriminate bombings in Northern Ireland probably came about because the impact of "just another" starvation death among fasting prisoners wasn't as great as the first ones had been. How often can emotions be raised to such a pitch? One prisoner had been removed from the group by his family after he lapsed into a coma and ther might well be others.

But the tough line taken by the British toward the hunger fasts could be explained as successful although they probably lost more international support than they gained. But this could be the opportunity for them to announce that they had confronted the IRA, they had won and they could now withdraw "with honor."

While nothing would probably please the hard-pressed British public more, the same would not be true among Protestants in Ulster. Britain's pledge that it would not withdraw until the majority of people in Ulster wanted them to really means that Britain is a hostage of Ulster's Protestants. Yet even the hard-line Orangemen must be wondering whether the continued face-off is worth it.

Unemployment in Ulster for men is about 22 percent, but is closer to 50 percent in Catholic ghetto areas where the violence erupts. "Kneecappings" of young male Catholics reluctant to play the IRA role have become more frequent. Ordinary street crimes, one time almost unheard of in Ireland, are commonplace. Employment and housing discrimination was once the major complaint of Ulster's Catholics but the IRA tactics have really only made it worse.

Would civil war in Ulster — spreading to the Republic of Ireland — be the result of a British withdrawal? That has been the fear of both the Irish and British and one thing they are reluctantly agreed upon. Yet that risk may be worth the attempt to let the Irish themselves mediate the problem — something the British have never quite understood. It might be that the Ulster Protestants, faced with the prospect of a Roman Catholic minority of implacable thugs would agree to unification of Ireland with strong safeguards for them even though they didn't extend the same to others in the past.

Eighteen U.S. congressmen have recently sent a letter to President Reagan asking that his administration "play an active role in ending the current deadly impasse" in Northern Ireland. If such a role could save face for Britain, Ulster Protestants and Catholics, it would be worth the gamble. In the long run, that might be the best answer to the irresponsible IRA Provos.

Collins for King

By Loring Swaim, state columnist

An authoritative source close to Gov. Edward King confirms that former Boston Mayor John Collins, a long-time Democrat and until recently an MIT professor, will play a major directorial role in the governor's campaign for another term.

Collins and King sat down together last week to discuss and decide Collins' role. They emerged with an understanding that King would lean heavily on Collins for primary strategy and policy for the campaign, though, due to his mobility limitations, Collins will let others handle the physical activity of the campaign and its headquarters operation.

Massachusetts Turnpike Authority member Paul May who directed King's first campaign that put him in office will also work with Collins, according to present plans. It becomes less likely that young Bill Ezekiel's political skills will be signed on this time, though Ezekiel has been talking with King men about the campaign direction. Ezekiel had been the first to come forward four years ago to head King's fledgling campaign, even before May, but he and King split over policy differences.

'Si' running for gov

On the subject of gubernatorial candidates, Josiah "Si" Spaulding of Manchester, something of a maverick Republican, says he has made up his mind to go for the Republican nomination this time around.

Spaulding is president of the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital near the North Station and chairman of the trustees of the Beverly Hospital. He made an abortive attempt in 1970 to unseat Sen. Ted Kennedy. Before that, he had been Republican state committee chairman during Richard Nixon's struggle for the Republican nomination in 1968. Spaulding happened to support Nelson Rockefeller, as did the then-state committee executive director, Jane Clifford.

Last year, Spaulding was gungho for the Independent candidacy of Cong. John Anderson. Clifford (now Fowler) became one of Anderson's key national staffers. She will direct Spaulding's gubernatorial campaign, he says, and they have an office and embryonic staff.

"As a Republican," says Spaulding, "I'm liberal on social issues — and I strongly oppose Pres. Reagan's defense policies.

"It will be interesting to see what effect my work with Anderson will have."

Reagan's choice

The new Reagan administration's appointee to head the New England region of the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services is Claira Monier, wife of the president of the New Hampshire Senate.

In the mid-1970s, Mrs. Monier was a special assistant to former N. H. Gov. Meldrim Thomson, Jr., handling constituent services. For five years thereafter she headed the N. H. Council on Aging till she was picked by HHS Secretary Richard Schweiker as director of intergovernmental and congressional affairs. She was sworn in this week to her new assignment running the sprawling department in New England.

'Keep the money'

"Thanks, but no thanks!" said Amherst town fathers politely when their state representative, Jim Collins, suggested they might voluntarily return some of the disproportionately large amount of local aid the university town happened to receive in this year's freak local aid distribution.

The Great and General Court, in its wisdom this unusual year, allocated $265 million more in local aid to help communities soften the impact of losses mandated by Proposition 2½. But is also settled on the lottery formula by which to distribute the extra aid. Everett happened to get a measly 10 percent of its Proposition 2½ loss, or $600,000, while Amherst made out like gangbusters with 400 percent or $3.6 million!

Collins who is regarded in the State House as one of the more thoughtful and principled rising young men saw the need for moral leadership to correct the inequity. What about turning back maybe $1 million of the $3.6 million as a gesture that might prompt other communities to follow the lead?

Local officials held firm, discreetly citing the town's traditional losses from so much tax-emempt property, etc.

Meese says it's 'total' fantasy' to believe he is in command.

Edwin Meese

Commentary by Helen Thomas

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese has a lot of power in the White House, but he says it's "total fantasy" to believe he is in command.

Meese's decision not to awaken President Reagan until six hours after American aircraft shot down two Russian-made Libyan jets in disputed Mediterranean waters has been the subject of cartoons and criticism. He also has been jokingly refered to as "President Meese."

Meese is the first to laugh about it all. His favorite cartoon showed Meese telling Reagan that World War III started six hours ago. "Thanks Ed," Reagan is shown replying.

As for the perception that Meese is the man in charge and Reagan has delegated his authority, Meese said in an interview with United Press International: "I think the president and I have the same views — that's total fantasy on the part of the media.

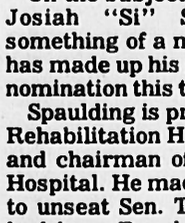

Meese said that no changes in the president's or his modus operandi are contemplated as a result of the Libyan incident.

"He thought it was funny," Meese said, referring to the ruckus over his failure to awaken the president.

Nevertheless, the episode was revealing in the amount of power Reagan delegates and his basic detachment from the day-to-day running of the presidency.

Clearly, Reagan wants to focus on the big picture and to be in a position to make all of the ultimate decisions. But he does not want to be caug t up with details which he feels bogged down some of his predecessors, particularly President Jimmy Carter.

Polish lessons

By Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — Until very recently, stock-taking on Poland always seemed premature. The Russians might pounce at any time.

But a danger zone was traversed when the Party Congress met in Warsaw last month, and the friendly meeting between Polish leaders and Leonid Brezhnev by the Black Sea 10 days ago signaled safe passage. So the time is ripe for facing up to the lessons — the surprising lessons that ruptured so many common assumptions — of the Polish experience.

The vitality of resistance to Soviet domination is the principal lesson. Millions of individual Poles — occasionally acting entirely on their own, and usually without united leadership — have faced down the superior forces of a centralized regime. Idiosyncratic elements — the Polish past for one thing; and the influence of the Roman Catholic Church, for another — no doubt counted for much. But many other countries under the Soviet heel have historic traditions and religious unity. So the Polish model can be followed economic, cultural or national benefits, has ceased to move forward. It may not be politic to say so, but one of the distinct possibilities in the time ahead is the coming apart of the Soviet empire.

Detente between East and West, accordingly, is not a one-way street. To be sure, when tensions ease, the Western countries are prone to relax. Moscow can keep up the pressure, and stand to make some gains.

But the East also carries heavy burdens and big liabilities. The cracks in the Kremlin wall widen of their own accord when the international pressures let up. The Polish resistance of the last year is unthinkable without the earlier period of growing trade, blossoming cultural exchange and rich personal contact between Poland and the West. Thanks to the fissures in the Soviet system, detente can be made to work for the West.

Defense also works. In Western Europe especially, many argue that maintaining armies and modernizing forces waste money. They believe that in a war, nuclear weapons would quickly come into play — obliterating everything, by other states, and even by submerged minorities inside Russia.

Deep cracks, in other words, show in the Kremlin wall. Soviet communism, in the absence of any and making a mockery of conventional military preparations.

But the Polish army, though without nuclear arms and though far weaker than the force of Russia, has played a decisive role in the past year. The turning point last August came when the Polish military authorities, led by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, refused to fire on the workers striking the Gdansk shipyards. In a later showdown, the moderate party leader, Stanislaw Kania, beat back hard-liners by making Gen. Jaruzelski prime minister. At all times the existence of a Polish force prepared to fight weighed against Soviet intervention. In the hands of determined men, artillery, tanks and machine guns became, as much as nuclear weapons, a deterrent.

Soviet hesitation is the other side of that deterrent. The Russian leaders are hard men who have participated in monstrous doings. They have crushed countries, stamped out dissent and visited brutal punishment on innocent men, women and children.

But they are not trigger-happy. They are not even especially prone to take risks. The notion that they would hazard nuclear holocaust on a strike at the U.S. seems particularly farfetched. In Poland, after all, they held their fire despite the certain knowledge the West would not intervene.

Letters to the editor

Yes, I feel double-crossed by Gov. King

Governor King's huge, high-priced public relations army is making a career out of writing "letters to the editor" to Massachusetts newspapers carrying J. J. Smith's political column. The complaint: "J. J. Smith uses the King administration as his punching bag."

The latest whine concerns my column detailing the "broken promises" and "double-cross" epidemic which the administration has authored. Christine Toomey of the governor's communication staff charges, among other things, that my views are "personal...beyond the realm of professionalism."

Let me set the record straight.

Prior to King's election, and for his first two years in office, this writer, to the best of my knowledge, was the ONLY political writer in the Commonwealth supporting Ed King. I did so because I believed his promises and shared most of his views philosophically. It's become glaringly apparent, however, over the past year that the governor has a failure as chief executive — and his shortcomings are an open secret to friends and foes alike.

The column that triggered Ms. Toomey's amusing diatribe against me concerned his broken promises but mainly detailed accusations against King levelled against him by Francis P. Rich, the governor's boyhood pal, high school classmate, 1978 campaign treasurer and one-time enthusiastic supporter. These were charges from an intimate King administration insider — not from J. J. Smith.

Is J. J. Smith the only writer critical of King? Hardly. One can seldom pick up a newspaper without the evidence of King's shortcomings belting you between the eyes. Here are a few recent quotes from other political writers:

"One sees a floundering administration, short on conviction, policy and achievement, gray and imageless, uninspiring." — Ian Menzies, Boston Globe, August 20, 1981.

"When Governor Edward J. King was elected in 1978, it was on a promise of a $500-million tax rollback the first year of his administration, and $400 million more in the second. In the first year, King produced less than one-tenth his promise. In the second year, the promise of tax cuts ballooned into a $344.39 million increase in property taxes." — Andy Dabilis, UPI Statehouse reporter, June 23, 1981.

"From public employee unions to afficionados of limited government, King has alienated just about every group that backed him and his conservative fiscal policies in 1978." — Walter V. Robinson, Boston Globe, July 12, 1981.

"King campaigned as a skilled business manager, who would slice away government ineffiency and unnecessary taxes. But now he looks more like the top governmental toll-taker, leaning out of his booth with his palm open." — Robert L. Turner, Boston Globe, August 16, 1981.

Ms. Toomey asks, "Could it be that he (J. J. Smith) has had a brush with the 'broken promises' or the 'double-cross' that he so readily attaches to the King administration?"

The answer is "Yes." I feel double-crossed not only as millions of my fellow Bay State residents do who took the governor at his word but also as the only political analyst who was foolish enough to write columns that may have persuaded a few people to vote for Ed King, as I did.

What better time

To the Editor:

I am replying to Mr. Lurensky's letter to the Editor about my statement in the newspapers regarding the allocation of human service monies within the federal Community Development Plan.

I said that I deplored the current administration's unwillingness to allocate an adequate proportion of these federal dollars for human needs, especially at a time when human service programs are being cut.

Mr. Lurensky claims that what I said is 'misleading,' 'a blatant disregard for reality' and that 'I should know better.'

As you know, Mr. Lurensky, for many years I have been concerned and have fought for a larger allocation of monies into the human service category of the Community Development Plan — a plan which brings over $2 million into Newton.

I have before me a recent report which addresses many human needs identified by providers and advocacy organizations. The areas of concern are the elderly, children, adolescents, mental health and other needs, and approximately 20 agencies and groups responded.

In your letter you write about the governmental process involved with the community development funds, but you neglected to mention a body that is part of the process; namely, the Board of Aldermen who pass on the total plan.

I call your attention to the Board of Aldermen Resolution to the mayor on February 2, 1981 (No. 64-81 2), which calls upon the mayor to reconsider and increase the human service allocation. He did not wish to do so.

I am well aware of the fact that there is an election coming up this year, as are you. What better time is there to bring forward once again the issue of human service monies than at election time when the response to issues is the greatest!

Registration at junior high begins Sept. 2

NEWTON — New students may register at Day Junior High School from Wednesday, Sept. 2 through Tuesday, Sept. 8 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the school office.

This applies only to students transferring from other school systems, not to seventh graders coming from Newton elementary schools. New students who are registering should bring their report cards and transfer from their previous schools. Parents should accompany students for registration whenever possible.

Orientation for 7th grade students only will be on Wednesday, Sept. 9, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Eighth graders will report on Thursday, Sept. 10, at 9 a.m.. Ninth graders will report on Thursday, Sept. 10, at 12:30 p.m. There will be a full day of school for all students on Friday, Sept. 11, starting at 8:30 a.m.

Free coffee for holiday motorists

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, anticipating heavy traffic over the Labor Day weekend, issued a warning to motorists that the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit will be rigidly enforced along its 135 mile roadway.

Chairman John T. Driscoll said, "State police from Troop E who patrol the turnpike will augment regular radar teams in order to discourage excessive speeding."

In addition, radio-equipped emergency service patrol vehicles will asi assist police in locating and assisting motorists in disabled vehicles and a full force of toll collectors will be at all interchanges across the turnpike.

Service stations and restaurants along the turnpike will be opened 24 hours a day, everyday. Driscoll also noted that Howard Johnson restaurants along the turnpike will provide free coffee to patrons of the turnpike as a gesture intended to remind motorists that rest stops and coffee stops can help to keep drivers alert, thereby improving driving performance.

Columnist's vendetta

To the Editor:

J.J. Smith uses the King administration as his punching bag. Some guys bully short people, others kick their dog. Not J.J. Smith. He had engaged in full-fledged warfare against Governor King and anyone in his adminstration.

It is customary in replying to an editorial to address specific allegations or inaccuracies. However, doing so with J.J. Smith's articles would involve a full page of print and dignify shoddy journalism with serious responses.

It is only natural that no one can be expected to like everything about a politician or his views. By the same token it is equally unnatural — and suspicious — for J.J. Smith to continually slam the Governor across the board.

It makes one wonder why J.J. Smith has taken his vendetta against Governor King beyond the realm of professionalism into the personal. Could it be that he himself has had a brush with the "broken promise" or the "double-cross" that he so readily attaches to the King administration? One thing is quite clear. The bitter pill of disappointment still lingers in Mr. Smith's throat.

Every cloud has a silver lining. At the end of his most recent column it was noted that J.J. Smith is on vacation during the month of August.

Christine Toomey
Governor's Communication Office

Another fifty

To the Editor:

Hardly a season goes by when a new rumor comes along about the future of Middlesex County Hospital (MCH) in Waltham.

This year, MCH will celebrate fifty years of continuous public service. Its track record shows that it has changed with the needs of society, the people it serves, and has the proud status of being a fully-accredited chronic rehab hospital.

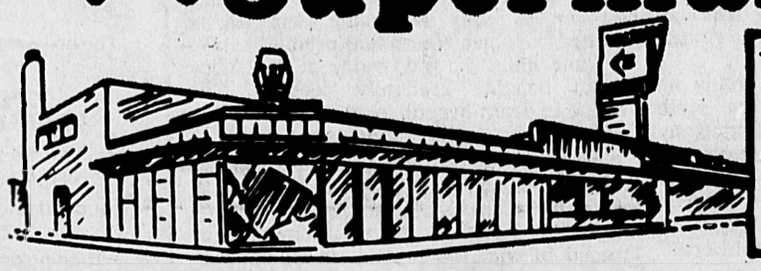

If someone were to ask me to describe MCH, I would answer, "It's a special place that's a toss between mom's homemade apple pie and the Star Spangled Banner."

Yet, the question before us is, "Will MCH survive?" In my opinion, seeing the dedicated determination of fellow co-workers who make this caring hospital what it is, MCH is capable and will hopefully see another fifty years of public service to mankind.

skirmishes in the South Pacific. Upon leaving the service, he started a small insurance business.

Today, that "small" insurance business is booming. The lucrative business is a long way from the days when he walked the streets with holes in his shoes and put newspapers between blankets to keep warm.

The stocky Tennant is at times uneasy as he sits in a deep leatherback chair behind a stately desk cluttered with papers. At the forefront of the desk is a collection of crystal elephants - the symbol of the Republican party. Tennant began collecting elephant regalia as a "hobby" many years ago. In the upper left hand corner of the desk is a small wooden box. On the outside it reads - "The key to success." When opened, the secret is revealed - "HARD WORK." The large office also contains a sofa and a portable television.

"You get out of life what you put into it," says Tennant as he leans back in his chair.

Many politicians shun ideological labels, but Tennant clings to the the term conservative. He embraces Reaganomics and the laissez-faire philosphy that opposes the intervention of government in the "free enterprise" economic system.

"I have never been unhappy about the label of being conservative," he explains. "I have proven to myself that if you are a conservative person, work hard, do the right thing, and stay honest, you can be successful."

With the age of powerful conservatives in America, Tennant is a man whose time has come. He distrusts the New Deal economics. Like Reagan, he believes government should get out of the way and let American business do the job of growth and improving our economy.

"People are suddenly seeing the light as far as the liberal giveaway programs are concerned," he asserts. "They are now turning around and saying this just cannot go on."

"We were going down the drain," Tennant says of the period following the New Deal era. "We are now being a little sensible and trying to put the brakes on government spending and go back to living realistically within our own means and bounds."

Tennant also carries the traditional conservative banner of fiscal constraint and is weary of "liberal" prescriptions and "Big Government."

"The way I have tried to act at City Hall is that the money I am spending up there is my money," he says. "I am as careful with that money as I am would be with my own. The budget has to be set up within bounds to make the thing go right."

Tennant is not happy with the present Board of Aldermen.

"The board is anti-business," he says, noting the recent defeat of a $38 million plan to revitalize Newton Corner by a Boston developer. "If we don't stop what we are doing, the business, the builders and the developers are going to walk out. We won't have it."

Tennant is also skeptical of today's political atmosphere. Like many conservatives, he longs for a simpler time. Tennant, a nononsense politican, is often the aldermen that moves an item for a vote. He dislikes the headline grabbing and theatrics of many aldermen.

"I'm very sorry the old days aren't around anymore," he says. "In the old days, you could shake a man's hand and that was binding. You can't do that anymore... Nobody trusts anybody today. There is more argumentation and debate."

Like many of today's conservatives, Tennant's politics could be called a contradiction. He criticizes social programs, but is compassionate and feels a strong sense of civic duty. He contributes to a number of charities and is active in the Newton Kiwanis charitable foundation and the Aleppo Temple. In fact, Tennant donates his $1,800 aldermanic salary each year to charity.

"I feel the Board of Aldermen should not be paid five cents," he exclaims, leaning forward. "When you take that job on, you are taking on a civic duty and you should expect to contribute your time and energy to make a better city."

"I feel the poor should be given an opportunity to work," Tennant says. "Notice I said work and not stand around in a line and have money given to them. The poor should be given as much of a chance in life as the person who has a lot of money...Yet, I am not against the rich people. Most rich people have earned what they got."

Tennant, who attends church every Sunday, holds the traditional values long associated with conservatives. He married Margaret McAffe, a scotch Irishwoman, in 1949. Tennant is proud of his family. He is the father of four boys and three girls (ranging in age from 19 to 31). In addition, he has four grandchildren.

Does Tennant, who made an unsuccessful bid for the state representative seat vacated by David Mofenson in 1980, have any future political ambitions such as a run for mayor in the future? "Not really," he says. Unless, he adds if "some way out liberal" appears to have a shot.

His stalwart conservative stand on most issues has not made him popular with many aldermen. Tennant has often been criticized by colleagues. Alderman Mark White, a mayoral candidate, has repeatedly attacked Tennant for aligning himself with Mayor Theodore Mann on issue after issue. White often refers to Tennant as "the aldermen from the mayor's office."

How does Tennant respond to the criticism? "I don't know how that criticism came about," he says. "I think the affiliation only comes from the fact that he (Mann) is a Republican and I am a Republican...I am my own man."

Exhibit will note textile collection

BOSTON — "Fibers: From Function to Formalization," an exhibition organized by the Boston Visual Artists Union, will be on view at the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston from Sept. 3 through Oct. 22.

Tracing the evolution of fiber and textile artistry from purely functional to formal abstract purposes, the exhibition will include the work of 31 artists as well as historical examples from the Jackson Homestead textile collection in Newton.

The Boston Visual Artists Union, Inc., is a non-profit organization of more than one thousand Boston area artists and other individuals. The BVAU is supported in part by the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency, and by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.

Boston area artists whose work will be included in the exhibition are Virginia Gunter, Leslie Wilcox, Anne Caras Dunlap, Mara Samellas, Anne Forbes, Tina Takayanagi Barnet, Jorie Johnson, Cheryl Patton McManamy, Robin Bergman, Felice Regan, Phyllis Ewen, Carole Stone, Chris Mesarch, Dora Lee Hsiung, Judith Baker, Kate Schaal, Maria Forte, Mary Ann Kelly, Milena Pribis, Muriel Angelil, Pam Martell, Polly Doyle, Roz Shirley, Ruth Ginsberg-Place, and Sue Trent.

The exhibition will be open to the public, at no charge, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The display area is located on the ground floor of the Federal Reserve Bank building at 600 Atlantic Ave., next to South Station.

What you're insuring

People who take out mortgages are often approached to buy "mortgage life insurance" — a policy designed to pay off the balance due on a mortgage should the mortgage-holder die. The policies seem inexpensive because of their relatively low premiums — but are they a good buy?

To answer that question, the term "mortgage life insurance" has to be defined. True mortgage insurance pays off any mortgage balance due should the borrower default. It is not life insurance. Often the lender requires such insurance.

Most of what is called mortgage insurance, however, is really decreasing term life insurance, in which the annual premium stays constant while the face value of the policy (death benefit) gradually declines. The decline in death benefit roughly parallels the decline in the mortgage principal.

Though it's called mortgage insurance, that kind of policy is simply life insurance, although if it's issued by the same bank that issues the mortgage the premium may be lumped in with the monthy mortgage payment.

A more common form of term insurance, "renewable and convertible term," has a constant death benefit and a rising premium, reflecting decreased life expectancy. Its main advantage is that it permits a young breadwinner to afford large death benefits for a family with young children.

Which of these types of insurance is right for you? Decreasing-term insurance may have its place, but should not be used as a basic life insurance for the family breadwinner, since in effect you will be reducing the size of your policy each year. And inflation tends to make any insurance program less adequate each year.

CU prefers renewable-term as the mainstay of an insurance program, and recommends it in most cases. But decreasing-term insurance may make sense in two cases.

Chiropractic for Health

by Dr. David G. Rutman, Chiropractor

A young man is considered healthy if 12% of his body weight is fat. A young woman is considered healthy if 25% of her body weight is fat. The balance of the body's weight consists of muscle, bone, blood and other tissues. Obesity occurs when these fat percentage limits are exceeded. A very muscular person may be overweight according to standard tables but would not be considered in bad shape s long as the amount of fat in the body stayed within limits.
The shape you're in definitely determines the shape you are in. The shape you are in depends on your spine and proper posture keeps your spine in good shape. The person who knows the most about your spine and its relation to your nerves and health s your chiropractor. Chiropractic deals with the relationship between your spine and nervous system as that relationship affects the restoration and the maintenance of your health. DR. DAVID G. RUTMAN, CHIROPRACTOR. 4593 Washington Street, Roslinda.e, or call 323-5022 for an appointment. We are available three nights a week.

CHIRO TIP:
Before starting an exercise program, anyone over thirty-five should take an exercise stress test.

Police news

NEWTON — A 21-year old Newton man was arrested and charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon after he allegedly ran down a Connecticut man with his car early Sunday morning.

Police arrested John Mildner of 63 Bowen St. at 1:35 a.m. in connection with the incident. Robert Spellman, who was reportedly struck by the car and thrown in the air, escaped serious injury.

Mildner also allegedly ran after Spellman with a tire iron after an argument. Spellman, who refused medical treatment, received only minor scrapes and bruises, according to police.

Police also arrested Ronald Hagar, Jr., 22, of 43 Union St. Newton in connection with the incident. Hagar, who allegedly attempted to strike Spellman with a beer bottle, was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Newton Police officers reportedly saw Spellman struck by the car in front of the Baptist Church at 848 Beacon St. According to a witness, Spellman was walking on Beacon Street with his girlfriend when he was harassed by Mildner and Hagar driving by in a car. Spellman reportedly told the two men to "get lost."

As a result, Spellman tangled with Hagar and Mildner. Police arrived on the scene after receiving a call of a disturbance in the area.

An undetermined amount of cash, a portable television and other valuables were stolen from a Hollis Street home over the weekend, police said Monday.

A burglar reportedly entered the home breaking a first floor screen window. Police are investigating the robbery. A robber also made off with several watches, a radio, camera and pens.

A robber ransacked a Winchester Road home over the weekend, police said Monday, and entered the home by forcing a storm door open.

A 28 year-old Waltham man was arrested Sunday for allegedly attempting to forge a prescription for 60 valiums. Police arrested David Ball of 53 Calvery St. at the Hubbard Drug Store on 425 Centre St.

Ball allegedly called the pharmacist at the drug store, posing as a local doctor, and requested the prescription. According to police, the suspicious pharmacist made a call to the doctor who denied ordering the prescription.

When Ball reportedly arrived at the drug store to pick up the prescription, police were on the scene and placed him under arrest. Newton Detectives William Mahoney and Frank DeVito made the arrest. Ball was charged with uttering a forged prescription.

Daniel P. Bradley of 35 Blue Hill Rd. was arrested outside the South Pacific restaurant on Beacon Street after police received a report from five Newton men. The men were allegedly harassed by Bradley as they were leaving the Jade Island restaruant on Waltham Street police said.

According to a police report, the argument resulted in a bitter exchange. Bradley, driving the pickup, allegedly rammed the vehichle with the five men several times after a chase on Chestnut St.

Garden in Woods to train volunteers

FRAMINGHAM—A free training course is being offered volunteer naturalists in exchange for half a day a week working with the Education staff at the Garden in the Woods, Framingham this fall.

The course will run from Tuesday, Sept. 15 through Oct. 20 and includes a variety of interpretation techniques and leadership exercises. Work with the staff will continue through Nov. 30.

Interested volunteers should call 877-7630 or 237-4924, Garden in the Woods, New England Wild Flower Society headquarters, Hemenway Rd., Framingham 01701, for information and registration.

The Society is now registering for fall courses, which include wild mushroom identification, autumn propagation workshops, solar greenhouse seminar, asters and goldenrods, basic landscape design, basket weaving, marketing nature photography, field sketching and painting, wild edibles, lichens, and many field study programs. A special Autumn in New York—Botanical Gardens Tour is also offered.

Call for information and brochure.

Newton women help plan for 50th scholarship ball

BROOKLINE—Hebrew College Women's Association launched plans for its 50th anniversary Golden Jubilee Scholarship Ball at a recent garden party at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Katz of Newton.

The ball will be held at Temple Mishkan Tefila in Newton on Sunday evening, Nov. 1. For 50 years the ball has benefitted students wishing to pursue higher Jewish education at Hebrew College, Brookline, and its subsidiaries, the Prozdor (high school department) and Camp Yavneh, the summer camp combining outdoor activities with Hebrew studies in an atmosphere of Jewish living.

The Hebrew College Women's Association was founded in 1931 to support the library and scholarship aid to worthy students of Hebrew College.

Shirley Kahn and Evelyn Katz, both of Newton, had head the committee for the benefit ball. Sylvia Kaufman, also of Newton, is president of the organization.

Temple Emanuel Couples plan dance, study group

NEWTON—Temple Emanuel Couples Club will hold its first social event of the fall on Saturday, Sept. 12 in the community hall of the temple, 385 Ward St., Newton.

Joan and Seymour Ziskind are program chairmen and a late supper is being planned by Ryta and Lou Israelson. George Gold's Orchestra will provide dance music. Admission is be reservation only. Call Edith and Herbert Sobol at 244-1432.

Edith and Arthur Sahl, book study chairmen, announce that the book to be used this year is "Judaism and Christianity: The Differences", by Trude Weiss Rossmarin. Couples members are invited to participate and meeting dates will be published soon.

Newly elected officers and new members of the executive board for the year are: President, Evelyn and Aaron Cohen; first vice president, Lilyan and Al Berkowitz; second vice president, Dorothy and George Miller; treasurer, Bernice and Morris Kravits; financial secretary, Edith and Herb Sobol; recording secretary, Edith and Arthur Sahl; corresponding secretary, Sylvia and Arthur Mintz and Ruth and Robert Mitchell.

Executive board: Bernice and Marvin Berkowitz, Diane and David Feinzig, Dorothy and Irving Gordon, Honey and Morris Gordon, Frances and Sam Goodman, Cele and David Kaufman, Florence and Henry Lever, Mildred and Victor Resh, Winnie and Donald Segal, and Selma and Hans Seligman.

Bentley offers course for women entrepreneurs

WALTHAM—A practical skills development course for women entrepreneurs will begin at Bentley College on Sept. 24, running once a week through Dec. 5 and focusing on the problems and opportunities of women in small business. Sessions are sponsored by Bentley's Small Business Resource Development Center and Center for Continuing Education, and the regional office of the Small Business . Administration

The course, "Exercising the Option of Self-Employment," will be taught by professionals in taxation, marketing, management, accounting and legal issues. Discussion topics will include use of public and private sector resources, internal financial controls, business planning, evaluating competition and capital needs assessment.

Participants will develop their own marketing research plans and receive counseling on a functional individual business plan.

Registration will be limited to 35 participants. For more information or to register, call the Small Business Resource Development Center, Bentley College, 891-3433 or the Center for Continuing Education, 891-2135.

Retired Men open club year

NEWTON—The Retired Men's Club of Newton will hold its first meeting of the 1981—82 year on Sept. 10. Dr. Louis Anappole, a club member, will speak on "Speed Reading."

At a second meeting on Sept. 24, Frank C. Bennett will show movies of his trips around the world, entitled "Wilderness Wandering."

The Retired Men's Club of Newton is composed of retirees of this city and its surrounding areas, who meet on alternate Thursdays in the Newton Highlands Congregational Church, Lincoln and Hartford Streets. Meetings start at 9:30 a.m. with light refreshments. There are also side clubs for bowling, bridge, golf, financial, travel, music and hobbies.

During the last season the club brought in more than sixty table top radios, which were repaired and given to local nursing homes and shut-ins.

For more information about the club, call William E. Nast, president, at 244-7394. All retirees are welcome.

Engagements

Roth-Tichnor

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Roth of Auburndale announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Ann, to Michael Lewis Tichnor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Tichnor of Newton Centre.

Miss Roth is a graduate of Newton South High School and Boston University. Mr. Tichnor was graduated from Newton South High School, the University of Pennsylvania and Boston College School of Law.

A November wedding is planned.

Sowsy-Bloom

Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Sowsy of Newton announce the engagement of their daughter, Gail Ellen, to Dr. Richard Jay Bloom, son of Mr. William Bloom of Worcester and the late Mrs. Anne Bloom.

Gail Sowsy

Miss Sowsy is a graduate of Newton South High School and Northeastern University School of Nursing, where she received her R.N. and the baccalaureate degree. She is studying for her master's degree at the University of California, San Francisco, and is a staff nurse in the neo-natal intensive care unit at Stanford University Medical Center, Palo Alto, Cal.

Dr. Bloom is a graduate of Worcester High School and the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. He was graduated from Harvard Medical School and is a surgical resident at Stanford University Medical Center, Palo Alto, Cal.

A July 1982 wedding is planned.

Counseling service needs volunteers

NEWTON — Family Counseling Service in Newton, a United Way agency serving nine west suburban towns, is currently recruiting volunteer home visitors for the Parent-Child Home Program.

The program uses a curriculum of carefully selected books and toys to foster a special kind of verbal and social-emotional interaction between very young children and their mothers. It is part of a national network of such programs based on the Verbal Interaction Project in Freeport, N.Y., which has been chosen as an exemplary program by the U.S. Department of Education and the NEA on the basis of its highly successful research results.

Home Program families, whether referred by social agencies or self-referred, must fall below certain income and education levels to be eligible. The ultimate goal of the Parent-Child Home Program is to enhance the educational potential of the children involved, as well as to promote good parent-child relationships within the families.

Home visitors bring books and toys to each family and "model" their use as learning tools during weekly or twice-weekly half-hour visits. They need not have prior training or experience in a related field, although these are helpful.

Four training seminars for all volunteers will be held at the Newton office of the agency on Sept. 23 and 25 and Oct. 1 and 2, from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. In addition, home visitors receive group supervision for an hour and a half each week during the program year from staff social workers.

The program year is 23 weeks long and runs from mid-October to early May, excluding school vacations. The average time commitment per home visitor with an average caseload of two families is four to six hours per week, including travel and supervision.

Although many volunteers participate simply to feel useful or because they enjoy working with young children, an increasing number of home visitors are using the experience for career exploration or in order to stay involved in human services or education while raising their own families. Home visitors range in age from early twenties to early eighties, and include both single and married people.

Family Counseling - Region West serves the towns of Brookline, Newton, Waltham, Wayland, Natick, Sherborn, Sudbury, Weston and Wellesley, and, in addition to the Parent-Child Home Program, provides professional service to families and individuals with social or emotional problems.

For further information call the program director Peg Espinola, at 965-6200.

Some facts that will curl your hair.

If you've been thinking about giving yourself a home perm, there's something you should know. The reason perms curl your hair is because they literally rearrange the molecules within the hairshaft permanently. Whether you end up with soft waves or frizz depends on how, and how much those molecules are rearranged. At our salon, our stylists are trained in the chemistry of permanent waving. They don't take it lightly. Before each perm, you can ask them to analyze your hair to be sure it can take the chemical change and come through it beautifully. So if you want the curl and easy care of a perm, come to our salon. We recommend perms by Redken; the scientific hair care company. So don't risk your hair's beauty. Come into our salon and make a permanent change—for the best!

Falmagne promoted at Clark University

NEWTON — Rachel Joffe Falmagne of Newton has been named a full professor at Clark University.

Dr. Falmagne holds bachelor's and doctoral degrees From the University of Brussels, her native city. After coming to this country, she conducted research at the Universities of Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Michigan, and later at Rockefeller University. She also taught at the New School for Social Research, before coming to Clark in 1973. She was a visiting scholar at Stanford University 1979-80.

Dr. Falmagne's research interests include logical and semantic development, and concept learning. She has just begun directing a two-year project titled "Analysis of the Development of Propositional Reasoning and Instructional Applications," funded by a $119,876 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Scientist awarded $25,000 grant

BOSTON — The extent to which heredity can influence an individual's susceptibility to cancer is the focus of a study currently underway at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

Lorraine J. Gudas, Ph.D., assistant professor in the division of cancer genetics, has received a $25,000 grant from the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation to pursue her research concerned with determining what role the genetic system plays in combatting cancer and other diseases.

When mammalian cells are exposed to ultraviolet light, x-rays or certain chemicals which act as carcinogens, DNA - the carrier of genetic information - can be damaged or modified in a variety of ways. Normal cells are equipped with enzymes which can repair the damage, but persons lacking these enzymes, or those with a chromosome defect, may be at a higher risk of developing certain diseases.

The diseases in question occur in approximately one-fourth of children where both parents carry any one of the causative genes. Certain types of skin cancers caused by ultraviolet light exposure, for example, have been clearly associated with this breakdown of the DNA repair system. Xeroderma pigmentosum, a relatively rare disease characterized by extreme sun sensitivity and high incidence of skin cancers, occurs when certain enzymes known to repair the ultraviolet induced lesions in DNA are lacking.

Dr. Gudas' laboratory is attempting to identify the DNA repair enzymes and learn how they work by using mutant cell lines that are highly sensitive to agents such as ultraviolet light and x-rays. "We are also trying to determine whether the levels of deoxyribonucleotides, the precursors for DNA synthesis in the cell, play a role in regulating the DNA repair process," Dr. Gudas explains. When these determinations are made, treatment for affected individuals may be possible by developing ways of supplying them with the building blocks they are lacking.

Other childhood disorders stemming from inherited defective genes include: Bloom's syndrome, which is also characterized by sun sensitivity and susceptibility to cancer; ataxia telangiectasia, where children may have an increased risk of death from cancer or infection, nervous system abnormalities, chromosome fragility, and immune system defects; and Fanconi's anemia, which can cause death from infection or leukemia due to chromosome breaks and blood abnormalities.

The Sidney Farber Cancer Institute is one of a network of federally designated comprehensive cancer centers in the nation. The Institute conducts programs in basic and clinical cancer research, provides comprehensive treatment for children and adults with cancer, training and education for future cancer specialists, and community outreach services.

One of the institute's primary sources of private support is its Jimmy Fund.

Youth orchestra needs musicians

WEST NEWTON — There will be two opportunities this fall for children to participate in orchestral activities at the All Newton Music School.

"ANMS Junior Strings" will be an ensemble experience for children ages 8-10 studying string instruments. This ensemble will provide orchestral training and will reinforce concepts studied in private lessons, such as sight-reading, intonation and refinement of bowing skills.

It will meet on Thursdays from 4:15 p.m. - 5:15 p.m. for 15 weeks beginning Oct. 1. Cost is $45 plus an annual $12 registration fee.

The ANMS "Youth Chamber Orchestra" will be a full classical orchestra for children ages 10-14 studying strings, flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon and brass. This ensemble will study music from the classical orchestral literature stressing the disciplines of intonation, tone quality, sight-reading as well as good ensemble and musical awareness. It will meet on Wednesdays from 4 p.m. 5:30 p.m., beginning Sept. 30 for 15 weeks. Cost is $60 plus an annual $12 registration fee.

Both groups will meet at the All Newton Music School, 321 Chestnut Street, West Newton. Call the school at 527-4553 for more information. Registration is now taking place.

"The Joy of Music for the Young" is a new series for children ages 3-6. It is designed to introduce them to the world of music through active participation and discovery. Concepts of pitch, rhythm, melody, tempo and dynamics will be approached through singing, instruments and movement. Children will also get an introduction to basic music vocabulary. Methods of Kodaly, Orff and Dalcroze Eurhythmics will be used.

Classes will meet on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at the All Newton Music School. There will be free demonstration classes on Sept. 23 and 24. The cost for this 15-week course is $55 plus an annual $12 registration fee. Call the All Newton Music School for specific class times. Registration is also taking place now.

New site for drop-in center at library

NEWTON — The Newtonville Senior Drop-In Center invites Newton seniors to visit its new location at the Newtonville Library, open daily from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.

There is a full schedule of programs and activities to suit everyone's tastes.

An exercise class, calligraphy and quilting for beginners are a few of the new fall programs scheduled. If you are interested in any of these programs call or come by the Center to sign up. You must pre-register for these classes.

The Arthritis Foundation of Massachusetts will be presenting a program at the Center on Wednesday, Sept. 30 at 1 p.m. Martha Bryant, from the Arthritis Foundation will be showing a film on arthritis, suggesting exercise for arthritis sufferers and presenting pamphlets on arthritis. A question and answer period will follow the program.

A luncheon is also available daily at the Center. A 75 cent donation is suggested and an advance reservation is required. Call the Center to make a reservation.

If transportation is a problem, arrangements can easily be made providing door to door service.

At the Highlands Center another event for the month will be the celebration of September birthdays on Sept. 9 at 1:30 p.m. Music will be provided by Helen Kenney. Refreshments, will be provided by McDonald's.

Dr. Glenn Glesmann of Newton-Wellesley Hospital's staff will give a lecture on Sept. 23 at 1 p.m. on the proper use of medicines. There will be a question and answer session. The first of our films will begin on Wednesday, Sept. 16, at 1 p.m. All third Wednesdays of the month will feature an informative film.

New programs that will be starting this month are a Spanish class, with Jack Kartez; and ceramics class. Call or drop in to find out the day and time.

Creative writing will begin this fall.

Dates and times of new classes have not yet been determined because the Center will be moving to the Zervas School in early September. Call or visit the Center for details.

Ongoing programs at the Center include the plant class, with Gert Rubin, Monday at 11 a.m.; book review/current events on Tuesday and Thursday at 11:15 a.m. with Dorie Fried; exercise with Gert Dane on Fridays at 9:30 a.m.; bowling, Wednesday at 9:30 a.m.; and bridge, Friday at 1 p.m.

Day care center outlines new fall activity programs

WEST NEWTON — Anthony J. Bibbo executive director of the Newton Community Service Centers Inc. has announced that the agency's fall brochure, outlining the activities to be offered, are in print and will be available for distribution in the coming week.

The brochure highlights the varied child care programs offered on a full and or part-time basis; Saturday camp for youngsters; a wide offering of dance classes to include ballet, jazz, and special offerings for adolescents and adults. Adult and senior citizen events are highlighted as well as the popular youth centers and job bank programs for teenagers.

In commenting on the programs, Bibbo pointed out that the new facility at 492 Waltham Street in West Newton should lend itself to the development of some new and exciting activities under the direction of G. Michael Gardner. A woodworking shop, spacious warm auditorium, and gym facility should enhance programming.

For additional information, visit the centers at their new quarters at 492 Waltham Street or phone 969-5906.

The society accomplishes this goal in part thrught the endouwment of courses in Judaica at universities throughout the United States. Five lecutreships have been awarded this year in Massachusetts and one hundred and twenty nationwide.

Mental Health

"Ghosts"

By Marvin Snider

Do we all see the same thing when we look at an object or share an event?

On the surface it would seem that we do. The fact is that we commonly see things differently, and how we perceive a situation is affected by our past experiences, our interests and our needs.

A person interested in tennis may see it as a game of skill and challenge in which two opposing players match their wits and skill to see which can prevail. Someone uninterested in this game may see it as a boring exercise in which two people bat a ball back and forth over a net until somebody makes a mistake.

To a young person, a wedding ceremony may be a romantic prelude, followed by good food, music and dancing. To the parents of the bride and groom it may be both a happy and sad occasion. It may represent the child's departure from the nest. It may also represent freedom from responsibility, a time to celebrate a happy occasion with family and friends, and having to face their own marriage.

There are a great many things to be seen in one situation. In the flash of a second, we decide what merits our attention and what to ignore. A doctor sees many things in his examination of a patient. He quickly makes judgments about which things to be concerned and which things to ignore.

To the doctor, the patient is highlighted by a series of statistics, measurements, and symptoms. If that doctor were to meet that same person at a cocktail party, the person would be seen in terms of his physical attractiveness and personality; the status of his health would be irrelevant.

Past experience is an important factor in determining what we see. If a person grows up in an environment where there was a lot of criticism and little recognition, that person is likely to be very sensitive to hearing and seeing criticism in later life, even when most other people hearing the same comments would be little affected by what they heard.

People who have had significant deprivations of money, food, and recognition will be very sensitive to picking up clues in later experiences that are suggestive of these past difficult experiences. This is done at the expense of paying little or no attention to what might be of interest to other people.

The awareness that we don't all see things in the same way can be very helpful in understanding relationships and how to keep them constructive. In my clinical experience I find that the major source of arguments is often not over an honest difference of opinion but over different perceptions of the same situation. Each person makes the assumption that what he saw is what the other person saw.

A case in point is the husband and wife who were in an argument about one of them not being informed about some difficulty one of their children was having. The husband was furious at the way his wife was protecting the child by not telling him what happened. It turned out that his wife was trying to protect him from the day-to-day hassles because she felt he was already overburdened with work responsibilities.

The ability to constructively resolve disagreements is enhanced when people take the time to understand from what point of view another person interprets the source of disagreement. The challenge we all face is to deal with the reality that confronts us and to minimize the degree to which we let biases from the past blur our perceptions of the present. Yesterday's reality has a high risk of becoming today's distortion.

If you have a question or topic you feel would be of general interest to the public, sent it to Dr. Marvin Snider, The Institute at Newton, 30 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands, 02161. Copyright, 1981, Dr. Marvin Snider, Director of The Institute at Newton.

Businesses sponsor exhibit

NEWTON — Newton Housewarming-Solar announced the participation of Home Town Bank and Claflin Park Associates as sponsors of Newton Solar Week.

A program of the Newton Citizens Commission on Energy, Newton Solar Week will begin on Sunday, Sept. 13 with a "This Is Solar" Fair and Exhibition at Newton City Hall from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Prominent speakers will discuss and illustrate how solar energy can be used in the home, and Newton residents who have solar installations will describe their experiences. Local solar contractors also will be on hand to exhibit and answer questions on solar and conservation products.

The week-long program will include films and slide talks on greenhouses and sunspaces, domestic hot water systems and solar in new construction, as well as a workshop for do-it-yourselfers.

Some of the speakers to be featured during Newton Solar Week include Robert O. Smith, solar engineer and Newton Energy Commissioner; Keith B. Gross, solar architect; Norman Saunders, solar engineer; Terry Bastian, solar designer; and others.

A special feature of Newton Solar Week will be a Women's Energy Workshop to be led by Stephanie Gibson, a solar architect and interior designer.

A schedule of events for Newton Solar Week is available from the Newton Housewarming office. Call 552-7057.

Brandeis will open adult "Educational Adventure"

WALTHAM — Brandeis University will open its fall "Educational Adventure" in mid-September, with more than 60 Saturday and evening courses offered in the 1981 Continuing. Studies program. Nine study areas will be available on a non-credit basis. The courses, ranging from acting to management to computers to investing to art to music - carry no prerequisites.

"Perennial: An Adventure in the Humanities and the Arts", an interdisciplinary program with a relaxed but systematic approach to contemporary arts and letters, will also be offered.

The teaching staff is made up of Brandeis faculty, visiting professors and other experts. Sanford Lottor is Brandeis director of continuing studies. Further information is available by calling Brandeis' Office of Continuing Studies at 647-2796.

Jogging shoes race for quality

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jogging shoes made by Adidas, New Balance, Nike and Brooks took the highest ratings in an annual magazine survey of running shoes released today.

The worst rated included Fayva, Jordache, Sears and Pro Specs models.

Running Times magazine, which has made the ratings for the past four years, said the overall quality of shoes on the U.S. market continues to rise — along with shoe prices.

Ed Ayres, editor of the magazine, told a news conference, "It would be very difficult to find a good running shoe today for less than $30." The best models, he said, often sell for $50 to $70.

Shoes that go for $15 or less, he said, should be avoided by the serious runner because injuries can result from their prolonged use.

The magazine ranks shoes on the basis of motion control and shock absorption measured in treadmill tests where runners are wired to provide test takers with readings.

The highest — or "gold shoe" — ratings in men's jogging shoes went to the Adidas Marathon Trainer, the Adidas Oregon, the Adidas TRX Trainer, the New Balance 420, the New Balance 660, the New Balance 730, and the Nike Columbia.

The top women's jogging shoes were the Brooks Lady Vantage, the New Balance W420, the New Balance W660 and the Nike Aurora, the magazine said.

The top ratings among racing shoes went, in the men's category, to the Adidas TRX Super Comp and the Tiger Ultimate, and in the women's area, to the Adidas Lady Marathon 80, the Adidas Lady TRX Comp and the Adidas Lady TRX Super Comp.

Ayres said the top categories are chosen on the basis of both shock absorption and motion control, and all shoes given the "gold" rating are considered about equal.

But he said jogging shoes should be bought with individual needs in mind, such as body weight and foot shape, and one brand of the "gold" shoes may not necessarily be the best buy for everyone.

The five worst men's jogging shoes in terms of shock absorption listed, in order, were the Fayva Olympian, the AAU LW 1100, the Pro Specs 447, the Diadora 396 and the Saucony Independent, the magazine said.

The five worst men's models in terms of motion control were, in order, the Pro Specs 293, the Envoy Kangaroo, the Sears 440, the Pro Specs 447, and the Pro Specs 443, the magazine said.

Chaplain named to Wellesley College

WELLESLEY — The Rev.Constance Chandler-Ward has been named chaplain of Wellesley College effective this month.

The Rev.Chandler-Ward joins the college from Grace Episcopal Church, Providence, where she and her husband, the Rev.David Ward, have served since 1979, as the first husband and wife team of Episcopal priests in Rhode Island.

Ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in 1977, Rev.Ward holds both a BA and an MA degree in philosophy and in psychology from Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland. In 1961, she received her masters of divinity from Yale Divinity School, specializing in higher education and research.

The Rev.Chandler-Ward's experience includes three years in a university setting, a year as deacon, followed by two years as acting associate rector and assistant to the rector at St.Paul's Memorial Church, University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

At St.Paul's, she was involved in individual and group counseling of members of the university community, and established an extensive program to educate and develop lay ministers, through a program of the University of the South called Theological Education by Extension. She later worked out a system tying together all lay ministry groups in Virginia.

In conjunction with the staff at St.Paul's, she began a residential community for single adults involving common work, common meals and common worship, and providing an informal gathering place for members of the church and the university communities.

She has lectured and led workshops on such subjects as death and dying, meditation, male and female images of God, intimacy, the working couple, balancing the personal and professional, and understanding women through the Bible. In a series of programs sponsored by the Virginia Foundation for Humanities and Public Policy, the Rev.Chandler-Ward delivered lectures on "Images of Women from Psychology, Philosophy and Theology"; "Perspectives on the Contemporary American Woman"; "Mime for Women"; "The Changing American Family".

At Grace Church, much of her work focused on the city's poor. She counseled street people, taught a class at the Rhode Island School of Design on the people who live on the city's streets, actively supported an inner-city church food bank, and helped to organize financial support for a Catholic group beginning an innovative shelter for Providence's poor.

She and her husband also created the Grace Church Center for the Arts. Through the program, Grace Church provided a setting for dance and theatre performances, discussion groups, communion and healing services and organ recitals.

One of the highlights of the popular noontime series was, "The Uncommon Lunch", an exchange between local painters, sculptors, musicians, architects - artists of all types – and workers in the downtown area.

In 1977, she was presented with the Woman of the Year Award by the Virginia Press Association. In 1980, the Providence YWCA gaver her its Outstanding Woman Award. The Rev.Chandler-Ward, her husband and two daughters will live on the Wellesley campus.

"The Loon" offers fall courses at Newton Arts Center

NEWTON — The Loon and Heron Theater, nationally acclaimed for productions of original theater pieces for children, will be teaching courses this fall at the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, Newtonville.

The actors are professionals who have worked in theater and in education for many years. Their program explores ideas and concepts which are important to children in the world today.

There is still time to register for classes in introduction to theater and the work of the creative arts for junior high and high school students, creative dramatics for elementary school students, the art of yoga and yoga in performing arts for teens and adults and silent theater for teens and adults.

The Loon and Heron Theater will meet the public at the Newton Arts Center's Open House on Sunday, Sept. 13 from 2 to 4 p.m. The Arts Center offers a variety of courses designed for children, teens, and adults. Fall term begins Sept. 21 and continues until Dec. 19. For a free brochure or more specific information, call 964-3424.

Mann will head the group of officials attending the ceremony. The ramp for the handicapped was constructed as Newton's project in recognition of the International Year of the Disabled.

Estes is named Newton Camera Club president

NEWTON — The Newton Camera Club announces that Helen Eddy Estes is the new president of the group and that its 1981 season begins on Monday, September 14 at 7:30 p.m. with mini slide talks by various members.

The club is a community photography group which was organized to assist both beginner and advanced enthusiasts. The Newton Camera Club is affiliated with the New England Camera Club Council and the Photographic Society of America.

Meetings are held twice a month on the second and fourth Mondays of each month, at the Nonantum Branch of the Newton Public Library, located at the corner of Watertown and Bridge Streets in the Silver Lake area of Newton. Watertown Street is Route 16. Workshops, informative lectures on photographic subjects, demonstrations of equipment and processes, and NECCA and PSA programs are features at one or more of these meetings.

In addition, monthly competition on assigned subjects are held by members in good standing. Competitions are broken down into two classes — Class A and Class B, with the latter designed for the beginning and intermediate photographers and the former designed for those who are more advanced. Several times each year the club sponsors field trips and other special activities. For information call: 484-1622 or 924-4792.

19th century Paris photographs now on view at Wellesley College

WELLESLEY — Forty-five vintage prints by the 19th century French photographer Charles Marville on loan from the Musee Carnavalet in Paris will be on view at the Wellesley College Museum Sept. 4 through Oct. 18.

Charles Marville's Photographs of Paris at the Time of the Second Empire shows photographs of the streets of Paris taken mostly between 1852 and 1870 (some a few years later), prior to and during the vast urban reorganization undertaken by Baron Georges Haussmann, Prefect of the Seine for seventeen years during the Second Empire.

This reorganization, which was ordered by Napoleon III to help maintain order and to move troops more easily through the city, was to drastically alter the appearance of the French capital and shape it into the city it still largely is today.

Marville's pictures were commissioned by the municipal authorities to document, through photography, the changing aspects of the city. The new medium had quickly caught on and was, by 1851, officially accepted.

Charles Marville, born in Paris on July 18, 1816 (died in 1878 or 1879), was an illustrator, painter and engraver-turned-professional-photographer at age 35. He brought to his methodical documentation of the architecture and urban landscape of the French capital, as well as to other French sites and landmarks, a level of artistry rarely equaled by his contemporaries.

Due to their aesthetic quality, may believe Charles Marville's photographs rank among the best works of art of the nineteenth century.

What these pictures present to the modern viewer is a rare and poetical glimpse at the Paris of Balzac, Baudelaire, Victor Hugo and Dickens, a Paris which was lost forever in the wake of the industrial age.

The exhibition comprises forty-two original prints for Collodion glass negatives and three calotypes from paper negatives and is organized by the French Institue/Alliance Francaise in New York in collaboration with the Musee Carnavalet. Opening in New York, it was also shown at Yale University Art Gallery prior to coming to Wellesley. This first American one man show of Marville's work is sponsored by the American Society of the French Legion of Honor..

A fully illustrated catalogue is available with introductory essay by Maria Morris Hambourg, a Wellesley alumnae and 19th century photograpy specialist.

The Wellesley College Museum is open to the public free of charge Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 2 to 5 p.m. Gallery talks on current exhibitions are given Sundays at 3 p.m. beginning Sept. 13. Groups of ten or more many schedule special talks by calling the Museum. Access for the handicapped is available and an interpreter for the hearing impaired will be present at Sunday gallery talks on Sept. 13 and Oct. 11. For information, call 235-0320 ext. 314.

Library exhibits features MacDougal's drawings

NEWTON — Anne Ballou MacDougall will show serigraphs and drawings in the Newton Free Library Gallery September 1 through the end of the month.

MacDougall's recent work includes sturdy landscapes of the Far West and delightful interiors, often of house plants and windows. They are inviting scenes, classical in composition, that beckon to the viewer.

The landscapes include a wash drawing, "Sacred Place," depicting boulders, the density of the evergreens, and the mysticism of the sacred spot.

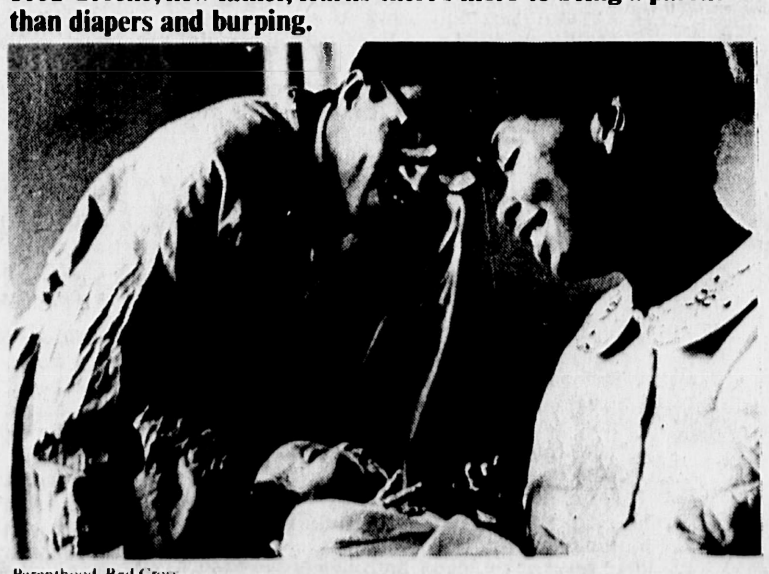

"Dakota Ridge" is a mountainous winter landscape, where the evergreens grow thick and squat in order to survive the climate. They seem to march like soldiers up the ridge. The frozen stream is almost hidden by the deep snow on either side.

MacDougall, who has been awarded fellowships to the MacDowell Colony and the Virginia Center in Sweet Briar, Virginia, has had many exhibits.Most recently she had a show at the Pucker Safrai Gallery in Boston and the Andover Gallery in Andover.

Her work is included in the collections of the Cleveland Museum, the Museum of Fine Arts, the DeCordova, Boston University, IBM New York, and the First National Bank of Boston,and others.

Main library hours are Monday-Thursday 9-9; Friday 9-6, and beginning September 13, Saturday 9-5; Sunday 1-4. For more information call 552-7145.

Drinan calls Reagan victory 'fluke'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Rev. Robert F. Drinan, a former congressman from Massachusetts, said Monday the conservative shift to the right in the 1980 elections was a fluke based on a desire of Americans to be "macho."

"It's a fluke, not a long-term shift to the right," said Drinan, the new president of Americans for Democratic Action.

Drinan, first Roman Catholic priest elected to Congress, vowed Monday the ADA will use a more militant strategy to fight the conservatism of the Reagan administration.

The Rev. Robert F. Drinan

"We're going to be more assertive than ever," due to Reagan budget cuts, he said.

"The president is wrong in transferring $32 billion from the poor to the Pentagon," Drinan said.

"The liberal left agenda is now threatened as never before in our lifetime," Drinan told a news conference. "We have never had a president who wanted to liquidate social programs dating from the '30s, '40s and '50s."

"The Republicans played on the American sense of powerlessness and on their desire to be No. 1, to be macho," he said.

The money to fund social programs exists, Drinan said.

"We have infinite resources. We could pick up $30 billion of new taxes by closing exisiting loopholes — like the three-martini lunch."

Drinan did not seek re-election in 1980.

The Washington-based ADA saw membership swell to about 55,000 after President Reagan was elected, Drinan said.

Newton residents angry over MBTA cutbacks

NEWTON — A group of elderly and handicapped residents are pressing the MBTA to restore a cut in service that has resulted in an additional three-quarter mile walk for local bus riders going to downtown Boston.

The commuters are demanding that the express buses, which leave Newton Corner, be redirected from the South Station terminal to the original Washington Street site in the heart of the downtown shopping center.

MBTA officials implemented the cutback last spring along with a fare increase.

John Hughes, 69, is leading the fight to restore the service cutback which he stressed has posed a "burden" for many senior citizens.

Hughes, a retired sales manager for U.S. Steel, has mounted a letter writing and petition campaign in an attempt to have the buses re-directed to the original site.

With bad weather and heavy bundles, Hughes said many local residents are finding the additional walk "impossible."

"Many of our neighbors go into Boston for shopping and they are not going anymore," he said. "It's too much of a hike from South Station."

Hughes has sent letters protesting the cutback to a score of city and MBTA officials, including Boston Mayor Kevin White and MBTA General Manager James O'Leary.

In addition, Hughes has visited the Council of Aging in Watertown adn the Newtonville Senior Drop-in Center to promote the campaign.

MBTA spokesman Paul DiNatalie said O'Leary was considering the request to restore the service. DiNatalie, who said the cut was implemented as a money-saving measure, did not have specific figures on the amount saved from the cutback.

DiNatalie also noted that the MBTA received a commendation from the consumer advisory panel for the cut which he maintains has improved travel times and increased efficiency.

State Rep. David Cohen (D-Newton) and State Rep. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton, Waltham) have met with O'Leary to protest the cutback.

Both legislators said it is critical that the service be restored especially for the winter.

"In light of the fare increase, I think it is important that they (MBTA) improve service," DeNucci explained.

"Making the move to South Station was a mistake," Cohen said.

Cohen, a leader in the movement for MBTA reforms, also contends that MBTA officials cannot document the savings from the cut of the downtown bus loop.

Leathersmith Bloom's work in Newton exhibit

NEWTON — David Bloom, leathersmith, creates bags, briefcases, and accessories that are both functional and lovely. His work will be on display in the glass cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Sept. 2-28.

Working in rich suedes, soft, glazed calf and kid skin, and exotic snake skin, Bloom designs, cuts and stitches the leather himself. Many of his creations combine a mixture of colors and textures giving an elegant effect.

Bloom began his work as a craftsman as an apprentice to Kosta Spyropolous, the owner of Kosta's Originals in Belmont. His leather goods have been exhibited in craft shows and shops throughout the country, most recently at the Baltimore Winter Market and at the Fifth Annual American Crafts Festival at Lincoln Center in New York City.

Main library hours are Monday-Thursday 9-9; Friday 9-6, and beginning Sept. 13, Saturday 9-5, Sunday 1-4. For more information call 552-7145.

"Carousel" try outs at Mishkan Tefila

NEWTON — Congregation Mishkan Tefila will be holding auditions for its fall production of "Carousel," directed by Harriet Wilson, Tuesday, September 8 and Wednesday, September 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the temple social hall.

Actors with all levels of experience are encouraged to try out. For information call, 244-2496.

Suburban senior services earn state demonstration grant

BOSTON — Secretary of Elder Affairs Dr. Thomas H.D. Mahoney announced this week that one of five state demonstration grants for innovative services to older people has been awarded jointly to West Suburban Elder Services and BayPath Senior Citizens Services.

West Suburban is based in Newton, and serves several surrounding communities. BayPath is based in Framingham.

The grant, totalling $22,892, will be used to develop an emergency shelter facility and also provide respite care for elders now in the care of family or friends.

September film series offered at library

NEWTON — The Newton Free Library invites the boys and girls of Newton to attend the September series of films at the Main Junior Library, 126 Vernon Street, Newton Corner, (around the corner from the Main Library). The films will be shown every Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p.m., beginning September 1 with "Fingermouse, Yoffy & Friends: Bricks and Boxes", "Golden Fish" and "Jungle Cat of the Amazon". Descriptions of all the children's films are printed in the Newton Free Library's September Bulletin, available in all Library buildings.

A wide range of scheduled events including story hours, creative activities and special programs are being planned by the Children's Librarians and will take place at the Main Junior Library, Centre, Newtonville and Nonantum branches from September 21-25. For more information call the Main Junior Library, 552-7157. Programs and films are subject to change.

CLSI, the Newton Free Library's computer system will be in operation in early October. CLSI is a circulation control system which will facilitate patron access to Library materials.

Since Library users need new cards for this system, they should reregister. Plan to get a new card as soon as possible. For more information about the system, contact Catherine Garoian, Supervisor of Circulation, 552-7145.

The GREAT BOOKS DISCUSSION GROUP: will once again be meeting at the Newtonville Branch Library, 345 Walnut Street, although a beginning date has not been chosen as yet. More information about the group may be obtained by calling Newtonville Branch Librarian Marilyn Kuiper, 522-7162.

All of the Newton Free Library's clubs are free, and all welcome new members. Be sure to read the Library's September Bulletin for news of clubs, films, exhibits and special programs. Bulletins are available throughout the Library system. The Library will be closed Labor Day, Monday, September 7.

Southern college football preview

Young and old expected to lead way this fall

By David Moffit
UPI Sports Writer

ATLANTA (UPI) — A 68-year-old coach and a 19-year-old sophomore are expected to hog the headlines in college football this fall.

The coach is Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama who goes into this season needing only nine more victories (1.7 less than he averaged over the past decade) to become college football's all-time leading winner. The sophomore is running back Herschel Walker of Georgia, leading candidate for this year's Heisman Trophy.

Bryant, entering his 37th season as a head college coach, has three targets this fall. The first, which could come as early as Oct. 17 when the Crimson Tide plays Tennessee in its seventh game of the season, is the 313 victories held by all-time runnerup Glenn "Pop" Warner.

When Alabama wins its eighth game, possibly against Rutgers on Oct. 24, Bryant will tie present leader Amos Alonzo Stagg at 314 victories and the next week, while hosting Mississippi State, Bryant will be going for a record 315th triumph.

Walker, a 220-pounder with Olympic speed, was All-America his first season after rushing for 1,616 yards (despite missing most of two games because of an ankle sprain) to break Tony Dorsett's NCAA freshman record. He was third behind two seniors in the Heisman balloting.

A similar showing as a sophomore, while helping Georgia try to defend its national championship, should make Walker a shoo-in for the Heisman in 1981.

However, Georgia, a perfect 12-0 last year including a Sugar Bowl victory over Notre Dame, isn't even favored to win the Southeastern Conference this season. That role goes to Alabama, which will be gunning for its ninth league crown in 11 years.

Alabama must replace its entire offensive backfield and 10 other starters, including All-America defensive end E.J. Junior. But the Crimson Tide always has such great depth that those losses won't be as noticeable as they would at most other schools.

Georgia also lost 14 starters and Coach Vince Dooley cautions the returning troops "will have to do a lot of growing up in a hurry" if the Bulldogs are to play near last year's standards. Walker, running behind a greener line will be a constant target.

Florida, which jumped from 0-10-1 in '79 to 8-4 last year, ranks with Georgia behind Alabama and since neither play the Crimson Tide, there's a good chance that the winner of their Nov. 7 meeting in Jacksonville, Fla., may wind up as an SEC co-champion.

Georgia needed a 93-yard touchdown pass in the closing minutes a year ago to nip Florida 26-21 and save its perfect season.

Florida Coach Charley Pell thinks Mississippi State (9-2 last season) and Louisiana State (7-4) also rate consideration when talking about possible SEC contenders.

"Three of the last four years, the SEC has produced the national champion and opinion of coaches around the league is our conference will be even tougher in 1981," says Pell. "You're talking about five legitimate contenders for the title. The SEC is a well-balanced league."

In the neighboring Atlantic Coast Conference, the smart money is going with defending champion North Carolina, which has 13 starters returning from an 11-1 team that was ranked No. 9 in the nation.

"I think we can again be a pretty good football team," says Tar Heels' Coach Dick Crum. "We lost some outstanding players (including 'Famous' Amos Lawrence who rushed for more than 1,000 yards four straight seasons) but I believe we have some young kids who are capable of doing a fine job for us."

Maryland, 8-4 a year ago, should be North Carolina's toughest ACC rival. The Terps only have four returning offensive starters but one of those is tailback Charlie Wysocki, whom Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne calls "one of the finest running backs in the nation."

The only other ACC teams with winning records last season (both barely in the black at 6-5) were North Carolina State and Clemson. State could have the league's best defense with nine starters returning but Coach Monte Kiffen calls his running attack "very much a question mark." Clemson returns 18 starters but was wracked by injuries during the spring.

Florida State, coming off a 10-2 campaign, again figures to be the top Southern independent.

Bob Cosgrove scores first run for Kings.

Kings softballers connect for Muscular Dystrophy

Joe Feeney, one of the organizers and self-proclaimed director of the event, smiled deviously when asked the all-important question of "Who's winning?"

"We are," answered Feeney, a member of the Kings Department Store's employee team, without hesitation. "We're showing those executives how this game of softball is played."

A little conceit or at the least overzealous bravado? Not really. It was all in good fun. The event was a softball game between the employees of the Kings Newton Store and the front office company executives, i.e., the presidents, vice-presidents, heads of personnal, etc.

More importantly, however, was the reason behind staging the game at Watertown's Boyd Field. It was to benefit Muscular Dystrophy, a charity which the entire Kings chain has taken to its heart over the years.

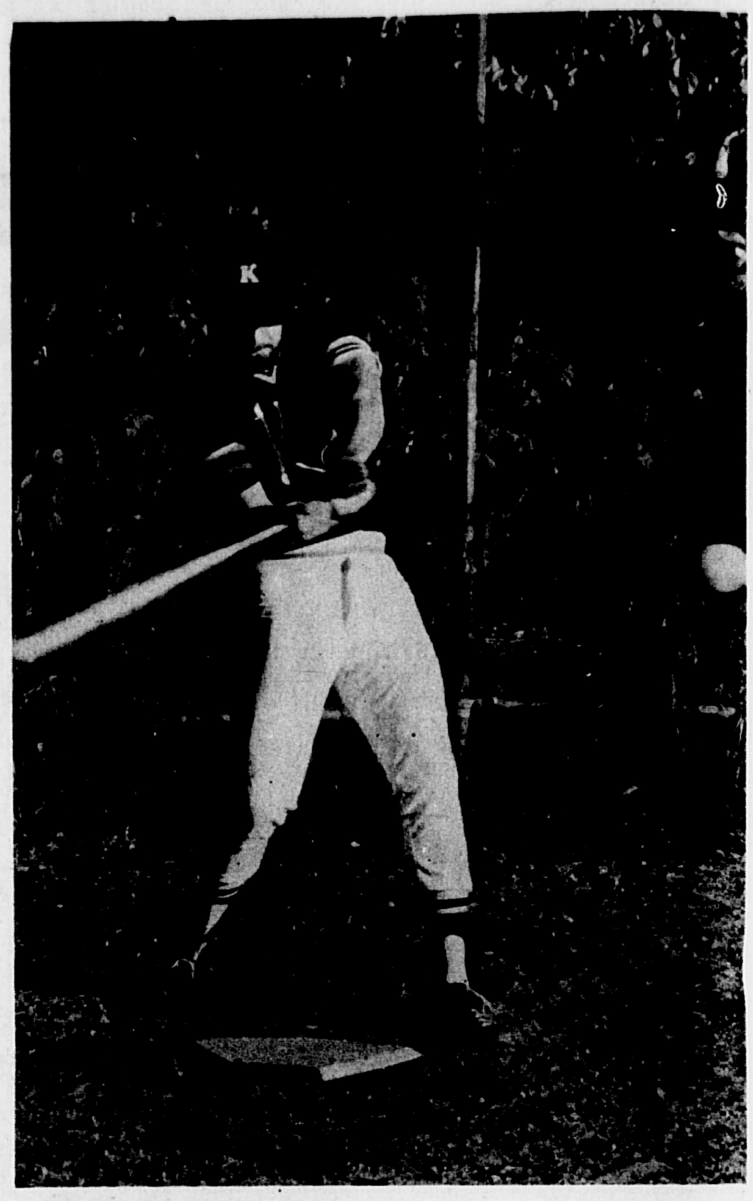

"The game is fun for us to play," said Feeney. "It gives the employees and executives an opportunity to interact; it's a fun event; and it promotes good morale amongst the company. But the most important thing is raising some money for the charity. That's really what we're here for."

Feeney said that between $300 and $400 will be raised from Tuesday night's game. There was no charge from admission, so all of that money came from the proceeds acquired in the raffling off of cases of beer. During the course of the year, the local Kings Store also raising momey for Muscular Dystrophy through picnics, cookouts and other company functions.

"Muscular Dystrophy is the main charity of the company," said Feeney. "Just last year all our stores nationwide raised approximately $340,000 for the charity."

Kings, which has more than 200 stores stretching from the East Coast to the Midwest, adopted Muscular Dystrophy as its charity three years ago when it purchased the Mammoth Mart chain, which had contributed to MD for years. "Mammoth Mart was always very big with it, so Kings decided to continue the association," said Feeney.

So with that as a backdrop, more than 30 employees gathered at Boyd Field Tuesday evening and, between occasional sips of a Heinkien or Miller, proceeded to battle it out on the softball diamond. As dusk settled and the contest neared a conclusion, Feeney was right, the employees were crushing the execs. But word had it that the executives had a few tricks — or perhaps 'ringers?' — up their sleeves. No one was conceding just yet.

Bill Hill takes a mighty swing.

Pockwinse leads NAA Lions

Carl Pockwinse is starting his first year as head coach of the Newton AA Lions, but he is no stranger to the players or the program.

The line coach for the past five years, Pockwinse has been with the Lions for 10 years. He started coaching with the D and C team and eventually moved up to the Lions in 1976. Pockwinse is a familiar face to the players and has extensive knowledge of the system.

The system is something Pockwinse would not dare tamper with because it has been so successful in the past 12 years. Nick Pasquarosa was the head coach for the last dozen campaigns and he racked up five championships.

"Why fool around with a winning combination," said Pockwinse. "Nick was the founder of the program and he did a great job. I'm just going to stay with the stuff that has worked for us in the past. I don't plan any major changes at all."

The Lions almost made it six championships in 12 years last season, but they lost in the final game to Belmont by one point to finish one game out of first. The Lions ended at 7-2-1 with the other loss being a non-league setback.

Pockwinse doesn't see any problems making the transition from assistant coach to head coach. "I'm no stranger to the league and I've been coaching for quite a while now," said Pockwinse. "I know most of the kids that have come through the program and the kids know me and habits. There won't be any difficulties. We just have to get it done on the field."

Practices began a week ago Monday, and Pockwinse has his team going through the paces every night from 5:30 to 7:30 at Newton Highlands. The first scrimmage of the season will be Thursday at Newton against Burlington. The Lions are also trying to set up an exhibiton game on Sunday, Sept. 6, but it is tenative.

The Lions will have a rough start playing Waltham in the first game of the season and Belmont the following week. "Its going to be tough starting against that type of oppositon," said Pockwinse. "We're going to have to keep our mistakes to a minimum and play conservative football."

The Lions have only one player returning from last year's team, but he is a valuable player. Quraterback Steve Altman, who started last year, will be back to direct the Lions attack. "Its unusual to have someone of Steve's ability coming back," said Pockwinse. "He will be a great help to the other less-experienced players."

All the other players are coming up from the Lions B team. Garrett Smith is a speedy back that will go both on offense and defense. Chris Pappas and Will Gardiner are also up from the B team and have been impressive.

Greg Duggan and Britt Ryan are also trying out for backfield positions. Paul Cannata, who didn't play at all last year, could be carrying the ball a lot this season at halfback. Peter Murphy is another new back that will help.

If running doesn't get the job done, Altman is capable of passing a team downfield. Altman's receivers are mostly in their first year. Steve Cannata and Steve Kenneally are both new to the end position and the program. Louis D'Attilio and Martin Dubroff are also ends fighting for a starting job.

On the offensive line, Mike O'Brien and John Cappadona are in a battle for the center spot. Steve DiNisco, Matt Johnson and Colin Monihan are all guards. Brian Tempte and Ed McAvinn are tackles up from the B team.

The Lions will rely on McAvinn to be a key man in the defensive line. Paul Cannata has looked good at linebacker and Smith is a solid defensive back.

Despite a 4-0 exhibition season

Patriots downplay importance of preseason record

By Peter May
UPI Sports Writer

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots completed what coach Ron Erhardt termed the most successful exhibition season in eight years Sunday but some of his players downplayed the importance of the team's 19-10 victory over Washington which gave them a 4-0 preseason mark.

"It's really nothing to get excited about," said All-Pro linebacker Steve Nelson, the team's defensive captain. "We may be 4-0 in preseason, but as far as I'm concerned we're 0-0. It all starts next week."

Erhardt called the exhibition season the best since he joined the Patriots in 1973 as an assistant coach. New England did go undfeated in the exhibition season in 1978, the last year they made the playoffs, but Erhardt prefers 1981.

"We have a better attitude. We are more mature and we have better leadership. Overall, we did what we wanted to do, but next week is a different season."

John Smith, last year's NFL scoring leader with 129 points, booted four field goals to highlight New England's victory. Matt Cavanaugh threw an insurance touchdown pass of five yards to rookie tight end to Lin Dawson in the fourth quarter as New England overcame a 10-0 deficit.

The Redskins, who did all their scoring in the first 18 minutes, scored on a field goal by Mark Moseley and a 5-yard scoring run by Joe Washington.

The Redskins did little after that, however, amassing just three first downs and 68 total yards in the second half, most of it under the direction of rookie quarterback Tom Flick.

"We played poorly in the second half. We did some good things early, then we lost it," said rookie Redskins coach Joe Gibbs, whose team finished 3-1 in the exhibition season. "Our defense played well, but it didn't get a whole lot of help from the offense. The one consolation is that it's a loss that doesn't count."

The Redskins, behind a 10-for-13 passing performance in the first half from Joe Thiesmann, came out smoking. They took the opening kickoff and marched to the New England 1-yard line, but were forced to settle for a 20-yard Moseley field goal after Mike Haynes threw Washington for a 6-yard loss.

The Redskins made it 10-0 just 2:21 into the second quarter when Washington slanted off right tackle to cap a 71-yard drive in 12 plays. It was only the fourth touchdown from the Redskins in preseason.

The Redskins would make it into New England territory only two more times, once in the final minutes when the game was locked up. They also helped New England's cause by turning the ball over three times, twice on interceptions.

"You hope by this stage you'll cut down on the mistakes, but you still make them," said Washington, who led the Redskins in rushing with 38 yards in 12 carries. "But we feel we can play with anyone."

The Patriots we not exactly overpowering on offense. Steve Grogan played the first half, Cavanaugh the second, with neither showing anything that might make the highlight film.

"The preseason is the time to learn things," said Grogan, who was 9-16 for 109 yards, including a 50-yarder to Preston Brown. "I never worry about the preseason. I was more concerned about my knees coming to camp and they held up fine. I really feel like I'm stronger and quicker than I've been the last couple of years."

Smith was most of New England's offense, along with rookie running back Tony Collins, who rushed for a game-high 66 yards on 17 carries, most of it coming in the fourth quarter touchdown drive.

Smith converted from 26 and 20 yards in the second quarter, 40 yards in the third quarter and 37 yards in the fourth.

"I really feel like I had my rhythm out there. Last week, I also thought I could've had four. I just hope it stays like that," Smith said.

Erhardt said he felt the team's defense, which has had a tendency in the past to let down at crucial times, was much improved over last year. He said the unit has been together throughout camp and that everyone is more familiar with their roles.

The Patriots open the season Sunday when they host the Baltimore Colts.

Francis says he will be on ABC's roster

By Charlie Green
Staff Writer

FOXBORO — According to former New England Patriots' tight end Russ Francis, he will not return for his seventh National Football League season in 1981, but instead, as rumors had previously indicated, will go to work for the ABC television network as a sports commentator.

Speaking informally in the Schaefer Stadium pressbox during Sunday afternoon's Patriots-Redskins confrontation, the 6-6 Hawaiian said he won't be playing football this year and "it looks like I'll be working with ABC on a regular basis by the end of September." When asked if he was already signed to a committment with the television network, Francis answered, "Yes."

An ABC spokesman at the game would not confirm Francis' remarks, but did say that an announcement can be expected on the matter before the end of next week.

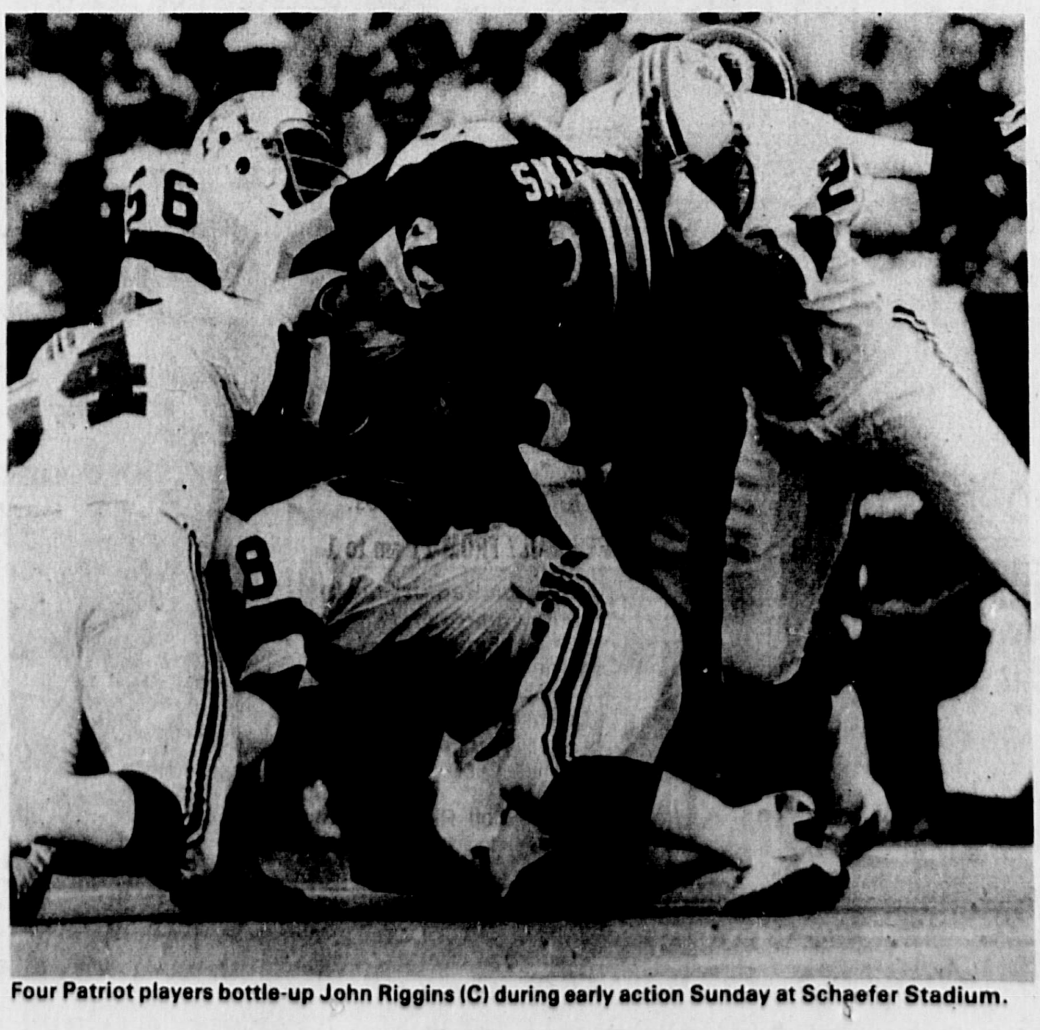

Pats' President Billy Sullivan met with the three-time Pro Bowler for about an hour before the game and emerged from that meeting with news that seemingly closed the door for Francis' return this season, but left things open for the future. "I met with him before the game and I'm not optimistic at all," said Sullivan. "At this point, we are in a 50-50 situation. I'm 50 percent certain Russ won't be back here this year and 50 percent certain he'll be back some day."

Sullivan was quick to say that he was now convinced that the circumstances surrounding Francis' case was not strictly dollars and cents. "It wasn't a thing of bonus money or something like that, we've had several meetings since he retired and all have been amicable. I just wanted to get him to bare his soul and make sure he was making the proper decision."

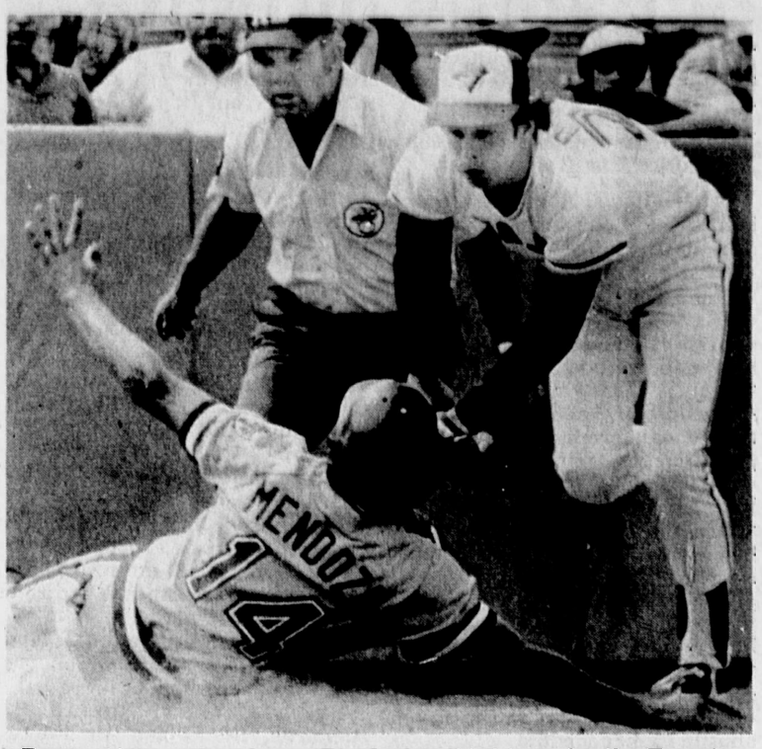

In another contract negotiation, the Sam Cunningham case is starting to perk up. Sullivan reported after Sunday's game that if "Sam were making the decision, he'd be here tomorrow, but since his attorney Howard Slusher is calling the shots, it's 90-10 against us."

"I've been on the telephone with him (Cunningham) a number of times in the past few weeks," Sullivan said. "and each time we've spoke I've gotten the feeling that Sam wants to play. In fact, he told me on the phone last week that he was hoping to talk with Slusher soon, but that the man was in Europe on vacation."

Coach Erhardt had very little to say about either of the situations, stating simply that, "players of Russ and Sam's talent would be an asset to any team, but I have to get the job done with the players I have available and leave the negotiations to Bucko (Kilroy, Patriots' General Manager) and Mr. Sullivan."

Four Patriot players bottle-up John Riggins (C) during early action Sunday at Schaefer Stadium.

Danny Ainge, seen above (R) playing third base for the Toronto Blue Jays, must wait for the courts to decide his professional fate before he can make any decision regarding playing basketball for the Boston Celtics.

A 'new' season for Dalicandro

Sporting a new team name, a host of new faces and possibly a new game day, Coach Fred Dalicandro is preparing his Pop Warner Football Conference team for the upcoming campaign.

The Newton Tigers, formerly the Newton Patriots, opened Players can still try out by reporting to Albemarle Field at 5:30 for a spot on one of the teams. Dalicandro is starting his 20th year of coaching and he had his reasons for changing the team name.

"We decided to change to be in line with the High School (Newton North)," said Dalicandro. "We are also using the high school colors. In the 20 years I've been coaching a lot of the players have gone on to play in high school. I think by using the same name and colors it might help more kids to decide to go on."

The Tigers yet, but are trying to set up two for next week. Medford and Natick are the possible opponents. The Tigers first preseason contest will be on Sunday, Sept. 6, at Metheun.

The switch in game day could come about at the start of the regular season. The Tigers are due to face Brookline and Dalicandro would like to play the game Friday night at Albemarle Field under the lights. "I'd like to play all of the games on Friday night, instea of Sunday," said Dalicandro. "People are busy on the weekend and the players could have other6 obligations. Its something I'm still trying to work out."

Dalicandro will have his work cut out for him trying to put a team together with only two players returning from last year's team. Tom Dalicandro, who started at halfback and linebacker, is the most experienced player returning. Eric Moschella didn't play a lot last year, but he made a strong bid for the starting middlelinebacker job as the season went on. Other than those two, every other player is up from the junior team. Fren Yeradi started every game at quarterback for the juniors and is slated to fill that role for the Tigers.

In the backfield, the Tigers figure to have some good speed. Dalicandro proved what he could last season and Scott Lancilotti will also carry the ball. Otto Mariano is a deceptive back and he could be a big factor in the Tiger offense.

The offensive line has no returners, but several juniors are doing battle for the starting slots. Ed Hernandez and Steve BNickerson are a pair of tackles looking good in the early workouts. Moschella, Mat Keegan, Jerry McDermott and Jeff Helms are also vying for spots on the front offensive line.

Should the running attack bog down, Yeradi has a corp of receivers to throw to. Kevin Casey and Terry O'Brien will both be at the tight end position. Mariano or Dalicandro can be moved out to the flanker spot.

Defensively, Dalicandro would like to platoon as much as possible. "I'd like to get as many people in the game as I can," said Dalicandro. "Its good to have fresh players out there."

Jim Guzzetti and Kevin Dubois will be in the defensive backfield. Tony Kamerman, Rick Lawson and Sam Davis are all first year players and will be fighting for spots in the secondary. Brian Howe is a possible cornerback.

Dalicandro and Moschella give the Tigers a couple of experienced and talented linebackers. Bob Troy is another junior with talent that will help the Tiger defense. The defensive line will be manned by a number of prospects. Rick McMillan and Rich Homan are tackles. Mickey Zagorianakos, Greg Sxampson and Brian Cornell could also see some action on the line.

Jay Cappelo will be worked at defensive back after playing with the juniors. The Tigers had a .500 record last season. "We hope to do better," said Dalicandro. "We lost a lot of close games last season and if we can turn some of those around6 things should be better."

Celts, Blue Jays map strategies

By Charlie Green
Staff Writer

Let the games begin.

In what seemed to be a dormant situation, the Danny Ainge story heated up on Tuesday when the Toronto Blue Jays challenged the NBA Champion Boston Celtics. However this contest won't be settled on the parquet floor of Boston Garden. The only court this battle will see is of the legal variety.

The Celtics answered a restraining order obtained against them by the Blue Jays by launching a countersuit against the American League club in the first public confrontation of the struggle for the rights to the third baseman and former college basketball star.

The Blue Jays struck first by obtaining a temporary restraining order from a U.S. Federal District court, barring the Celtics from further attempts to sign their third basemen to a pro basketball contract.

The injunction granted in U.S. District Court in New York prevents any further talks between Boston and Ainge until Sept. 8 when another hearing is scheduled to consider an interim injunction. An interim injunction would stay in effect until the dispute is resolved in a full hearing.

The Celtic organization, which made Ainge a second-round draft pick this year on the gamble he would quit baseball, almost immediately filed a suit of their own challenging Toronto's right to stop the continuing talks they initiated with Ainge in June.

That action is not slated to reach the courts in Boston until Sept. 9.

"Obviously what the Celtics are doing is simply exercising a defense mechanism," said Toronto President Peter Bavasi in an interview Tuesday night on Enterprise Radio. "Red Auerbach (Celtics president) is being cute. He figures the best defense is a good offense.

"We brought suit against the Celtics, then they filed this. The reason should be obvious. It's in the hands of our lawyers and I can make no other comment at this time."

In the midst of the legal squabble is Ainge, who has become increasingly hesitant about his commitment to baseball since signing an exclusive 3-year contract with the Blue Jays Sept 18, 1980.

A report in a Toronto newspaper published today quotes Ainge as saying that the Celtics have not been bothering his baseball, "but it's hard to be effective if you're not 100 percent committed."

Ainge, in his third season with Toronto, is batting .187 with 11 RBIs.

The deposition filed in New York by the Jays stated that on June 12 of this year Ainge told Blue Jays' management he had changed his mind about a baseball career and wanted to play basketball. However, when he was reminded of his contractual obligation to Toronto, Ainge reconsidered his intentions to leave the sport.

The contract he signed in September of 1980 included a $300,000 bonus for not playing pro basketball and a salary of $50,000 in 1981, $75,000 in 1982, $100,000 in 1983 for a total of $525,000 over three years.

The legal document filed by the Celtics contends the baseball contract "as it purports to prevent Ainge from playing basketball ...is plainly invalid and unenforceable and cannot lawfully be invoked to prevent Ainge from playing professional basketball."

The Celtics' legal complaint also challenges a clause in Ainge's baseball contract which allegedly prevents him from playing basketball for an unspecified period of time, even if he chooses to retire from baseball.

The complaint goes on to state that after being drafted by the Celtics, Ainge notified Blue Jay Vice President Pat Gillick that he wanted to retire from baseball to join the Celtics.

"Gillick told Ainge not to worry about it and that Toronto would release him from his agreement to play baseball,"

Western New England College tastes the real thing

BOSTON (UPI) — The two-a-days begin Friday, the calisthenics, the wind sprints, the coaxing of relaxed muscles into once-familiar positions of strength and readiness.

They are dreaded drills, exercises performed on football fields all across the country. Most athletes would just as soon submit to Chinese water torture.

But Shane McColgan, for one, can't wait for it all to start.

"It's going to be great, I'm really looking forward to it," said McColgan, a senior running back from Pittsfield, Mass. "It's what I've been waiting for and it should be all right."

Eagerness and anticipation should cure the discomfort of the drills for McColgan and his 59 teammates. They are pioneers of a sort, embarking on what is an uncharted course for most of them.

It is certain to be a special squad, a special season, for they are the first varsity football team at Western New England College. The Springfield, Mass., school has joined the New England Conference, an alliance of Division III schools, most state-affiliated.

Opening Day is Sept. 19, home, against Framingham State.

"I really won't know what to expect until I get on the field. I have never even seen a New England Conference game," says head coach Mark Federici, 29, a graduate of the Delaware powerhouses of the early 1970s. "I know the caliber is better than club but to what extent I don't know. My biggest problem is making sure all the kids are at the right position."

During an age of de-emphasis and spiraling cost-, starting up varsity football programs seems to run counter to the times. But last year Lowell joined the varsity ranks and this year Buffalo State and WNEC are new entries.

"The school has been growing, enrollment is out of sight and we have more applications than there are students enrolled," says Federici. "Construction is starting up, the school is on the move.

"I'm ecstatic, it's a great move for the school and the community. It's a great place to get a start and it will give me the experience I need to get up the ladder. I'm very happy with what I have."

Federici, a reserve quarterback at Delaware ("I watched a lot") who later coached Blue Hen (and NFL) quarterbacks Scott Brunner and Jeff Komlo, is in his second year at WNEC. Last year the club team was 6-3, closing the season with five wins.

"Last year, it was a little more serious," says McColgan, who came to WNEC as a sophomore from AIC. "We had two, three hour practices after class, uniforms, trainers, the whole bit. I think we could have played against any of the teams (in the New England Conference) and I think we'll do real well in the league."

Federici, who also was an assistant at AIC and coached a year of high school football in Florida, is realistic about the upcoming season. The first year of any program is one of learning, teaching and adapting. Wins are a bonus — it's nice if they happen but they're not expected.

"I just want to be respectable," the coach says. "After last year, with the club and all, it's a whole different ballpark. We'll play teams much better prepared and the kids will take it more seriously."

Troubles behind him, Barnes thinks basketball comeback

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Marvin Barnes, cleared of a charge he tried to lure his former girlfriend into prostitution, says he'll stay close to his family and far from trouble in his latest comeback to professional basketball.

"I'm trying to work myself so tired, I just want to go to bed at night. I feel pretty damn good, too," Barnes said Wednesday, hours after his ex-girlfriend admitted she fabricated the complaint.

Prosecutors decided not to pursue the case after Marsha Searles said "she made up the incident, that it never occurred and that Marvin Barnes never forced her to prostitute herself," said Daniel Hackett, a spokesman for the attorney general's office.

District Court Judge Victor J. Beretta dismissed the felony count against Barnes, 29.

"We are considering whether to file charges against her for making a false police report," Hackett said.

Ms. Searles could not be reached for comment.

Vice squad detectives arrested Barnes Aug. 9 on a complaint from Ms. Searles, who charged Barnes had repeatedly tried to recruit her into prostitution since January.

Barnes, who spent the night in jail and was released on $5,000 personal recognizance, emphatically denied the charge then and said she had filed the complaint out of anger after he spurned her.

"The lady was intoxicated when she made the charges," Barnes said Wednesday. He said he was putting the whole incident behind him and looking forward to a tryout with the New Jersey Nets.

"I'm a basketball player, I don't know anything about that kind of life," Barnes said in a telephone interview from his mother's South Providence home. "I think too much of black women and women and in general to do that kind of thing.

Trouble has overshadowed Barnes' brilliant basketball skills, demonstrated at Providence College and nearly half a dozen NBA teams. However, the 6-foot-9 forward said he's determined this time to avoid any more detours with the law in his current comeback try.

"I'm getting ready for camp, running 10 miles a day, practicing every day," Barnes said. "I stay in the house a lot and I'm sticking close to my family."

Russian hockey star dies in Moscow auto accident

MOSCOW (UPI) — Valery Kharlamov, a star of the Soviet Union national hockey team since 1969, died in an automobile accident in the Moscow suburbs, Tass reported Thursday.

The 33-year-old forward had just been dropped from the squad that left the Soviet Union Wednesday for the Canada Cup competition.

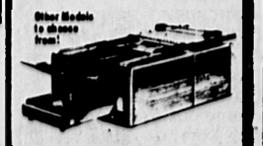

Russian sports fans, especially the women who cheered Kharlamovs rugged good looks, were shocked by his failure to make the Canada Cup team. Tass said he had "failed to stand up to competition with the younger forwards."

Law school names director

Leslie F. Cohen, of Newtonville, has been appointed the director of development for the New England School of Law.

The appointment, made by Joseph G. Bradley, the school's business administrator, will assure continuity for school fund raising and economic development.

Ms. Cohen had been serving as the acting co-ordinator of development since March of this year.

Cohen joined the law school staff in 1977. She served as assistant to the former director of development and as executive secretary from July 1979 until her appointment as acting co-ordinator of development. Cohen attended both Chamberlayne Junior College and Boston University.

Europeans train as astronauts

HOUSTON (UPI) — Nineteen NASA astronaut candidates and two European Space Agency trainees have completed the one-year first phase of astronaut training.

Among the new astronauts were William Fisher, husband of astronaut Anna Fisher, and ESA's Claude Nicollier of Switzerland and Dr. Wubbo Ockles of The Netherlands.

The 19 Americans become members of the U.S. astronaut corps, bringing the total active membership to 79. Their training will continue toward preparing them to be space shuttle pilots or mission specialists.

ESA will decide soon which of its two astronauts will be sent to Marshall Space Flight Center, Ala., for training as a shuttle payload specialist and which will return to Europe for ESA Spacelab training, a spokesman said.

NASA last year agreed to include two European scientists in the astronaut training program in recognition of the contributions ESA has been making by funding Spacelab, a laboratory that will be carried into space by the shuttle.

The graduation means NASA, for the first time in several years, has no astronaut candidates in training. The 1981 astronaut candidate selection was deferred because of changes in the space shuttle flight schedule.

Dr. Franklin R. Chang, San Jose, Costa Rica; Dr. Mary L. Cleave, Great Neck, N.Y.; Bonnie J. Dunbar, Outlook, Wash.; Dr. William F. Fisher, Winter Park, Fla.; Maj. Guy S. Gardner, Alexandria, Va..

Air Force Maj. Ronald J. Grabe, Lakewood, N.J.; Marine Capt. David C. Hilmers, Dewitt, Iowa; Navy Lt. Cmdr. David C. Leestma, Tustin, Calif.; John M. Lounge, Burlington, Colo.; Marine Maj. Bryan D. O'Connor, Twenty Nine Palms, Calif.

Navy Lt. Cmdr. Richard N. Richards, St. Louis; Air Force Capt. Jerry L. Ross, Crown Point, Ind.; Navy Lt. Cmdr. Michael J. Smith, Beaufort, N.C., Army Maj. Sherwood Spring, Harmony, R.I.; Marine Lt. Col. Robert Springer, Ashland, Ohio.

County Bar meeting will be private session

NEWTON — The Middlesex County Bar Association on Tuesday, Sept. 8, will meet in extraordinary session at the home of its president, John F. Zamparelli of Medford.

This meeting marks the first time that this thousand-member bar organization, oldest and largest county bar group in Massachusetts gathers to conduct its business in a private residence.

Zamparelli who also serves Middlesex County as its Register of Deeds explained that the bar group is actively involved in many legal projects. Its directors are intent upon maintaining the momentum of its programs. The prior practice of foregoing a summer session thus has been abandoned.

A record turnout is anticipated, according to Helen Mejan, association secretary, and Claire Buckley Dwyer, assistant executive director. This "in camera" session at Zamparelli's residence is the second departure from normal practice instituted by the Middlesex County Bar Association in recent nonths. In June the bar organization went to Framingham where its regular monthly meeting was conducted. This marked the first instance that the group held a meeting other than in Cambridge.

This session in Framingham set in motion a plan to schedule every fourth bar group meeting in a different area. The October meeting is tentatively scheduled for Lowell.

The concept of conducting meetings outside of East Cambridge and the bar group's headquarters is to encourage attendance as well as to gain exposure for the association in every corner of Middlesex County, a vast geographical area with the largest concentration of population of any county in the commonwealth.

Zamparelli and association executive director William Highgas, Jr. report that membership in the Middlesex bar group has increased appreciably in the past several months as activity within its ranks has expanded.

Included in the agenda for the Sept. 8 meeting are reports of the Legal Workshop Committee; the Junior Workshop Committee; the Junior Bar Section; the Bar Advocates, Inc. and the Legal Clinic and Lawyer Referral &Service. President Zamparelli also will make a special report to the membership.

A catered dinner is to be served and the committee on arrangements is urging members planning to attend the midsummer session to so advise Claire Buckley Dwyer at the Middlesex County Bar Association's headquarters.

Their best wedding gift would be end to controllers' strike

For the couple, who now split their time between Hyannis and Portland, the strike is beginning to dig into their savings. If the walkout continues for another two weeks — all formal indications from Washington indicate these people are no longer government employees — Catino and Birse will both start looking for supplemental income.

"We would have liked to see it resolved sooner," said Birse. "We're disappointed it has gone on this long."

Despite denials by Transportation Secreatry Drew Lewis that there are no secret negotiations between the administration and PATCO, the couple "would like to think there are negotiations behind the scenes."

Last week, Lewis gave some indication that the administration's hard line was beginning to bend. He announced that the Federal Aviation Administration would reinstate any fired striker able to produce persuasive evidence of being coerced by PATCO into taking part in the walkout.

However, the offer meant little to Catino and Birse. "We didn't go out on strike to be able to go back the way conditions are," said Catino.

The couple also condemned the administration for its press releases that have been contrived to "lull the public into a false sense of security."

"Regardless of what the administration says, the airspace is unsafe," asserted Birse. "Although the odds are with you that you'll get wherever you're going, one day sooner or later something disastrous will occur."

"I'm kind of surprised nothing disastrous has happened as yet," he continued.

They both believe that a "major collision" would bring the two sides back to the bargaining table and bring the strike to a quick close.

Since the strike began, there have been several "near misses" and attempts by Canadian Air Traffic Controllers to deny American planes access to Canadian airspace.

According to Birse, the stance taken by Canadian controllers was because of an increased number of planes entering Canadian airspace without approval or the proper "handoff" between the two countries.

Birse also said Canadian controllers were "advising each aircraft entering US airspace from Canada that US airspace was unsafe."

Concluded Catino: "People must think now that there must be obviously something wrong with the system if 11,000 of us are still out. Reagan has just taken a bad stand and is just afraid to lose face."

A child star blossoms again

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - You may be shocked to learn that Hayley Mills, the little darling of so many pictures, is now a fascinating 35-year-old with a couple of sons of her own, a few secrets in her past and a feeling that maybe she has let her career slide too badly.

That last is being remedied — sort of. She is not pursuing the career slam-bang, but she is about to do some things. You will be seeing more of Hayley Mills in the immediate future than you did in the immediate past.

In late fall or early winter on PBS, Hayley Mills will play in "The Flame Trees of Thicka," a seven-part offering on Masterpiece Theater. That is based on a book by Elspeth Huxley, and concerns Miss Huxley's youth in Kenya, which is where "The Flame Trees of Thicka" was filmed.

"I haven't been very aggressive as far as my career is concerned for the last five years," Miss Mills says. "I had it very easy when I was young — there wasn't much competition in those days. Not a lot of child actors around.

"So I swum along rather happily into my 20s, and then I found it difficult to do the right things as a woman. I didn't quite know what to do, what kind of woman I was, what kind of things I ought to pursue. So my career became a bit diffused."

Now that her family life is reasonably settled — she has been with Leigh Lawson for some years — she says, "I've got more time to think about my work and I'd like to work more."

But, of course, she faces the same dilemma that all women who act and have families face. Miss Mills has two sons — 8 and 5 — to consider.

"There is that responsibility to your family," she says, "which must come first. And then your responsibility to yourself to have a career. You're constantly juggling the two."

Looking back on her early life now, she feels that what suffered the most from her stardom was her education.

"I never learned to do long division or any of those things," she says. "I just hope to God that people give me the right change in the supermarket, because by the time I've worked it out, six other people have checked out and they have forgotten my transaction totally."

She says she dropped behind at school when she was young and so school became boring — "it's boring to be at the bottom of the class and depressing to have to stay in and do more homework."

She remembers reading about how F. Scott Fitzgerald had planned a curriculum for columnist Sheilah Graham, with whom he spent his last years. Later, Miss Graham wrote about that curriculum, the list of books that Fitzgerald had suggested she read. He had called it "College of One."

"I tried to read those books on my own," she says. "I was painfully aware of how uneducated I was. That really hung me up, sometimes, so that I became afraid to talk to people, for fear they would find out what an ignorant person I was.

"I used to go off on weekends, with those books. I'd go off by myself... down to Brighton hotels under an assumed name. Silly, you know — I had my initials on my suitcase. I had to make up names that matched the initials. Helen Mathews is one I remember. People would call 'Miss Mathews,' but I would have forgotten what my name was that week, and I'd ignore them."

She never did finish Fitzgerald's College of One, but she has made up for lost time, and lost learning, by reading a great deal.

Now she faces another problem — should she and Lawson let the two boys act? She says they both want to.

"My eldest son," she says, "is constantly dressing up and sticking scabs and boils all over his face and playing old men in school plays. And a few nights ago, when I was putting the little one to bed, he asked for his telephone. I gave him his toy phone and asked him who he was going to call. He said his agent."

So another generation of the Mills family is about to burst on the acting scene — maybe. Meanwhile, Hayley is coming back and that's enough good news for one day. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

HAYLEY MILLS is coming back. "I haven't been very aggressive as far as my career is concerned for the last five years," she says. "I had it very easy when I was young... and then I found it difficult to do the right things as a woman."

Arts fellowship program sets application deadline

BOSTON — Applications for the $5,000 Massachusetts Artists Fellowships in fiction, poetry, playwriting, film, video, music composition, and choreography are now available at the Artists Foundation.

Any artist who is a resident of Massachusetts, over 18 years of age, and not enrolled as a student is eligible to apply to the Artists Fellowship Program. Applications must be completed and returned to the foundation office by 5 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 1. Several fellowships will be awarded in each field. Applications for visual artists will be available in January 1982.

Applicants must submit samples of their work demonstrating a high level of accomplishment. Writers submit up to ten poems, 50 pages of a novel, or one full-length play; filmmakers submit up to two films; video artists submit an hour's worth of tape; composers submit two pieces of music; choreographers submit video tape documentation of up to three dances. Panels of out-of-state artists in each field will select the fellowship recipients solely on the basis of the quality of the work. Project proposals are not required of either applicants or recipients.

The Artists Fellowship Program is one of several programs administered by the Artists Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization in Boston that assists individual creative artists in Massachusetts. The program is supported by funds from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities. Applications may be obtained by writing to the Artists Fellowship Program, the Artists Foundation, 110 Broad Street, Boston, MA 02110; or calling (617) 482-8100.

Choral group needs singers

LEXINGTON — The Masterworks Chorale is now holding auditions for qualified singers with experience in sight-reading and performance preparation.

The chorus is a regional one and draws its members from all of Metropolitan Boston and outlying areas.

Local singers include Janet Dudek, Jean Croll Ewer, Judy Fox, Beth Latz, and Anne Pearson, all from Newton; Michael Appell, and Patricia Browne, both of Watertown; Kaja Autler of Weston; and Stephanie Murphy of Waltham.

The coming season wiill feature the Beethoven "Mass in C Major", the Mozart "Requiem", and "Grand Mass in C Minor"; and the Bruckner "Mass in F Minor," all conducted by Allen Lannom.

To open the season, the Chorale will perform Boito's "Mefistofele" with the Boston Concert Opera under the direction of David Stockton.

Prospective members should attend the Chorale's open rehearsals on Tuesday evenings, September 8 and September 15, at 7:45 p.m., at Temple Isaiah, 55 Lincoln St. (off Route 2A), Lexington. Audition materials will be distributed and appointment times arranged. For information call 964-7739.

The first winner of the Farmer's Market Raffle Basket, Mrs. Bonnie Armer, came to the market on Aug. 18 to receive her prize, a basket filled with fresh contributions from the farmers. The raffle is free and will be held every week at the market which takes place on Tuesdays from 3:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. in City Hall's War Memorial Circle. From left to right: market mistress, Sue King; Julie Armer, Mrs. Bonnie Armer, and Kathy Miller of Brigham Farm, who chose the winner.

Woman took the pill for five months, now paralyzed

STERLING HEIGHTS, Mich. (UPI) — Susan L. Odgers took birth control pills for five months. She is now paralyzed from the waist down.

The suburban Detroit woman, who calls herself "a member of the expendable body count," said her case is extreme. But she said there is no doubt the pill was at least a contributing factor in her paralysis.

"Doctors call me a freak case, even though it's estimated that one in every 2,000 women taking the pill suffers a blood clotting disorder severe enough for hospitalization," she said. "How many freak cases do they need?"

Miss Odgers, who is confined to a wheelchair, began taking the pill in 1975 when she was a student at Oakland University. A doctor at the student medical clinic on campus prescribed the contraceptive.

"I was a healthy young woman, and the doctor said it would be OK for me to go on the pill," she said.

But five months after she began taking the birth control pills, Miss Odgers began to suffer from cramps in her legs. Since she was working part-time as a waitress, she attributed the pain to hours of standing while at work.

About two weeks later she awoke one morning with painful spasms in her legs and stabbing pains in her abdomen. She was rushed to a hospital.

She has not been able to move her legs since.

Doctors said the paralysis stems from a blood clot that lodged in an artery. The pill was at least partly to blame for the clot's formation, doctors testified at a trial in U.S. District court in Detroit.

In July 1980, a jury awarded the woman $3.8 million in damages in a suit against Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp., of Raritan, N.J. — the manufacturer of the contraceptive she had been taking.

However, no money has reached the woman. The federal judge in the case decided he may have erred in instructing the jury and has ordered a new trial.

In the meantime, Miss Odgers is living on Social Security benefits. She has a degree in English and communications from Oakland University.

Half a dozen times a month, the paralyzed woman speaks to groups about the problems of the handicapped or the hazards of the Pill.

Newton men to lead studies at Harvard "College for Retired"

CAMBRIDGE — Two Newton men will lead study groups this fall when the Harvard Institute for Learning in Retirement reconvenes on Sept. 12.

More than 200 members of the Institute, retired or semi-retired persons returning to school, may choose from 26 study groups in such fields as art, history, literature, psychology, language, sociology and politics which meet weekly either in the morning or afternoon.

Edward Landy will co-lead a group focusing on "Terrorism and Revolution" and Edward Josephson will coordinate a seminar on "Energy Alternatives." Members of the institute volunteer to lead study groups or participate actively as students.

For a fee of $90 per term, members may enroll in as many HILR study groups as they wish and may also take one course at either the Harvard Center for Lifelong Learning or the Extension School. Harvard libraries and athletic facilities are available to members.

Applications are now being accepted for the fall term. Applicants are requested to submit applications before Sept. 12. For more information, call the Harvard Institute for Learning in Retirement, B-3 Lehman Hall, Harvard University, Cambridge, at 495-4973.

Hard life for women miners

SAINT CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — After waiting on tables, Linda Sabo has found coal mining a piece of cake — despite the pits, the rats and the pinches from co-workers.

A veteran of more than three years at Saginaw Mines, Mrs. Sabo, 38, is now the only woman at that mine and one of the few women miners in Ohio. She hasn't just adjusted to the grimy, back-bending work 4 ½ miles underground. She likes it.

"Waitressing is much harder," she says. "You have to take a lot of abuse from the customers and the boss. They make you work overtime all the time, for no extra money."

As a waitress, Mrs. Sabo says, she cleared $65 every two weeks, plus maybe another $100 in tips. Mining six days a week, she takes home $725 every two weeks.

There's the sense of pioneering too. "It's funny how people react," she says. "I had to fill out some papers for a loan and the guy goes, 'What do you do?' I said, 'I'm a coal miner,' and he says, 'No, not what your husband does. You!'"

Mrs. Sabo met the man who became her third husband at the mine. She says meeting Ray Sabo was one of the fringe benefits of the job.

"I had to win him over," she says. "The first time we met he told the boss, 'Don't ever put me with her again.'

"It was a Saturday and we were doing dead work, clean-up. It was my first time and the boss was overly protective. You have to lift these heavy bags of rock dust and throw it around, but he told me to just sit down and have some coffee.

"I kept saying 'Shouldn't I be doing something?' and he said, 'No, no.' So, I'm sitting there combing my hair and he (Ray) is sweating his head off throwing dust around."

Mrs. Sabo remembers that Ray "was the only man who never cussed at me. He never mistreated me. If someone else pinched or slapped, he told them they were rude and ignorant."

Mrs. Sabo, the mother of six children, has gotten good at coping with rude behavior. She laughs about "dirty old coal miners" and shakes her head over the men who "turn off the lamps on their hats so you can't see who it is. Then they run up behind and pinch you on the breast or the rear."

When a miner on a earlier shift hung a nude pinup in the shuttle car, Mrs. Sabo just penciled in a dress. She nicknamed the miner who insisted on calling her "Puss," "Boots."

She mostly avoids going to the bathroom underground, however, where the ladies' room consists of a curtain in an unused section.

"At first it bothered me, especially the language," Mrs. Sabo says. "But you got to let it pass. If you called a man out everytime something happened, the mine'd be down all the time. I laughed it off or stayed away."

She added, "You can understand it (the harassment). Coal mining is known as a tough job. When a woman is doing it, that makes the men look less tough.

"It is tough. But women can do the work with all the automation they have. In the pick and shovel days maybe not. But now they can." One female co-worker, Mrs. Sabo says, stayed in the mine until she was five months pregnant.

"I've got muscles," she says, rolling up a sleeve. "At first I had to drag the 50-pound bags of rock dust, because I didn't like to ask for help. Now I can just chuck them up under my arm and throw it out. I can carry two on my back."

She is practical about other inconveniences in the mine too — the rats, for example, "some of them the size of small pups." She feeds them meat out of her lunch sandwich and recites what the "oldtimers" told her.

"Rats mean the area is safe. I'm happy to see them. It you see rats running, you better get going, too."

Trash Talk

The mandatory newspaper recycling program has earned a profit of $8,055.25 during its first half year of operation.

The net profit is calculated as follows: From January-June, 1981, 1,378.42 tons were recycled. Newton was paid $15 for each ton, for a total of $20,676.30. Newton also saved $25,418.06 by not disposing of the newspaper as refuse. (It cost $18.44 in fiscal year 1981 to dispose of refuse. Payment of this disposal fee was avoided for the 1,378 tons of newspaper recycled.) The sum of these two figures, ($46,094.36, is subtracted from the collection costs of $38,039.11 (labor costs only are included in this figure). The net savings is $8,055.25.

The newspaper recycling program has been profitable since it became mandatory this past January. The reason is simple — tonnage recycled increased from 815 tons in January-June, 1980 to 1,378 tons for January-June, 1981, an increase of almost 70 percent. With no additional collection costs, since no additional manpower was necessary to implement the program change, and with increased revenues as well as increased savings of avoided hauling fees, paper recycling has become profitable.

To recycle your newspaper, simply place them in double brown grocery bags or securely bundle them and put them at your curbside 3 to 4 feet either side of your refuse on your regular trash day.

Fix wallpaper tears easily

A small tear in an otherwise good wall of wallpaper is maddening, because it ruins the whole effect of the wall. Tears are hard to repair so they can't be seen, but sometimes it can be done. The use of a roller helps.

You will need white glue and a wallpaper seam roller. It will take about five minutes.

1. Hold torn paper away from the surface of the wall and apply a light coat of white glue. Spread the glue with your fingertip.
2. Place the torn tab against the wall surface, gluing it in place. Slide it to position it as exactly as possible.
3. Now roll the repaired area with a seam roller.
4. Wipe away any excess glue on the wallpaper surface with a damp cloth. Be careful not to get the wallpaper wet as you wipe. "Fix-It-Fast" (c) Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., 425 N. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

FURNISHED MODELS ALMOST READY
Last chance to purchase at pre-opening prices!
At $250,000 to $350,000 the new homes at The Gables are an extraordinary value. There are many reasons.
LOCATION—The Gables, on Dedham Street at Murley Lane in Newton, directly adjoins the Charles River Country Club. The single family attached homes are clustered in small groups among the trees to take full advantage of the natural beauty of the site.
SPACE—The distinctive two and three bedroom homes are extravagant by contemporary standards. For example, the three bedroom unit offers 3100 square feet of living space; the smallest two bedroom, 1900 feet—unusual, when you consider that most new two bedroom houses contain less than 1200 square feet.
AMENITIES—Every home has its own attached two-car garage. There are large decks and/or terraces. Each home has a full basement, many with large windows and/or sliders. The private clubhouse looks out on an expansive sunning area, swimming pool and tennis courts. Combined electronic/guardhouse security protects you.
Pre-opening prices will be available only until the furnished models are ready. Astute buyers have already purchased 20 of the 29 currently available units. For complete information visit the sales office on the site—Dedham Street at Murley Lane in Newton. Open 9 to 5 daily, or phone (617) 969-0200.

CREATIVE HOME FINANCING

If you're in the market for a home of your own, you're probably in the market for a home loan, too. A conventional mortgage is usually the first kind that comes to mind, but other alternatives do exist.

These include • privately insured loans • GI-insured loans • FHA/HUD-insured loans • Farmers Home Administration loans • urban "homestead" loans • "house-to-house" loans • variable interest rate loans • graduated payment mortgages and • HUD's subsidized homeownership program.

To learn about these possibilities, talk to a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® before you start looking. REALTORS® are real estate professionals, and forms of financing are part of their expertise. They can tell you what's available in your community, and how you can qualify.

Orchestra to hold auditions

NEWTON — The Newton Symphony Orchestra will hold open auditions on Saturday, Sept. 12 at the All-Newton Music School on Chestnut St. in West Newton.

All interested musicians in the community who wish to join the orchestra for its 1981-82 season are welcomed and encouraged to audition.

The NSO will present a six-concert season. Among the selections programmed for this year are Stravinsky's "Petroushka" Suite, the Triple Concerto by Beethoven and Brahms' Fourth Symphony.

Interested persons should contact NSO Manager Eric Benjamin at 527-2664 for information and audition time.

Obituaries

Camilla (Gorgone) Medaglia

WEST NEWTON — Camilla H. (Gorgone) Medaglia, 65, of West Newton, died at Newton-Wellesley Hospital last Wednesday after a long illness.

Born in West Newton, Mrs. Medaglia lived there all her life. She belonged to the Ladies Sodality of St. Bernard's Church.

She was the wife of the late Joseph D. Medaglia, and is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Russell (Rose Marie) Yerardi of Framingham; her mother, Mrs. Josephine Gorgone of Auburndale; four sisters, Mrs. John (Josephine) Carroll of Waltham, Mrs. Jack (Frances) Jones of California, Mrs. Clyde (Ann) White of Maynard and Mrs. Paul (Jane) Perruzzi of Auburndale.

She is also survived by four brothers, Salvatore Gorgone and Frank Gorgone, both of West Newton, Vincent of Ohio and Joseph of Wellesley; and two grandchildren, Michael and Christine Yerardi.

Services were held from the Brasco and Son Memorial Chapel, Waltham, on Saturday followed by a funeral mass at St. Bernard's Church. Burial was in Newton Cemetery.

Evelyn (MacNeil) Feeley

NEWTON — Evelyn M. (MacNeil) Feeley, 88, of Orchard St., Newton, died last Tuesday at Newton—Wellesley Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Newton, Mrs. Feeley was a retired nurse.

She was the wife of the late Edward J. Feeley, and is survived by three sons, Kenneth J. of Newton, Paul E. and Warren J., both of California.

She is also survived by a sister, Leslie MacNeil of Brighton; two brothers, Miles MacNeil of Stoughton and Leo MacNeil of New Hampshire; and one grandson, David P. Feeley of Arlington. She was also the sister of the late Chester MacNeil.

The funeral was held from the MacKay Funeral Home, Newton, on Friday with a funeral mass in Our Lady of Help Christians Church, Newton.

Anna Downing

Funeral services were held Saturday for Anna M. (MacIsaac) Downing of Newton Centre who died last Wednesday.

Mrs. Downing is survived by her husband, Leo F. Downing and several children; Leo F. of Needham, Hugh Douglas M. of Medway, J., Carol A., Lee Ann and Jean Marie Downing, all of Newton, Nancy L. Gabelman of Florida, Sue Pilkington of Newton, and Ann Marie Kelly of Blackstone.

She is also survived by four sisters and brothers; John MacIsaac of W. Roxbury, Sara Reid of N. Harwich, Eunice Bolinger of N. Attleboro and Josephine Pepper of Newton; eleven grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held from the Martin E. Conroy and Son Funeral Home, Newton, on Saturday with a mass in the Sacred Heart Church.

Donations may be made to the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Building Fund, 2014 Washington St., Newton, 02162.

Leo T. Dwyer

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — A funeral mass was held Tuesday for Leo T. Dwyer, a Newton Highlands resident who died Saturday.

Mr. Dwyer was the husband of the late Mary (Phelan) Downing, and is survived by two children; Natalie P. Moore of Arizona and Robert L. of Needham. He is also survived by 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

A funeral mass was held Tuesday morning at Our Lady Help of Christians Church.

It is his wish that, in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to the Jimmy Fund, American Cancer Society, The Cured Cancer Society or the Cardinal Cushing Home for Children in Hanover.

Aiming for well-made clothes

By LeRoy Pope
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Skilled sewing is a dying art in the manufacturing world and because it is, Rose Russo, an expert needlecrafter, has pioneered a new profession in the fashion industry.

Mrs. Russo, director of Pellon Corp.'s Apparel Research Center in New York, is one of perhaps a half dozen "fashion technologists" and certainly one of the first and best known.

The fashion technologist came into being, she said, because of changes in technology in garment making and the declining importance of the professional needlecrafts because large numbers of trained needle workers no longer come to the United States from Europe.

"In the manufacturing world, sewing is a dying business," Mrs. Russo said. "Today's young people interested in fashion and garment manufacture don't want to end up as factory workers who sit and sew. They want to be successful business people or go to Paris and become famous designers."

Mrs. Russo has some strong feelings about standards in garment making today. "Many garments are so badly made that it's disgraceful," she says flatly. "There is no construction and no quality."

While many manufacturers don't like her assessment, they pay attention because she is expert not only in design, but in pattern making and the techniques of garment construction — and in sewing.

A large number of them are clients of Pellon, an affiliate of Carl Freudenburg Co. of Weinheim, Germany, which engages in research and makes some 400 products for the knitted and woven apparel industries around the world.

The part of this product line Mrs. Russo is concerned with is fusible non-woven interfacing. It's a field of fascinating intricacy. Pellon alone makes 300 of these interfacings that are fused to strategic areas of garments to improve their shape and wearing qualities and make garment manufacturing easier.

With the vast proliferation since World War II in the number of fabrics made from both synthetic and natural fibers, Mrs. Russo explains, it became imperative to mate the right interfacing material to each fabric and each design. If that isn't done, the designers' work can be wrecked and the manufacturer can end up with shoddy garments or big losses due to spoiled materials.

Garments must have these interfacings in collars, sleeves, lapels, pockets, strategic seams, waistbands, shoulders and other areas. This reinforcement and shaping used to be done by hand by expert needlecraft workers. Now the interfacings are fused to the cloth components on machines.

Pellon, a leader in this technology, operates 11 domestic and 10 foreign centers to serve fabric and garment makers and train their people. One center is located in Hong Kong, from where so many garments are imported into the United States. The research for new technology is done in Boston and in Germany.

Mrs. Russo spends a lot of time traveling to the various Pellon affiliates around the world.

A seamstress from her earliest years — "I had no choice, really. My mother was a seamstress who made all our clothes, my father a tailor who insisted we sit after school and watch him at his art." — Mrs. Russo studied fashion design at one of New York's better trade schools and then went up through the Seventh Avenue mill working with a drawing pad, needle and scissors. She became a sample maker as well as a designer.

The sample maker in a Seventh Avenue house adapts a designer's drawing to cloth on the "sample model," a man or woman whose physical proportions are true to a standard size, then makes a prototype garment that can be accurately projected to a whole range of sizes.

From Seventh Avenue sample maker Mrs. Russo graduated to "first pattern" maker for McCall's, making the first pattern from a sketch.

She attracted enough attention in the garment world so that when, 17 years ago, Pellon opened its New York research center, the first of its kind, she was engaged immediately. ——

Rose Locicero Russo was born in Palermo, Sicily, which surprises a lot of people because she's a blonde.

She explains how that happened: "My father traveled around when he was young and met my mother up in northern Italy near the Austrian frontier. There are lots of blonde Italians up that way who are originally of Austrian or Hungarian extraction."

Her father brought his family to Brooklyn when she was a child. More children came until there were nine in all — eight of them girls.

Mrs. Russo has no children. She and her husband, who is a boss cargo checker on one of biggest piers on the Brooklyn waterfront, are really big on homemaking though.

They have a large house on Breezy Point, a prestigious area that juts out into the Atlantic near Coney Island. They entertain a lot and Mrs. Russo has quite a reputation as a gourmet cook. She says she thoroughly enjoys preparing dinners for anywhere from a dozen to 30 guests.

"I'm naturally more at home with the Italian cuisine," she said, "but I've made a pretty conscientious study of cookery around the world and will try almost anything once." ——

She and her husband have a 20-foot powerboat and are fond of the sea. They bought the boat with the idea of doing a lot of salt water fishing, "but my husband's enthusiasm for that was dampened some after he caught a pesky sand shark that was hard to get off the hook and back in the ocean," she said.

She has one other hobby — poker. She says she acquired a love of cards from her father but poker playing is endemic on Seventh Avenue among garment executives of both sexes.

Acquaintances say Mrs. Russo plays one of the smartest hands on the avenue although she is hardly a plunger. She said she definitely has been a winner over the years both against social competition and the professionals at Las Vegas.

"But," she said, "I think the most I ever won at any one sitting was about $1,000. I really play for fun." adv for sept 11 or thereafter

How to get free advice

(UPI) Each year government agencies and private organizations put out thousands of pamphlets, periodicals and reports.

These publications contain advice on how to save on utility bills, fight inflation, kick the cigarette habit, use cosmetics and hair dyes safely, keep your pet healthy and just about anything else you might want to know.

But how can we find out about these publications and where to obtain them?

Or, you might hear or read about new regulations coming from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Federal Trade Commission or another of the many federal agencies.

But how can we contact these agencies and learn more about the services they provide?

"Yours for the Asking" has the answers to both questions.

The book focuses on six categories: food, housing, energy, money, health and general consumer information.

It lists more than 700 free items as well as toll-free hotlines, periodicals sold by subscription (free samples are often available) and other information.

The authors suggest that you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope when requesting non-government publications.

In the food category, for instance, there are pamphlets available on "Health and Diet Foods," "Calling a Halt to Salt," "Some Questions and Answers about Food Additives," "The Food Colors" and "Holiday Food Safety."

You can also find out how to get booklets on "How to Buy Food," "Unit Pricing," "Food Marketing Without Frills" and "Ten Ways to Save on Food." You can even obtain a pocket-size price-comparison slide rule.

There is a special section of interest to the older citizen. The material available includes "Thinking About Retiring" and "Estimating Your Social Security Retirement Check."

There is general consumer information on "Sales Tactics," "Shopping for Advertised Specials," "Bait and Switch," "Complaint Referral Guide," "Tips on Refunds and Exchanges," "Warranties: There Ought to Be a Law... There Is," "Tips on Guarantees and Warranties" and more.

You can also obtain free citizen-action materials. For instance, you can get a pamphlet on the Freedom of Information Act and how to use it.

The Public Citizen Tax Reform Research Group will send a sample copy of its monthly newspaper People and Taxes.

For a copy of the book, send $5 to "Yours for the Asking," P.O. Box 19367, Washington, D.C. 20036.

The book is published by the non-profit Center for the Study of Responsive Law. Your $5 will help provide funds for the center's important work. Next year, the center will send a free update to everyone who buys the book.

To quote consumer advocate Ralph Nader from the back of the book: "We invite you to select from this collection of information and prove for yourself that some of the best things in print are free." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Filet your own fish

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Catching fish has always been considered more fun than cleaning them, but when you filet 'em Jackpine Bob's way the cleaning is pretty simple.

The filet way produces nice fish "steaks." It's faster than the old way of scaling a fish, it gets rid of most of the bones and it removes the skin that contains most of the "fishy" taste.

Advice on this comes from Jackpine Bob Cary, who ran tongue-in-cheek for president on the Independent Fishermen's Party ticket last year and piled up several dozen votes, promising to stop inflation of the price of fishworms.

He's an expert outdoorsman, managing editor of the weekly Ely Echo newspaper in northern Minnesota's wilderness canoe country and former outdoor editor of the Chicago Daily News.

Cary gives very simple instructions:

"First thing to do is corner the fish. You need a fish. How you go about that is your business.

"Next you need a knife with a sharp blade, preferably a flexible blade. It's hard to clean a fish with a screwdriver."

'You need a knife with a sharp blade...It's hard to clean a fish with a screwdriver'

Then Cary gets down to business:

"With the sharp knife, we do what we call filet, removing as much of the edible portion of the fish as possible while leaving the less desirable portions such as bone, skin, scales and intestines."

There are some devotees of the angling sport who say the head is the best part of the fish, and Cary says "those people reportedly have remote northern Scandinavian origins."

"Those of us with other background recoil at eating a fish that is looking back at us," he says.

Now Cary tells how to filet the fish — in chronological order:

—"Take the sharp knife and make a cut behind the gills, down to the backbone.

—"Now, insert the knife in the middle of the back by the dorsel fin, which is the stickery fin with the spikes that have now pierced the fingers of your left hand. Make a slice forward toward the head, parallel to the dorsel fin, as close to the backbone as possible and kind of bouncing over the rib cage.

—"With the left hand hold this slice of skin and meat back, which reveals the rib cage.

—"Now cut back toward the tail, carefully slicing along the rib cage, separating the meat from the bones, and thence on down to the tail, but do not cut through the last skin connection with the tail.

—"Now, with the skin side down, meat side up, shove the filet knife between the skin and meat by the tail. Grasp the skin at the tail with the left hand and simply lift, while holding the knife down firmly at an angle against the skin with the right hand. Move the knife forward at an angle against the skin. This separates the filet or steak from the skin, which leaves a nice chunk of boneless fish steak.

"If, in the process, you run into a whitish knuckle joint, somehow your knife has wandered off course and you are now fileting your right forefinger.

"Go to the medicine cabinet, apply necessary bandaids and repeat the original steps over again — more carefully."

—Rinse off the filets in running water or a container of water and they're ready for the pan, or the oven.

It's simpler than it sounds. With some practice, you simply go slice, slice, slice and the job is done.

Cary says very few people scale fish any more, although some people will scale them and then filet them. ——

He adds some miscellaneous bits of information about fishing in general.

"Some of the guides in this area are taking an active interest in counteracting acid rain," he says. "They're going to use Rolaids for bait."

Another angle, he says, is that an in-depth study shows "numerous instances where people who never go fishing have died of cancer, and we've concluded that not going fishing causes cancer.

"So go fishing and be healthy.

"Another little personal piece of news. My neighbor, Toivo, was out fishing the other day and caught the fish that always got away — and it wasn't as big as we thought."

Leone

Cambridge-based firm doing the work, and MBTA engineers.

At the Order of the Sons of Italy on Adams Street Monday evening, where Leone and his brothers Frank and Angelo were members, the mood was somber.

"As a man, he was one of the finest men you've ever met," said Antonio Marini of Leone. "Any favor you could ask him - he was one who would always help you out."

Marini, who last saw Leone on Sunday, Aug. 22, said he would see him at the lodge on the average of three or four times a week.

"He was a terrific, wonderful man," said a friend who asked not to be identified. "He was very quiet. I never had a problem with him."

Michael Caira, a bartender at Zepps, recalled Leone as a devoted family man. "He was the type of man who would put in his eight hours and then spend the rest of the night with his wife. If anything, some relatives might come over for a glass of wine."

PSYCHOLOGY TODAY

Are quorum juries unfair

The traditional American jury consisted of 12 people whose verdict had to be unanimous. No more. Since a 1972 Supreme Court decision, states have been free to accept verdicts cast by a quorum vote of, say, nine or 10 out of the 12. More than half the states now use quorum juries in at least some types of cases to speed up trials and cut costs.

If you were the defendant in a trial, would it matter to you whether the jury's decision was unanimous? It should, if a new study using 28 simulated juries is any guide.

Sociologist Robert Foss, at West Virginia University, has found that the way the two kinds of juries deliberate is different enough to raise questions about whether their verdicts are comparable.

Foss's simulated juries consisted of student volunteers. Half of the juries were told to reach a unanimous verdict, half a quorum verdict in which 10 people concurred.

The case they heard in a taped summary concerned a businessman who had been shot by a colleague; the jurors were to decide whether the shooting was deliberate or accidental. To add a further complication, Foss prepared more and less ambiguous versions of the evidence, and half the juries of both kinds heard each version of the case.

Every jury selected a foreman, who polled the members before starting and every 15 minutes afterward. Foss declared a jury hung if it reported no change in the distribution of its opinions over three votes or if, after twice being told to keep trying, it made a third request to declare itself hung.

All 14 juries operating under the quorum rule reached a verdict, but only eight of the unanimity-rule juries did. (Every jury that reached a decision found the defendant guilty.)

Of the hung juries, five had heard the more ambiguous version of the case. The reason for the results might appear to be that under the unanimity rule.

Pioneer Women to hold program on Jewish Contributions to Jazz

NEWTON — Jewish Contributions to Jazz, 1940-1970 will be the program topic for the combined opening meeting of the Kesher and South Shore Chapters of Pioneer Women, on Sept. 13, at the Zionist House, 7 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston. The meeting, open to the public, will begin with a coffee hour at 1:30, followed by the program promptly at 2:30.

David Marshall, a serious student of jazz, will discuss the history of jazz and play selections by Jewish musicians and composers. He will also talk about Jewish influence in the promotion of jazz.

Pioneer Women, cooperating with Na'amat, its sister organization in Israel, supports educational, vocational and child care services which improve the quality of life for Israelis through a broad network of 1500 installations. In the United States, Pioneer Women supports all programs for the advancement of human rights, and is an authorized agency for Youth Aliyah.

Kesher and South Shore Chapters of Pioneer Women are newly formed groups of young working and professional women. For further information about Pioneer Women and the Sept. 13 meeting, call Ariella Kohen, 326-3238; Naomi Fleishman, (1) 963-7517; Sandra Meister, (1) 344-2255.

Drop-in center seeks life stories by seniors

NEWTON CORNER — If you are over 60 and would like to "Write Your Own Life Story," the Newton Corner Senior Drop-In Center, located at the Lincoln-Eliot School, 191 Pearl Street has an interesting program for you.

All senior citizens must have a wealth of stories that enriched their background, for instance, immigrating to this country, moving West, South, World War I, their reactions to movements, trends, and modern times.

Senior citizens have interesting incidents, recollections, or stories in their heritage that should be preserved for their children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews or friends. This wealth of background, of ancestors, of history may be lost forever unless they are written down and recorded for present and future generations.

A group of senior citizens will meet every Friday afternoon at 1 p.m. at the center beginning Sept. 18. Suggestions and instructions will enable the enrollees to use their abilities, in recalling and recounting past experiences, following a step-by-step guide for non-professional writers. Bring two notebooks, a pen and a red pencil.

For more information contact Barbara Burns, coordinator at the center at 969-8030.

His feet don't hurt, but shoes are nearly worn out

BOSTON (UPI) — Swapan Kuman Chatterjee says his feet don't hurt, but after hiking his way through 56 countries in seven years, his 22nd pair of walking shoes is nearly worn out.

That doesn't bother him, though.

Chatterjee, a 26-year-old former machinist from Calcutta, India, said Monday he'll keep on walking on his mission for friendship, world peace and love.

"I want to meet all the people," he said in an interview. "I want to make peace ... Everybody wants peace."

His plans don't stretch very far into the future, said Chatterjee, dressed in blue jeans and a red, white and blue jacket. But he said he will "most probably" head for New Hampshire when he leaves Boston in another week or so.

Most people he has met have been friendly, he said, pulling from his backpack a file of letters from some of the public officials he has visited and who have written their praise of his efforts.

Other officials — like Gov. Edward J. King, who met Monday with Chatterjee — have simply talked with him about his walking mission.

In the United States for more than one year, Chatterjee said he has paid for his travels by reading palms and selling small paintings.

On occasion, he receives donations from people who have heard of him and his travels. And sometimes, he stays for several days with religious groups, even though he said he does not belong to any particular religious organization himself.

"I love all religions," Chatterjee said.

He said he even loved the people who tied him to a tree in a village in the African nation of Zaire and threatened to kill him.

"It was an ignorance," he said. "They didn't know."

Injunction denied

Renters shield intact

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The city, at least temporarily, will be allowed to enforce a recently passed ordinance that will protect renters from short-notice condominium conversion.

Judge Elizabeth Dolan of Middlesex Superior Court Cambridge has denied a motion for a preliminary injunction to prevent the city from enacting the law by the firm converting Chestnut Hill Gardens into condominiums.

With the ordinance in effect, no tenant in the city can be evicted from their rental unit without two years notice.

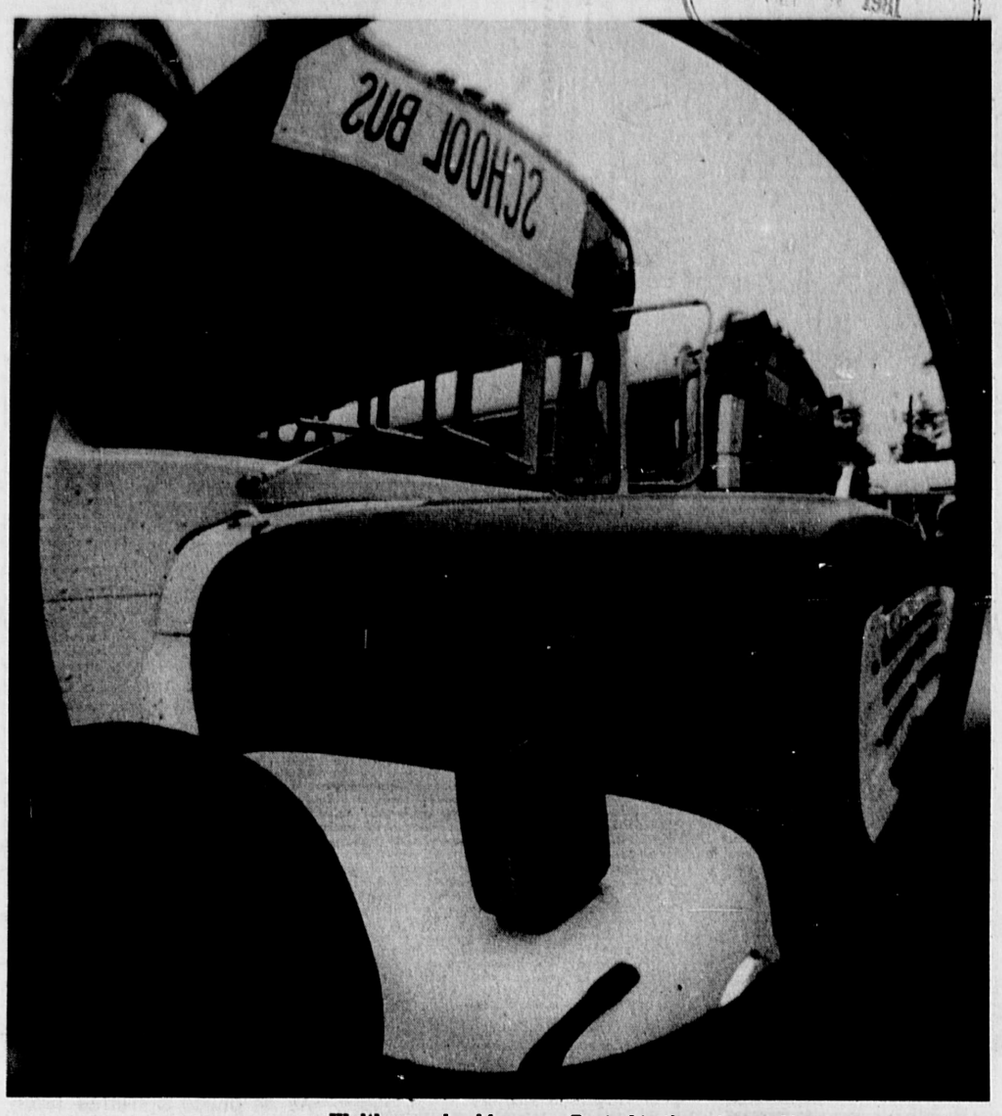

The case now proceeds, without an injunction, until the legality of the ordinance is ruled upon.

Attorney Roscoe Trimmier, representing CHR General Inc., said he did not know at this time if his client would request for a speedy trial.

Alderman Ethel Sheehan, who co-sponsored the law with State Rep. David Cohen said she was "elated" at the outcome of last Wednesday's hearing.

"In my opinion, it means that the ordinance is in effect for everybody," noted Sheehan. "This was just an attempt to stop

Bells toll for 12,000 students

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The new clothes, with the price tags still attached, are strewn across the desktop along with the notebooks and the writing implements.

Today, they breathe life.

When school bells rang this morning, close to 12,000 Newton children (less 3,400 from five years ago), began putting pencil to paper for the first time this school year.

And as post-Proposition 2½ students, they will be forced to do with a little less than their older siblings had in school.

As a result of the tax-cutting measure and declining enrollment, Claflin Elementary school and Weeks Junior High have closed their doors; Newton South becomes a four-year high school; and 52 teachers were dismissed from their classrooms.

By way of the consolidation, Charles E. Brown (formerly Meadowbrook Junior High), scene of a recent fire, will house just the seventh and eighth grades when that school opens on Sept. 11.

All the city's 16 elementary schools, except for Cabot, opened their doors today for kindergarten through sixth grades. Cabot, due to the Claflin School consolidation, will open Friday for all students at 8:45 a.m.

At Bigelow Junior High school, seventh graders reported today at 8:25 a.m. while eighth and ninth grade students will return at 8:25 a.m. on Thursday.

Day Junior High school opened for seventh graders this morning, for eighth grade students at 9 a.m. on Thursday, and for ninth graders at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

At Warren Junior High school, seventh grade students reported at 9 a.m. while eighth and ninth graders were expected at 1 p.m.

Due to a summer fire, Meadowbrook Junior High school will not open until 8:45 a.m. Friday for seventh graders and new ninth grade students. On Monday, Sept. 14, all students are expected to report at 8:45 a.m.

At Newton South High school, ninth and tenth graders returned at 8 a.m. today while eleventh and twelve grade students will report at 8 a.m. Friday.

Newton North High school sophomores returned today while eleventh and twelve graders return at 8:15 a.m. Friday.

Mayoral challengers debate

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The two challengers attempting to unseat incumbent Mayor Theodore Mann - Alderman Mark White and Waban Businessman Bruce Marquis - stressed their differences on the issues in a 90-minute debate last Wednesday night.

Both White and Marquis began the forum at the Eliot Church, which attracted about 60 local residents, by criticizing Mann for not attending the debate. Mann, seeking his fourth term, had a "previous commitment."

Marquis, who described himself as a "manager" rather than a "politician," emphasized the need for improved public education. White, an alderman for the last eight years, stressed his experience in dealing with municipal issues.

Both Marquis and White appeared relax and confident as they addressed residents and took questions.

"I have never run nor held political office," explained Marquis, former director of corporate affairs for the National Easter Seals Society, "Yet I am running against two people who take pride in being a politician and must take responsibility for the present shape of Newton."

Noting that public education represents 45 cents of every tax dollar, Marquis said the school system must provide basic skills programs for students that are "not the best and brightest."

White, a Boston attorney, disagreed. He argued that the school system should continue to provide specialized courses and programs. In addition, White said that the school system should be given a standard percentage of the municipal budget.

Criticizing Mann for his lack of leadership in the bitter budget battle between the School Committee and aldermen this year, White said: "We should determine a set percentage of the budget that the school committee should get, maybe even by ordinance, and allow them to spend it as they see fit."

White said that one of the top

9th grade now in South

Back to school with Proposition 2½

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — If half of the students at Newton South High School feel as though they are lost it is because half of the student body is testing new ground.

As part of the city's school consolidation program, Newton South became a four-year school when homeroom bells sounded today. With the influx of ninth graders in addition to the new class of tenth grade students, 738 of the 1498 high schoolers were probably looking for classroom numbers beyond the first bell.

Ninth and tenth grade students were scheduled to report at 8 a.m. today while eleventh and twelth graders will begin school on Friday.

"There will obviously be an initial adjustment," remarked Principal Van Seasholes. "But I have felt all along that the addition of ninth graders would be a positive thing."

Van Seasholes noted, however, that the school will be "more crowded" than it has been in past years yet not quite as cramped as it was in the mid-sixties when the student population creeped over 1,500. Last school year, Newton South housed 1,140 students.

"The problem," said Seasholes, beginning his ninth year as principal, "is that many classrooms used previously for special rooms are going to be returned to classrooms."

Although Newton South did not lose any teachers because of Proposition 2½, the tax cutting measure did slash the number of additional teachers Seasholes expected to add to his staff.

Frank says Reagan plan failing

By Art Illman
Staff Writer

WALTHAM — U.S. Rep. Barney Frank Monday night said the Reagan administration is not ready to present "a single piece of significant legislation which the president is pushing to get through Congress."

Speaking in front of a filled Golding Auditorium at the first meeting of the Brandeis University Democrats, Frank said that the Reagan Administration lacks positions on social issues, the economy, and defense.

Frank charged that President Reagan's successes to date are those which he planned before he took office. On tough issues that have arisen since, Frank said, he does not have a good record.

Frank said the administration's argument one year ago to generate more revenue by cutting taxes assumed that people would go out and work harder.

"There is no support to this theory. Bush and Anderson said you can't cut taxes by enormous amounts, raise defense spending, and then tell us you'll balance the budget. Reagan's administration has now admitted

At 26, he's enjoyed a long career in government

Gary Barron relaxes in his Newton home

By Donna Lombardi
Staff Writer

WABAN—Gary Barron, 26, has always been more than a few steps ahead of the crowd. A maverick from the word go, Barron has had an exciting career in government and politics, which began at the age of 13 with his involvement in a presidential campaign, and peaked with a national appointment when he was barely 20.

Now a special assistant to the national director of the Small Business Administration in Washington, D.C., Barron returned home recently to Waban for a brief visit, and remembered his active years in Newton.

When I was 18, I wrote a list of objectives," says the 1973 Newton South High School graduate."One of them was to be in the White House by the age of 35. I hit it at 20."

Perhaps more laudable is the fact that Barron was a full-time college student when he was named director of the Freedom of Information Office, appointed by Henry Kissenger. "I had a lot of academic reshuffling to do," says Barron, who attended classes until midnight at the American University in Washington, D.C. where he earned a degree in political science.

Barron managed that National Security Council position for 3 ½ years; it was an exciting time for him,entering the White House at such a young age."It was demanding. It's a place that does not tolerate mistakes. And there's pressure to perform."

However Barron admits that he might like to return. "I'd like to be back there now," but quickly adds that he's enjoying his work with the SBA, which is a service agency that reports directly to the president. "I like being in the agency, learning about the bureaucracy, and receiving rather than giving messages."

Barron smiles as he remembers the days when he was a student at South high school, making deals with Mayor Theodore Mann and the City of Newton, to benefit Newton youth.

Barron smiles as he remembers the days when he was a student at South high school, making deals with Mayor Theodore Mann and the City of Newton, to benefit Newton youth.

Barron organized the Newton Youth for Change Commission so that teenagers could use the high school parking lot as a legitmate meeting ground. "There was no place for kids to go," remembers Barron. So he took it upon himself to meet with the mayor and discuss the situation. An agreement was made. Teenagers were allowed to stay on the site until 10 p.m. provided there was no car racing, a favorite past time, or excessive noise.

In turn, the city provided them with adequate lighting, rubbish barrels and signs. "The mayor kept his end of the bargain," says Barron, who still communicates regularly with Mann.

In addition, Barron was a member of the Newton Youth Commission and the Mayor's Committee on Drugs and Alcohol.

But his interest in politics began even earlier. At the age of 13, Barron spent hours each afternoon and evening working on Richard M. Nixon's presidential campaign in 1968. At Nixon's Boston headquarters on the corner of Tremont Street, Barron remembers,"I did everything. I'd spend hours there," His enthusiasm was noted by a high state official, who invited Barron to Logan Airport to great Nixon when he arrived in town."I thought it was the greatest thing!"

Years later, Barron was invited to spend some time with Nixon in his San Clemente home, talking for over an hour, mostly about foriegn policy. Barron considers that meeting one of the highlights of his career.

"I think he was a brilliant president in terms of foreign policy...he all but predicted Afghanistan . I was impressed that he knew what would happen in the Middle East."

At the time of their meeting, Barron was issues director for Governor John Connaley's presidential campaign, and Nixon gave Barron some campaign advice as well.

Barron had resigned for from his post at the Freedom of Information Office one year earlier, after his father became terminally ill. He returned to the family home in Waban. "I thought that was where I should be," Barron explains. For a year Barron worked for his fathers real estate business, until he received the call from Connally, asking Barron for his assistance in the campaign.

priorities in education is improving "teacher morale" in the wake of layoffs and cutbacks. Marquis, who shrugged the concern off as a political play to the teacher's union, countered: "Here is the difference between me and a politician. I am not after the teacher's union vote...The first priority of the school system has got to be the children and not the teachers."

Marquis and White also took opposing sides on Proposition 2½. Marquis was quick to point out that he supported the law which has forced budget cuts.

Marquis said "administrative fat" should be cut to help implement the law, noting the Police and Department of Public Works budgets should be cut. "I have some serious problems about the staffing of the Police Department," he said.

Marquis, who has worked for a number of human service organizations, said he would implement zero based budgeting to implement Proposition 2½.

"I would fund the most important services first right on down the line," he asserted. "What the present administration and politicians refuse to realize is that we can't be everything to everybody." Furthermore, he said "new and innovative" resources must be used in the future to maintain services.

White, who led the fight to retain the city operated ambulance service, argued that Proposition 2½ is hurting the the city. He called Marquis' use of zero based budgeting to ease the impact of Proposition 2½ "simplistic." White, however, agreed that the Police and Public Works budgets could stand more cutting.

The Ward 7 alderman-at-large and chairman of the aldermanic public safety committee, however, voiced support for putting more police officers on the street. In fact, White criticized Mann for allowing a number of police positions to go unfilled.

White, who claimed burglaries in the city have increased 45 percent since 1972, said he would implement an innovative new program called "Operation Ripoff" designed to prevent burglaries. White said the program would send officers to homes in the city to show residents safety measures that can be taken to prevent crime.

Marquis countered by contending that residents must accept more responisbility to reduce crime. Noting many residents witness a variety of "petty crimes," he said: "Much of what goes on in our society is our own fault. It is something we can control."

White repeatedly attacked Mann for delaying revaluation. He also emphasized that estimated tax bills will not be sent out until after the election and many resident's bills will double.

Marquis said that he would implement a program to help low-income and other needy residents finance the increased tax bills so they are not forced out of the city.

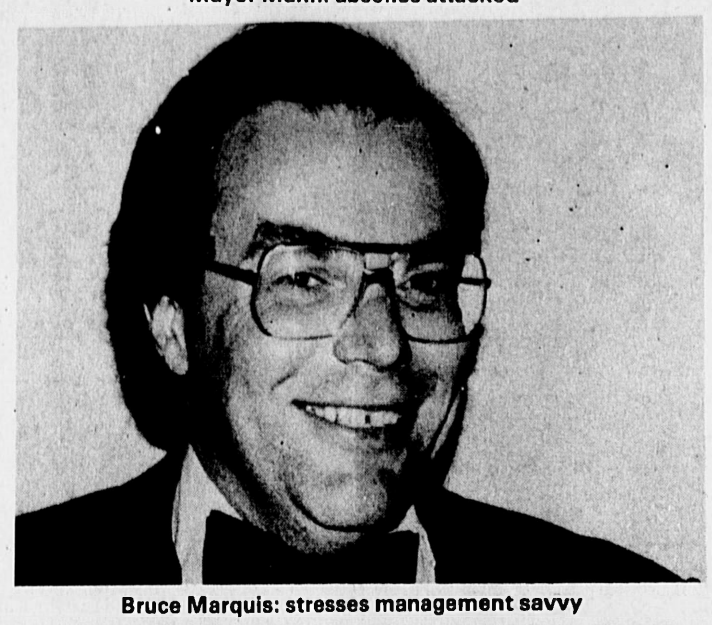

In his closing statement, White asked voters to "compare experience dealing with city issues" and "rhetoric versus substance." Noting an increase in crime, traffic and development problems, he concluded: "Is this city really better off now and is Ted Mann really the guy you want to lead it for the next four years?"

Marquis, terming himself a "builder and manager with 15-years experience in non-profit organizations," closed the debate by demanding that both Mann and White follow his lead and disclose their personal finances.

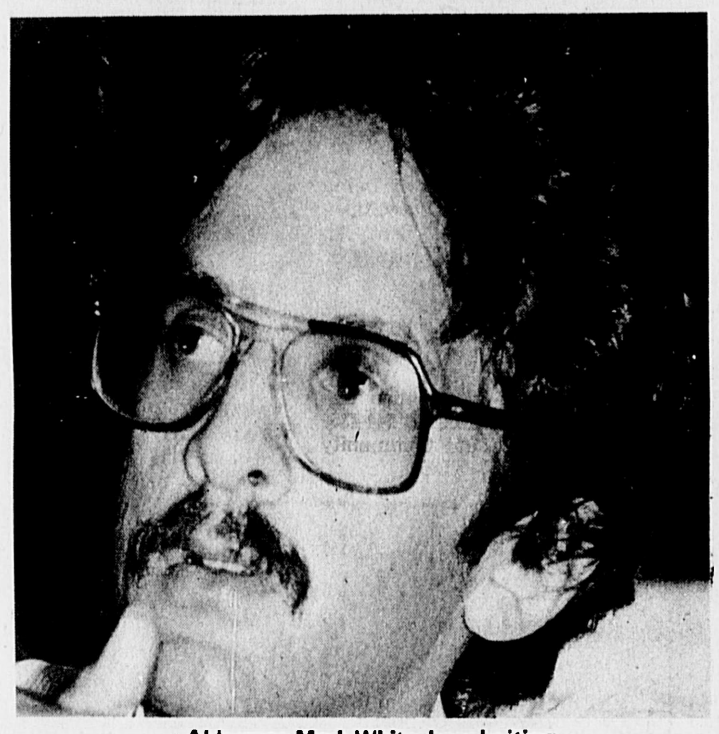

"It's the right thing to do," he said. "It is the ethical thing to do." Marquis pointed out that all Newton state legislators must file public financial disclosure forms.

White brings 'Teddy' bear to debate

Marquis and White hit missing Mann with sharp barbs

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Alderman Mark White and Waban Businessman Bruce Marquis unleashed a strong attack against incumbent Mayor Theodore Mann for not attending a mayoral debate last Wednesday night.

Mann said he had a "previous engagement" and could not attend the debate which was sponsored by the Newton Corner Neighborhood Association.

In a short telephone interview Tuesday, Mann said: "I am tied up for that particular night...I have a previous commitment." Mann referred to the Newton Corner event as a "candidate's night" rather than a "debate."

Mann, however, said he was looking forward to debating the two challengers in several debates scheduled for this week.

"I urge everybody to attend these two debates," he explained. "I think the debates will be very exciting. It will give us a chance to discuss the real issues of the campaign." Mann added: "We stand on our record."

Marquis, who gave his opening statement first, noted the 10-year incumbent showed that he was not "willing to face public and be held accountable" by not attending.

In a clever move to play to the Mann opponents in the audience, White noted: "One of the problems in this city and campaign is that you never know when Teddy (Mann) will show up." Mann made a surprise showing at a recent debate in Waban.

As he pulled a stuffed teddy-bear out of a brown paper bag and sat it on the table, White said: "Since I knew that Teddy wouldn't show up tonight, I brought my own teddy. This bear can answer as well as the mayor can." The humorous slap at Mann drew loud laughter from the audience.

Noting that Mann's response to "all criticism" is the city's Triple A credit rating, White continued: "It is understandable why the mayor isn't here. If you had a record like this administration, you wouldn't show up either."

Mann and Marquis hammered away at Mann's record throughout the 90-minute debate. White specifically rapped Mann for delaying revaluation and hiring a revaluation firm several years ago that was "under investigation by four states."

Marquis, who has stressed improved public education as a major theme in his campaign, criticized Mann for not playing a leadership role in the city's school system.

He said: "It is my position that the mayor has consistently gone along with the majority of the School Committee in order to get their political favor for re-election."

Charles Nelson, a local architect, berated White and Marquis for criticizing Mann. He argued that the neighborhood group should not be used a political vehichle.

Nelson denied that Mann's absence was because the mayor was "scared." "He (Mann) did not show up here because he had a previous commitment," said Nelson.

Both Marquis and White pointed out that they had previous commitments which were broken to attend the debate.

"Our campaign had a previous commitment," explained Marquis. "We felt it is more important to respond to questions of the public..."

An angry White snapped: "The fact he (Mann) didn't come was up to him...If he wants to hide in the mayor's office and send people to criticize me that is fine."

White speculated that Mann did not show up at the debate because of a possible "hostile audience."

Art theft suspects arraigned in Newton

NEWTON — Two Massachusetts men arrested in connection with the theft of three art treasures valued at $50,000 pleaded innnocent to charges in Newton District Court last week.

The two men, Louis Royce, 44, of 320 O'Neil Blvd. Attleboro, and Ralph Rosetti, 46, of 72 Bennington St., East Boston, were arrested last Monday after a six-month investigation.

Newton and State Police teamed up with the FBI to recover the irreplacable art prints, three signed and number lithographs by Salvador Dali and Marc Chagall, in a dramatic sting operation.

Ninth grade is now at Newton South High

"We did not get as many new teachers as we had hoped to get," said Seasholes in regard to the ninth grade addition. "We had hoped to get about 25, instead we got 16."

The $37,763,033 FY 1982 school budget represented a reduction of $254.094 from fiscal year 1981.

Seasholes said it was tough to determine at this time the effect of some of the minor changes instituted because of Proposition 2½.

Increased teacher-student ratios both in and out of the classroom is his biggest concern. In addition to larger classrooms, counselors and administrators will be forced to handle more students than they have in the past.

"In a sense we'll manage." continued Seasholes. "How difficult it will be, we'll just have to see."

"It will affect us in that we're having to do with fewer secretaries and teachers' aides," he added.

Seasholes noted that instead of one teacher handling the dual responsibility of the Out-Reach Program for troubled kids and the resource room for students with learnig problems, the high school will have two full-time faculty members handling the chores.

In comparison to Newton North High School, Seasholes said the "psychological effect is a lot different between the two high schools because North had to confront both declining enrollment and Proposition 2½ cutbacks." The city's north side high school lost 24 teachers reducing the school faculty to 130 classroom teachers.

Shick seeks Ward 1 at-large seat

NEWTON CORNER — Sondra Shick, 43, of 21 Fairview St., Newton Corner has announced her candidacy for the position of Alderman-at-large, Ward 1. A resident of Newton since 1969, Shick is the wife of Blair Shick and the mother of three children.

A practicing attorney based in Newton Centre, she is a graduate of Northeastern University Law School and Dickinson College in Carlisle, Penn. In 1978 Shick was selected as a law clerk by U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone in Boston. Prior to moving her practice to Newton Centre she was associated with the Boston law firm of Martin, Morse, Wylie and Kaplan.

"I am running for the Board of Aldermen because I believe that my experience in building coalitions, in understanding difficult issues and in working tirelessly to implement my goals makes me well-suited to serve Newton," Schick said.

Sondra Shick

"The unprecedented pressures of Proposition 2 ½ and the overall fiscal climate threaten to undermine not only basic services, but the qualities which have made our city an outstanding place to live and raise a family. At the same time, 2 ½ presents new opportunities to examine and cut waste at every level of government and to creatively insure provision of municipal services," she continued.

Shick's experience include work in housing, education and land use issues. She served on the Board of Directors of the League of Women Voter for many years.

"No one needs be reminded what a difficult time local government is facing," Shick said. "I want to play a part in making local government work more effectively, more openly and more thoughtfully."

Contact message relay service to aid the deaf

NEWTONVILLE — CONTACT-Boston, the 24-hour help line, has announced plans to establish Deaf-CONTACT, a telephone TDD message relay service for the deaf, hearing-impaired, and hearing people, to begin Nov. 1.

Deaf-CONTACT's services will enable a deaf person to communicate by means of a Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) and request Deaf-CONTACT to call employer, doctor, dentist, or any other agency or person.

An estimated 500 deaf persons in the Greater Boston area have access to TDD equipment.

Deaf-CONTACT's new service will assume a major portion of the Deaf Community Center's Telexchange service, which will continue but at a reduced level.

CONTACT is a nation-wide service with centers in over 100 major cities and towns. Some 40 of those centers operate Deaf-CONTACT.

Volunteers are now being sought to begin an eight-session training program on Sept. 19. Training will cover important aspects of deafness, such as language skills, psycho-social aspects, as well as "hands on" experience with the TDD equipment.

To get more information call the CONTACT office at 244-4353 (voice) or the Deaf Community Center at 875-0354 (TDD).

Tenants' needs object of survey

NEWTON — Glenn Morris, chairman of the Newton Corner Community Development Corporation, has announced the CDC will begin a survey of residential tenants in the Gorin-Leeder properties this month.

The purpose of the survey is to determine the housing needs of each of the tenants of the nearly 50 units in the buildings.

Morris indicated that priority will be given to finding appropriate housing for elderly tenants and families with special needs.

The CDC has recently completed a survey of the Newton Corner businesses and has prepared a report which is available to the public.

The offices of the Newton Corner CDC are located in the Newton Free Library, Junior Branch, on Vernon Street and can be reached by telephone at 969-3555.

Watch those topheavy fees

A good question to ask is whether the value of Proposition 2 ½ is being eroded too greatly by the alacrity with which both state and local government entities have been bolstering fees or thinking up new charges.

The sewer use assignment as an added item on water bills, based on volume, has been introduced in many communities. This is only one of many grabs for dollars. Most of the cities and towns reviewed special fee schedules, then pushed ahead with increases.

No sooner had the automobile excise been dropped to $25 per thousand than the state stepped in with a doubling of the charge for vanity plates. Municipalities had lost the excise revenue, not the state.

Then came the doubling of the auto sticker inspection fee, from $2 to $4, which will generate an estimated $5 million in new revenue for the state. Down the line on the Commonwealth's broad service charges, the add-ons have been numerous, as well.

Boston Mayor Kevin White has been especially zealous in running down additional sources of income in the attempt to bail out his fiscally distressed domain. High on his priority list is a hiking of the hotel-motel room tax. It turned out that Kevin didn't have an exclusive on the idea.

It also showed up as part of the proposed financing for the new sports arena dreamed up for the North Station site, replacing Boston Garden. But look what it entails! All hotels and motels within the Route 495 periphery would furnish room levies to sustain the project.

Such a boon for the Celtics, Bruins and radio-TV interests, bless their profit-making hearts, would be at the expense of those municipalities outside Boston which were giving some thought to taking a bite themselves.

Petitions to do this very thing are in the legislative hopper, with grassroots backing, so the sports arena sponsors could be in for heavy going on that score.

But let's get back to the question postulated at the start. Value of 2 ½ isn't being seriously subverted in the main because property taxes will come down and the brakes are being applied to spending. But the original intent is being bent somewhat as officials reach into different pockets to offset the losses taken from the budget cutbacks.

The practice of inventing new fees or boosting old ones could get out of hand. Amounts are small, yet the totals can be very large indeed. Where licenses, permits and minor services are involved, the costs have been of little concern. Making them topheavy is going to make a lot of people unhappy. This is a good time to get the matter out in the open.

One final point. Tapping new revenue sources shouldn't divert cities and towns from putting property valuation houses in order. For those not in compliance, this has to be the chief order of business before fiscal 1983.

Let Moral Majority be

By William F. Buckley
National Columnist

Well now, that was a close one. The 1,267 members of the freshman class of Yale University have been warned against the Moral Majority by President A. Bartlett Giamatti. And what a speech it was: Dr. Jerry Falwell, head of the Moral Majority, is said to be quite a fulminator himself. He ought to go to Yale. To study under Bart Giamatti. Learn a thing or two about how one fulminates in the big league.

What's going on? To be lectured against the perils of the Moral Majority on entering Yale is on the order of being lectured on the danger of bedbugs on entering a brothel. What is it that exercised Dr. Giamatti, a man of great urbanity who has some lovely and incisive things to say about many issues, as witness his forthcoming book of essays?

Well, he says the Moral Majority are "peddlers of coercion" and that they have made "a radical assault" on pluralism, civil rights and religious and political freedoms in the United States. How so?

Because they are "angry at change, rigid in the application of chauvinistic slogans, absolutistic in morality." Thus, "they threaten through political pressure or public denunciation whoever dares to disagree with their authoritarian positions."

Moreover, "they presume to know what God alone knows, which is when human life begins."

Enough.

1) On the latter point: How is it that the president of a distinguished and cosmopolitan university tells us that God alone knows when human life begins? If you penetrate this rhetorical formulation, you have a dimly obscured invitation to nescience.

"God-alone-knows" is the safest way to say, "That-is-unknowable." Because inasmuch as God is not invited to teach a regular course at Yale, Mr. Giamatti is saying in effect that the search for the answer ("When does life begin?") should be abandoned — because no one can tell. Why not? If you grant the metaphorical extravagancies (Life Begins at Forty) you can indeed ask scientists to make sound judgments on when life begins. Or moralists. Or theologians. And in any case, the question is ultimately decided by civic action. But civic action is regularly informed by theological insights.

Thus we had for many years a group known as Clergy and Laity Concerned. They used to be Concerned About Vietnam, but lately they are just Concerned. That concern regularly focuses on the sins of everyone who wants America to be strong militarily or wants to develop nuclear energy. These people are very big on denunciation, and it is interesting that Mr. Giamatti hasn't gone after them. Is it really his position that people reading the Bible are not free to enjoin its messages? Its messages as they read them?

Mr. Giamatti said he had no quarrel with the values of the Moral Majority, defined in the paraphrase of The New York Times as "love of country, a regard for the sanctity of life, the importance of the family and high standards of personal conduct." But "the point is," said the president of Yale, "the rest of us hold to ideas of family, country, belief in God, in different ways. The right to differ, and to see things differently, is our concern." Well, so is it the concern of the Moral Majority, isn't it? They are saying that certain values should govern Americans. Aren't we free to disagree? And why should they not say so, believing such values to be true?

So what on earth is exciting Dr. Giamatti?

That the Moral Majority are "angry at change"? But anger was officially cultivated, by Yale among other institutions, quite recently in the matter of such things as civil rights and the Vietnam War. "And God said to Jonah, 'Doest thou well to be angry?' And he said, 'I do well to be angry, even unto death.'" Dr. Giamatti should lecture the kids against the dangers of gonorrhea and gnosticism, and let the Moral

Reagan cans gas rationing

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON — Recent headlines have been somewhat worrisome to those concerned with this country's oil supplies.

The downing by U.S. Navy pilots of the two Libyan fighters prompted some militant Arab states to call for a new oil boycott. Then the latest meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries broke up with the cartel in disarray.

What all of this adds up to is the possibility — albeit not a major one — of another major disruption of crude oil exports to this country. As in 1974 and 1979, insufficient supplies would have to be apportioned among all potential buyers.

The oil companies — not the federal government — would do that allocating under some little-noticed actions of the Reagan administration. Washington is turning over to the oil companies the power to decide who would get what and how much we would pay for it during a new gasoline crunch.

The Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act, which gives the president standby authority to allocate gasoline, expires at the end of September. The administration has asked Congress not to renew the law.

W. Kenneth Davis, the deputy secretary of energy, told a congressional hearing that President Reagan believed that "market pressure" would "fairly allocate" oil supplies during a shortage and that he did not want the power to intervene.

Under questioning by Rep. Tim Wirth, D-Colo., Davis said this would probably mean that those who could afford gasoline would be able to continue buying it in the event of a shortage. The administration would not change its mind, Davis said, "even if gas reached $5 a gallon."

Stockman faces fearful

By Roland Evans and Robert Novak

JOLIET, Ill. — Encountering anguish among Midwestern Republican faithful beyond all expectations, David Stockman after three days of barnstorming was denouncing high interest rates as "oppressive," predicting higher revenues from lower tax rates and promising a gold standard somewhere over the economic rainbow.

"Sooner or later," said the director of Office of Management and Budget (OMB) at private fund-raisers, the nation must return to gold convertibility for the dollar.

Facing the fear of the faithful, Stockman responded in his old role as Reagan's revolutionary. Although he styles himself a practical politican not chained by visionary dogma, he met faltering faith at the Reagan grass roots with pure supply-side credo.

Stockman's frenetic tour (26 performances in four days) confronted anti-Reagan social activists, peace demonstrators, striking air traffic controllers and ERA enthusiasts chanting and picketing at nearly every stop. If such a demonstration could be launched at Mankato, Minn., a month before his budget cuts begin to bite, Stockman pondered what will take place later in big cities.

But what jarred him more than pickets outside were fat cats inside. Second only to Ronald Reagan as a Republican drawing card, Stockman generated a gold rush for tickets (ranging from $35 to $500) for fund-raising events on his tour. They paid to shake hands with the party's newest glamor figure — and to complain.

"I think he's got the right cure," a home builder who had just paid $500 for a Stockman reception in South Bend, Ind., told us. "But I wonder if its going to kill us first." Everywhere, party loyalists, fear in their eyes, told Stockman that retailers, farmers and small manufacturers simply cannot stand high interest rates much longer.

Midway through the second day, Stockman inserted this disclaimer into his basic speech: "High interest rates won't solve any problem." By the end of the third day at a dinner in Joliet, he said, "The Reagan revolution is being jeopardized by these oppressive interest rates."

But the only way to reduce them is reduced federal borrowing, which he guaranteed with the new fiscal year starting Oct. 1. On his feet at a Springfield, Ill., luncheon, he coined a fiscal metaphor: "The Treasury has the sharpest elbows in the market." When its borrowing needs are reduced, he contended, money will be available for private credit and interest rates will go down.

To reduce those needs, the Defense Department "will not be a sacred cow." Applauding conservative Republicans were nearly as adamant about cutting military spending as they were terrified of high interest rates.

Stockman spent nearly as much time defending the Reagan tax cuts as promising further budget cuts, but he did not mention gold except when asked. His private answer: The 1971 separation of gold and the dollar created "a flood of U.S. dollars ... eroding fundamental confidence" in the economic system. "Sooner or later," he said, "if you're going to complete the cycle of re-establishing economic order, you're going to have to get to that stage at some point at which we re-establish convertibility and put a permanent anchor on the system," but that would be "the final stage at some point down the road" of re-establishing "sound fiscal policy."

He left those worried Midwestern Republicans feeling better but not wholly reassured. After Stockman promised in South Bend that the prime rate would drop to 8 or 9 percent by the mid-1980s, a manufacturer told us: "That's a 2 percent drop a year. By that time, I'll be ruined." In truth, Stockman believes the progress will be swifter. If not, he knows the chanting pickets outside and the frightened Republicans inside on his Midwestern tour are the foretaste of much worse to come.

How your lawmaker voted on bills awaiting action

The House and Senate. When the House and Senate reconvene, they will face an agenda filled with hundreds of bills still pending. Of the 8600 bills filed this year, most are still in various states of approval in either the House or Senate.

This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' and representatives' votes on ten key bills which have already been approved in the House and/or Senate and are awaiting further action. Readers should take advantage of this opportunity to contact their local legislators and tell them how they feel on these pending matters. Many of these bills are expected to be up for further action shortly.

"As Is" Cars: A measure allowing car dealers to sell vehicles costing $750 or less "as is" — without any guarantee — has received near final approval in the House 111-40, and in the Senate 19-12. The measure needs only one final round of approval in each branch before it is sent to Gov. King for his signature. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Rep. Salvatore Ciccarelli (D-Watertown) — Yes; Rep. David B. Cohen (D-Newton) — No; Rep. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton, Waltham) — Yes; Rep. Susan Schur (D-Weston) — No; Rep. Royall Switzler (R-Weston) — Yes; Rep. Peter G. Trombley (D-Waltham) — Yes. Sen. Carol Amick (D-Waltham, Weston) — Yes; Sen. George Bachrach (I-Watertown) — No; Sen. Jack Backman (D-Newton) — The senator voted "Yes" as the present half of a paired vote.

Primary Source: The House and Senate have passed conflicting versions of a bill requiring liquor retail owners to purchase their products only from the manufacturers or from Massachusetts wholesalers designated by the manufacturers. The House version, approved 76-70, increases the number of retail outlets an individual can own from three to four, while the Senate bill, approved 20-17, increases the number from three to seven. A conference committee is now attempting to work out a compromise version to present to both branches. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Ciccarelli — Yes; Cohen — No; DeNucci — Yes; Schur — No; Switzler — No; Trombley — No. Amick — No; Bachrach — No; Backman — No.

Racing: By a 112-35 vote, the House has approved and sent to the Senate the controversial bill permitting the state's commercial racing tracks to operate year round. The measure now awaits Senate action. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Ciccarelli — Yes; Cohen — Yes; DeNucci — Yes; Schur — No; Switzler — No; Trombley — Yes.

Bottle Bill: The bottle bill has received initial House approval 95-57, and now needs final approval in the House before it goes to the Senate. The measure, expected to pass the Senate, requires five and ten cent deposits on all beer and carbonated beverage containers (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Ciccarelli — Yes; Cohen — Yes; DeNucci — No; Schur — Yes; Switzler — Yes; Trombley — Yes.

Energy Audits: The House has given initial approval 90-61, to a bill which would eliminate the new conservation charge on utility bills by having homeowners pay the full cost of home energy audits. Presently, the conservation charge partially subsidizes the cost of those audits. The measure needs further House approval before it can go to the Senate. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Ciccarelli — No; Cohen — No; DeNucci — No; Schur — No; Switzler — Yes; Trombley — No.

Tax Growth And 2½: After heated debate, the House has given initial approval 122-31, to a bill limiting future state tax growth of personal income in the state. The measure also makes some changes in Proposition 2½, including allowing a majority, instead of a two-thirds vote in a city or town, to override some provisions of 2½ in a special election. This measure, considered by some as one of the most important considered by the legislature this year, needs further House approval and would then go to the Senate. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Ciccarelli — Yes; Cohen — Yes; DeNucci — Yes; Schur — Yes; Switzler — No; Trombley — Yes.

Juveniles: This bill allowing judges to impose minimum periods of custody in juvenile cases has cleared its initial Senate hurdle 21-15. It could be up for final Senate approval soon, and if it is approved, will surely be the subject of intense debate in the House. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Amick — No; Bachrach — No; Backman — No.

No Smoking: The Senate has given first round approval, 22-12, to a bill requiring no-smoking areas in restaurants with 200 seats or two dining rooms, as well as health care facilities and schools. The measure also prohibits smoking at an open meeting of a governmental body, and imposes a $50 fine for violators. The proposal needs further Senate action and then will go to the House. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.) Amick — Yes; Bachrach — Yes; Backman — Yes.

Bring back Hester Dustin

To the Editor:

As battles for women's rights, whether they be for a safe abortion or for equality in the job marketplace, escalate across America, I was delighted to read a "Here Stood" sign on R..93 N. recently.

It told about one Hester Dustin who, in 1797, was kidnapped after an Indian raid and taken to an island in the Merrimack River. Two years later she escaped by swimming to the mainland, carrying with her the scalps of eight Indians whom she had killed en route.

According to the writer, "she epitomized the typical American pioneer woman."

It seems appropriate at this moment in history to remind angrily divided/would-be unisex America that neither the tepid, fainting female of Victorian fiction nor man's obedient "Kindchen, Kuchen, Kirchen" Hausfrau has ever been the true prototype of American women.

Two hundred years ago women did not need E.R.A. They were too busy proving their worth by doing everything that their men-folk did, plus raising a family on the side. Whether it was homesteading or running a store, clearing fields or fighting Indians, they saw it as a means of survival, and a better life for the next generation. They were equal.

I suggest that we consider returning to that more basic philosophy and rule of thumb. Bring back that single standard which simply read "Can you do it? If so... prove it, and the job's yours" and stop twenty more years of talking about it.

The way things are going these days, it is beginning to sound as though men think they need protection from women!

Rental housing

To the Editor:

As a candidate for Ward 6 alderman, I would like to reiterate my support for the Cohen— Sheehan ordinance on rental housing, recently adopted by the board of aldermen.

Clearly, the idea behind a free-market economy is to give owners of property the right to do with it as they please. Housing, however, is an essential and very limited kind of property. Sale and use of it must, therefore, be regulated in some manner.

Some affordable rental housing should, and must, exist here and elsewhere.

The specific legislation in question here is extremely mild and places no unfair hardship on property owners. Certainly, conscientious landlords do not object to the kind of basic protection this legislation would offer tenants.

The people who are objecting the loudest are not actually individuals at all; they are large corporations, absentee landlords who have little stake or interest in the lives of our citizens.

As Newton residents, we must speak up in our own behalf. We must show these outside interests that we are in control of our city. And we must tell the aldermen who voted against the ordinance that they must be responsible and offer their own solutions to the city's housing problems.

It is no longer acceptable to simply ignore the situation.

Food stamp changes take effect Oct. 1

BURLINGTON — Major changes in the food stamp eligibility rules and benefits that the President signed into law will begin taking effect Oct. 1 according to G. William Hoagland, Administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service.

Changes required by the Omnibus Reconcilation Act of 1981 are aimed at saving $1.7 billion in federal costs for the food stamp program in fiscal year 1982 which begins Oct. 1.

Hoagland announced the timetable for implementing the changes in a recent speech before the National Council of State Public Welfare Adminstrators meeting in Detroit.

DeNucci discusses eligibility changes in welfare program

BOSTON — Representative A. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton-Waltham), House Chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, recently met with William Hogan, Secretary of Human Services and Thomas Spirito, Commissioner of Public Welfare, to discuss the impact of the new federal public assistance legislation, particularly in terms of changes clients can expect as of Oct. 1.

DeNucci said, "Our first attention must be given to people whose lives will be affected by the changes, especially those who want to continue in employment." Secretary Hogan agreed, adding, "Because the administration is aware of the dramatic impact of federally mandated eligibility changes, we have decided to defer action on all optional provisions of the federal legislation."

As of Oct. 1, the state must implement changes which will put approximately 12,000 people off the public assistance rolls, according to Rep. DeNucci. Among these changes are the elimination of benefits for any family whose gross earned income is above 150 percent of the standard need, a $75-per-month cap on work related expenses, a $160-per-month-per-child cap on child-care expenses which can be disregarded for the purpose of determining income, and elimination of benefits for the family of an individual on strike.

"These changes, as I see them," said DeNucci, "will impact substantially upon working recipients, whose only income after the new changes would be from low-paying or part-time jobs. Many of these people will be forced to leave their jobs cancelling out savings to the Commonwealth."

"It is important that the state take a supportive role and help those affected by the federal restrictions maintain employment despite the new eligibility restrictions," he continued.

Rep. DeNucci and Secretary Hogan agreed that recipients will be notified regarding eligibility changes in spite of the fact that this, also, appears optional under federal law.

DeNucci stated, "As House Chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, I am working to ease as much as possible the impact of impending welfare changes. We also must be very careful that those optional federal changes in eligibility or elimination of programs do not, in fact, end up costing the commonwealth more money if implemented."

MDC to form committee to discuss area's sewer needs

BOSTON — The Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) announced this week that it will form a Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for assistance in preparing a for the Wellesley Extension Sewer.

The committee will assist the MDC and its engineers, SEA Consultants Inc., Boston, in review and consultation on the long-term planning for sewerage needs in the affected area.

Membership will include citizens, public officials, public interest groups and industrial representatives from the following communities: Wellesley, Needham, Dover, Natick, Dedham, Newton, Brookline, Boston and Quincy.

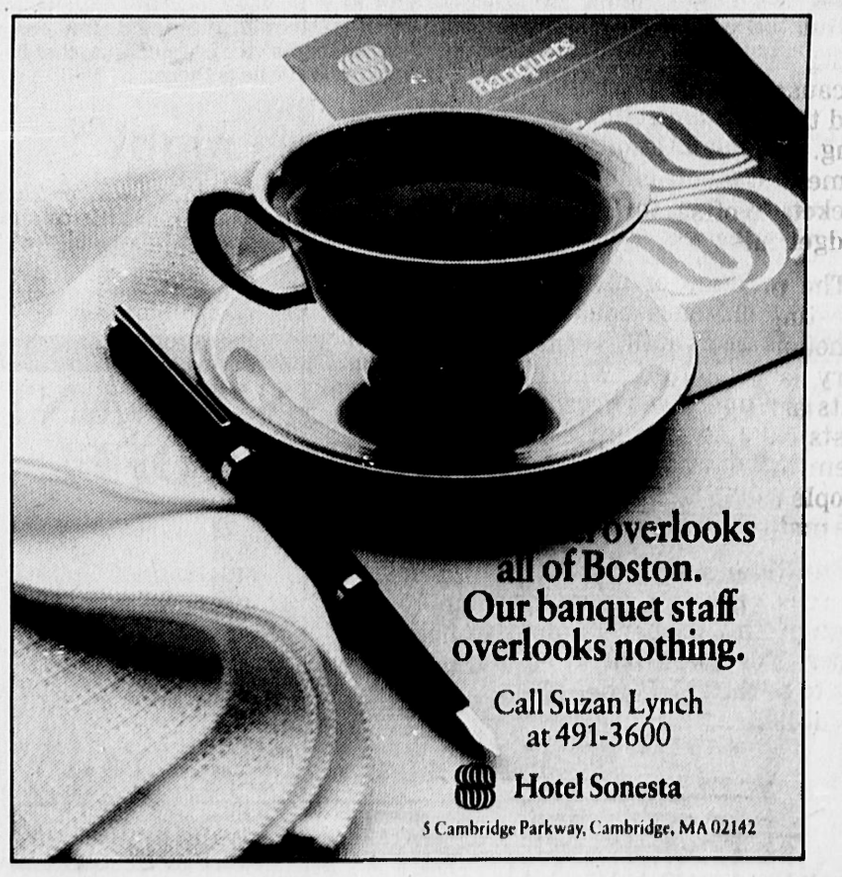

Jack Hamm of the MDC Sewerage Division has been named the Public Participation Coordinator and Project Engineer for the 10 month study.

The first meeting of the Citizens Advisory Committee is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 15, . at 8 p.m. in Needham.

Frank says Reagan lacks alternative to his failing economic prescription that Bush and Anderson were right," Frank said.

As an example of the magnitude of defense spending, Frank pointed to the budget category for social services, which includes CETA programs, educational aid and day care, among others.

"The total amount Reagan got Congress to allocate for social services ($28 billion) this year is less than the increase in the defense budget ($29 billion)," Frank said.

"His foreign policy is unsettled and unclear, and the Reagan administration has not taken a position on social issues such as abortion and busing, the human rights ammendment, the MX missile system or the B-1 bomber.

"Now that cutting taxes and spending has not worked as well as he thought, does he cut defense spending or not. It's a tremendous problem especially with his right wing people whom he has to pacify from time to time.

"Their fundamental problem is they don't know what to do with the economy. The Kemp-Roth tax cutting measure has failed and they don't know what to do about it."

"Ronald Reagan came to power with an unusually well defined agenda of fundamental economic changes. He knew which direction the country wanted to go in. I think there was general support for tax cutting and budget trimming. He has put through those changes and they have greatly transformed the nature of our federal government.

"He has established himself in the minds of the public as a forceful leader," Frank said, "but he does not have, I think, anything to continue to fuel that image."

"What's been going on in Washington is depressing," Frank said, "but I think it's going to get better."

Frank said when Congress reconvenes, the Democratic Party will have an opportunity to "undo some of the things Reagan has done," adding that Reagan has lumped specific issues into "dramatized packages" of change.

"We are going to have to refight each issue one at a time, such as minimum benefits of social security," he said.

The Brandeis Democrats of Brandeis University is the only college Democratic organization in the state, and the largest group of its kind in the country with 340 members.

Charlie King, National Youth Director of Americans for Democratic Action Youth Caucus and Jim Evans, an aide to Sen. Ted Kennedy, also spoke to the Brandeis students urging them to get involved in politics.

"People and students can have a significant impact, even writing letters. You have to make sure the people who stay in office believe in running the country the way we want them to do it. Get involved," King said.

it before the merits could be heard.

A subsidiary of the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., CHR General argued that the city did not have the authority to enact the ordinance without enabling legislation from state lawmakers.

The Board of Aldermen petitioned the legislature for enabling legislation on June 15, but action on the request is not expected for a few months.

The ordinance, along with an emergency preamble, were approved by the board on Aug. 13 and went into effect Aug. 27.

On the advice of City Solicitor Daniel Funk, Mayor Theodore Mann allowed the bill to pass into law without his signature. The Law Department maintained throughout the drafting of the ordinance that it was "illegal" without enabling legislation.

The ordinance prevents a landlord from evicting a tenant for a miniumum of two years. Hardship cases, primarily elderly and handicapped, are granted a five-year grace period.

Arguing against the plantiff's motion for a preliminary injunction, Assistant City Solicitor Susan Kurland said it was an "extreme measure" that "no party is ever entitled to as a matter of right."

In order to secure this relief, Kurland said the plantiff must prove "an imminent irreparable injury which will occur before a full hearing on the merits."

Kurland also noted that the legislature has yet to decide whether municipalities, with enabling legislation, have the authority to regulate condominium conversions.

Richard Houlding, an executive vice-president with the firm marketing Chestnut Hill Gardens, said his company "would just have to apply with the ordinance as written," at the 422-unit complex.

"We made a commitment to the people and we're going to honor that until the date we set previously (until Nov. 1)," said Houlding. "In the end we felt it was important to maintain a level of honorability and accountability."

According to Houlding, CHR General has received 218 deposits; has approved 63 hardship cases (not including 12 Section A units); and has granted 28 relocation reimbursements. In addition, there are 61 vacancies in the twin-tower complex and 53 tenants who continue to fight the conversion.

Cohen criticizes U.S. budget cuts

BOSTON — Criticizing the recent Federal budget cuts in the human services area as insensitive, Rep. David Cohen (D-Newton) called for action to minimize the impact of those cuts on state run programs.

Rep. Cohen termed the reductions harmful to the needy and elderly and costly to the Commonwealth as well. Some Massachusetts federally financed human services programs will see a 25 percent budget reduction in fiscal 1982.

In commenting on the reduction, Cohen said, "Congress has enacted a law which will actually increase the size of the state beauraucracy, liminate benefits to the neediest segments of the population, and create an insidious disincentive, discouraging welfare recipients from seeking or holding a paying job.

"Presently, the federal government awards a wide range of categorical grants directly to health care providers, and municipal and county governments," Cohen stated. "The state has no role in awarding or monitoring these grants."

"Under the Reagan block grant proposal, Massachusetts, not the federal government, will be responsible for the administration of grant funds. These additional duties will require the hiring of additional administrative personnel. The net effect of this change will be that more money will be spent on beauraucracy and less on direct services to those in need."

Cohen also said that, "the tightening in medicare eligibility and the reduction in the percentage of the federal reimbursement for state incurred medicare costs will result in segments of the population being denied medical care."

"There are responsible ways of controlling medicare costs, without jeopardizing the quality of care which a patient receives: The appropriateness of the practice of expensive long term institutionlization can be examined; the rates charged for hospital out-patient services can be reviewed, and a revised schedule of chronic hospital rates can be implemented," Cohen added.

A joint legislative-executive task force must be formed to deal with the issues raised by these cuts"' Rep. Cohen concluded.

At 26, Gary Barron has already enjoyed a long career in government

Barron stresses that his father was the driving force in his life. "He was my mentor. I'm the spitting image of him." It was his father, Stanley P. Barron, who always encouraged his young children to act like adults. "My father was a tremendous teacher who treated us like grownups."

Because of his father's attitude,Barron feels he was able to set his goals while he was very young , but adds, "I may have grown up a little too early."

At an age when other young people are not even sure what their goals are, Barron had already achieved one his most important ambitions, to be working in the White House. However, since he reached that point long before he expected to, Barron has had some rerouting to do. "I had to rethink where I wanted to go."

Now Barron speaks seriously of returning to Newton in several years and becoming active in Newton politics, and perhaps run for congress from the Middlesex district.But he does not feel it will be in the near future. "I don't see the immediate urgency to do it," says Barron, who stresses his loyalty to the present administration.

"Maybe in 8 to 10 years," he explains."You neeed to earn the right to represent your people," and he notes pragmatically that his background would be helpful in congress.

Presently living in Alexandria, Virginia with his wife of five months, Debra, Barron says he is content now to continue working under the present administration, as an officer for the service organization that he hopes will grow while he is there.

With all the taxes Newton citizens pay, they expect decent Police protection!! With crime on the increase, why has Ted Mann reduced the size of the Police Force over the past five years?
And why would Bruce Marquis say that the Police Department is overstaffed? MARK WHITE feels this is a rip-off!

As Chairman of the Aldermanic Public Safety and Transportation Committee, Mark White has opposed any type of police cutback or reduction of the force. He has fought to maintain the city's crossing guards. He has fought to maintain police presence in neighborhoods and business areas.

MARK WHITE has proposed a city wide crime prevention program entitled, "Operation-Rip-Off" where police personnel inspect individual households, showing Newton homeowners where they are vulnerable to housebreaks (similar to the present fire safety program the Fire Department now conducts).

MARK WHITE is committed to decreasing the rising burglary rate this city has experienced during the present administration.

WHAT MONEY MARKET FUNDS CAN'T GIVE YOU.

Admittedly, the interest rates offered by money market funds are a little higher and that's fine; we're all for making money. But before you get lured away, take a good look at what the money markets can't give you that a savings bank can.

Where does the money market fund put all your money?
Who cares, as long as the return is satisfactory? Maybe you should. Because a great portion of that money is invested in places and companies that have no effect on you and your family.

As a community savings bank, we make every effort to see that the money in our bank actually helps the people who put it there. It's no accident that hospitals, schools, community development projects and the like are often the recipients of savings bank funds.

And about loans...
It'd never occur to you to visit your local money market fund for a loan to finance your car, home or child's education. That's what banks are for, right? Yes, as far as it goes, but let's face facts.

Savings banks can only continue giving loans as long as they have healthy savings deposits. Invest with us now and the likelihood of a reciprocal investment should the need arise is far better.

What it all boils down to is this: with all your money in our bank, we can continue to help you, your family, and your community.

We're not asking you to stop trying to get the highest return... quite the opposite. We just think that once you look past the interest rates and at the whole picture you'll see that a savings bank is still the best place to keep your money.

Police news

NEWTON — A rear door was jimmyied for thieves to gain entrance into the Unitarian Church at 320 Washington Street sometime during Wednesday night.

Police said the theft of two IBM typewriters and an answering machine was discovered around 9 a.m. Thursday.

Also reported Thursday morning was a burglary from an office suite on Union Street. Missing was a stereo.

Over $300 in cash and jewelry of an underterundetermined value was reported stolen from a home on Jackson Street Wednesday around 10 a.m., police said.

According to police, the thieves entered through an unlocked door. Thefts were discovered last Wednesday afternoon at two apartments in a building on Commonwealth Avenue in Auburndale, police said.

Jewelry, china and silverware were stolen from the first floor apartment and jewelry was reportedly taken from the second floor apartment as well. The theft was discovered around 3 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

A Thunderbird and a Mercedes were both reported stolen Wednesday morning, according to police.

The Ford Thunderbird was discovered stolen from Beacon Street in Chestnut Hill around 7:30 a.m. and the silver Mercedes was reported stolen from Mills Street around 8 a.m.

Police are investigating the break-in of a local Catholic convent that was reported Saturday morning.

Police went to the convent about 10:15 a.m. and were told that a member of the order had heard a noise, had gone to investigate and found a window and screen opened.

Police said two phone wires in the convent had been cut. An antique watch from a second floor room was reported stolen. Police searched the premises but the thief had escaped.

Two hundred pieces of flatware and other sterling silver pieces were reported stolen Thursday night by an Old Farm Road resident, police said.

Among the other pieces reported stolen were: several sterling silver trays, candleholders, a coffeepot and a fruit bowl. The thief broke a glass pane in a door and unlocked the door to get in, police said.

Belongings valued at more than $2900 were reported stolen Thursday from an employee's workplace in a Centre Street business, police said.

Reported stolen were: a $2200 engagement ring, a $350 wedding ring, another ring valued at $200 and a $30 wallet containing $127, credit cards and a driver's license.

A 30-30 Winchester was reported stolen from a Mague Avenue residence Friday evening, police said. The $175 rifle reportedly had been in a gun rack in the resident's basement when the theft occurred.

As much as $1100 in checks and cash was reported stolen from a Center Street hair salon Friday, police said. The theft was discovered and reported at 3 p.m. Friday.

One CETA layoff victim finds job market tight

NEWTON — Sharron Sawyer, who has been working at the Newton CETA office nearly two years, has been looking for a new job for several months.

"I have gotten a lot of rejections," said the 30-year-old Jamaica Plain resident. "I understand things are still pretty tight in the private sector."

Sawyer, an outreach specialist, is one of an estimated 15 Newton CETA employees that will lose her job as a result of a consolidation with the Norwood Office. Sawyer has sent out 40 resumes, but received few responses.

"I hope things will be opening up in September," she said.

Sitting behind her desk at the Needham Street CETA office that will close on Sept. 30, Sawyer said the tight economy and the loss of her CETA position forced her to get "technical experience."

Sawyer, who has a degree in sociology and psychology from the University of South Florida, recently completed a course at the Natick YMCA (sponsored by the Digital Co. and Baystate Co.) in electronics.

Sawyer is looking for positions at high technology companies such as Digital, Wang, Prime Computer and Control Data.

Noting it may be difficult to get an entry level position, Sawyer said: "I just see electronics as a good field to get into because the opportunities are boundless."

Sawyer said CETA has been "supportive" in the job search for many employees. "They (CETA officials) are trying to get retraining for people."

Sawyer said CETA has been unfairly criticized by many and fears that the private sector will not pick up the slack in job training and placement for the needy and disadvantaged.

A 65-year-old CETA employee at the office, who did not want to be quoted, agreed. The Newton resident said: "I know CETA has helped a lot of people...They have worked hard getting jobs for people. I think they have done a damm good job."

The gray-haired man, who has worked at CETA for more than two years, noted that the job helped him put his life "back together" after not being able to find a job in the private sector.

He pointed out that age-discrimination may be a factor for many employees being laid off. "When a guy gets my age, it is very difficult to get a job in the private sector," he said.

15 CETA employees to lose jobs due to Newton office shutdown

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — An estimated 15 Newton CETA employees will be out of a job when the city's CETA Office is closed effective Sept. 30.

Director of Newton CETA Richard Moynihan predicted that 15 staff members will be let go due to the shutdown of the Newton Office at 320 Needham St.

The Newton CETA program is being consolidated with the Norwood CETA office. City officials said the consolidation was the result of the impact of drastic federal budget cuts on the CETA program.

The consolidation was made after negotiations with state officials following the cutbacks, according to city officials. All Newton CETA operations will be moved to the Norwood office after Sept. 30, Moynihan said.

Moynihan said that a score of 46 employees at the office have found new jobs. He noted that many employees will also be considered for eight to ten positions that will open up at the Norwood office as a result of the consolidation.

Director of Norwood CETA Anne Whooley, who will now coordinate CETA programs for the 26 towns in the Newton - Norwood area, said the consolidation will not drastically affect services being offered at the Newton office.

Whooley said CETA officials will open a new office in Newton. CETA officials are currently searching the city for office space. She said one intake worker and counselors will be assigned to the Newton office.

"Most of the programs (in Newton) will be continued to be offered in some manner," explained Whooley. "I see a minimal amount of disruption for the people being served in Newton."

Whooley said applications for job training programs and other services will still be offered in the Newton-Waltham area.

"I am very, very conscious that people in these programs don't have the resources to travel," she said. "We will bend over backwards to assure that services are provided in the local area."

Both Moynihan and Whooley estimated that CETA would serve half as many people next year because of the cutbacks initiated by the Reagan administration.

"There won't be less services because of the consolidation," said Moynihan. "There will be less services because of the size of the federal cuts."

Moynihan said almost all the 46-CETA staff members at the Newton office have been looking for new jobs, many successfully, in the last several months. The amount of staff members at the Newton office was as high as 120 in 1979.

Moynihan pointed out that even if the Newton-Norwood offices were not consolidated, he would have had to cut 50 percent of his staff because of federal cuts. Newton CETA received a 60 percent slash in funds for the next federal fiscal year (beginning Oct. 1), according to Moynihan.

As a result of the cuts, Moynihan said a lot of local residents who could benefit from job training programs and other CETA programs will be out of luck.

"Initially, we are going to see a lot of people for whom the services are not going to be readily available," he said.

Moynihan, who is negotiating a contract with the state, is expected to stay on and finish the liquidation of the Newton program.

Mayor Theodore Mann, who had warned repeatedly that he would withdraw as head of the CETA consortium because of a possible financial liability to the city, said the move was designed to "save money under federal edict."

"We will still be participating," he explained. "We are going to be certain that the needs of our community in terms of training and job placement will still be here."

FURNISHED MODELS ALMOST READY
Last chance to purchase at pre-opening prices!
At $250,000 to $350,000 the new homes at The Gables are an extraordinary value. There are many reasons.
LOCATION—The Gables, on Dedham Street at Murley Lane in Newton, directly adjoins the Charles River Country Club. The single family attached homes are clustered in small groups among the trees to take full advantage of the natural beauty of the site.
SPACE—The distinctive two and three bedroom homes are extravagant by contemporary standards. For example, the three bedroom unit offers 3100 square feet of living space; the smallest two bedroom, 1900 feet—unusual, when you consider that most new two bedroom houses contain less than 1200 square feet.
AMENITIES—Every home has its own attached two-car garage. There are large decks and/or terraces. Each home has a full basement, many with large windows and/or sliders. The private clubhouse looks out on an expansive sunning area, swimming pool and tennis courts. Combined electronic/guardhouse security protects you.
Pre-opening prices will be available only until the furnished models are ready. Astute buyers have already purchased 20 of the 29 currently available units. For complete information visit the sales office on the site—Dedham Street at Murley Lane in Newton. Open 9 to 5 daily, or phone (617) 969-0200.

Declared safe

9 fewer school guards

NEWTON — Despite the loss of nine school crossing guards, police officials claim the safety of area school children will not be jeopardized.

The guards, stationed at 83 posts last year, will be supervising 74 street crossings beginning today.

Of the 11 posts vacated, four were eliminated due to the Claflin School closing; three will be covered by patrol officers; and the remaining four will be re-routed to new crossings. Two new stations were established at the corners of Walnut St. and Elm Rd. and Valentine and Fountain St. for those children re-assigned to the Cabot and Pierce Schools respectively.

The city is also awaiting state approval for the installation of a crossing light at the Walnut St. and Elm Rd. crossing.

"The reason we're eliminating these posts rather than others," said Safety Officer Paul Golden, "was that they could be eliminated without jeopardizing children's safety."

Crossing guards work between 10 and 18 hours weekly, aiding children between the hours of 8:15 and 8:45 a.m.; 11:30 and 12:30 p.m.; between 3 and 3:30 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and between 1 and 2 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

"Basically all cuts were re-routed and made safer," continued Golden who studied each school crossing in the city before recommending the specific cuts. The Newton Police, along with Mrs. Paul Guzzi of the PTA and Mayor Theodore Mann worked on the study.

Lt. Charles Feeley added: "We were also able to eliminate these posts due to the inherent dangers that existed in view of children crossing often after the hours of protection."

Many of the students re-assigned from Claflin to the Cabot School will be forced to cross at Elm Rd.

Crossing guards eliminated include: Boylston and Woodwood Streets; Langley Rd. and Beacon St.; Elm and Webster Street; Cherry and Webster Streets; Comm. Ave. and Valentine St.; Valentine St. and Oak Cliff Rd.; Comm Ave. and Walnut St.; and Lowell Ave. and Claflin School.

Police patrols will handle the crossings at Woodbine Terr. and Auburn St; Waverly Ave.; and Tremont St.; and Centre and Gibbs Streets.

At each of the stations unaffected by the Claflin School closing, children will be re-routed.

Basbas finds probable cause in armed robbery case

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — After a 90-minute show cause hearing in Newton District Court, Judge Monte Basbas last Tuesday found "probable cause" to issue complaints against two Boston women charged with armed robbery.

Kimberly Walker,19, of 130 Devon St., Dorchester, and Stacy Sylvia, 18, of 48 West Sheldon St., Mattapan, will now stand trial on armed robbery charges in Middlesex Superior Court in Cambridge.

The two black women were arrested and charged with the theft of a purse from a middle-aged Newton women at the Newton Highlands MBTA station on July 18. Basbas released the two women on personal recognizance at the request of defense attorneys.

Sylvia was also charged with posession of mace. However, Basbas declined jurisdiction on the charge.

Police testified that they found the Newton woman's stolen purse in the pocketbook of Sylvia. Both Sylvia and Walker were reportedly stopped by police several blocks from the robbery scene.

The Newton woman testified that she was struck from behind and her pocketbook and shopping bag were grabbed. Under cross examination, however, the woman admitted that she did not see the assailants.

Defense Atty. Reuben Dawkins of Boston, representing Walker, asked the victim testifying repeatedly: "Did you see either of these ladies strike you?" "I felt it," she snapped. After the question was asked several times, the woman finally responded: "No."

Police reportedly recovered the stolen pocketbook at the MBTA station and arrested the two women after a description was provided by the victim.

Police also reported that the two women used aliases when arrested.

Mechem foresees good year for North students

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The fresh green paint still smelled as the visitor strolled into Newton North High School past Bacon House and towards Adams.

The lockers, blemished with graffiti the day before, appeared to gain new life behind the temporary face mask of a fresh coat of paint. The halls, clean and hollowed, beckoned for the onslaught of teenage students.

While outside, Newton North athletes got their first taste of autumn, the red-bricked building remained an empty shell.

This morning at 8:15 a.m., all that changed as approximately 2,250 students, less 200 from a year ago, return for the 1981-1982 school year.

Last year, students did not report to homeroom until 11 a.m. but in an attempt to cutback on the "disruption" caused by a midday homeroom and the "sloppiness" that went along with it, administrators have rolled back the starting time for all students.

As the first high schoolers of the post-Proposition 2½ era, they will be faced with increased teacher-student ratios, class consolidation and the elimination of some speciality courses.

Yet, as indicated by Principal Richard Mechem last Tuesday afternoon, the school has fared well in the short-term despite the mandatory budget cuts. However, he cautioned against the possible long-range effects of the tax-cutting measure passed last November by Massachusetts voters.

The $37,763,033 FY 1982 school budget represented a reduction of $254,094 from last year's $38,017,127 figure.

At Newton North, the budget cut translated into a reduction of 24 classroom teachers leaving the high school with a classroom force of 130, according to Personnel Director Helen Thomas.

"With the slightly smaller size of our student body and a still very strong staff, I don't see why we won't have a good year," said an optimistic Mechem.

Mechem, beginning his 22nd year as a Newton principal, said this year's student body will be at its lowest figure since the the opening of Newton North in 1972.

"I don't think anyone (the students) is going to really suffer," emphasized Mechem. "We've worked hard to keep the wide spread of courses and I feel we've done very well."

Mechem added that the reduction in classroom teachers would enlarge classroom size, potentially hurting students who may need added help.

"This way, if a student wants more attention he may not be able to get it," said Mechem. "We're going to have more classes in the range of 26 to 29 students than we've had before in our major subjects."

He also said some students may be deprived of taking specialty courses, such as music and art, which can only hold a limited number of students.

Bacon House, one of formerly six administrative sub-units in the High School, will also be eliminated.

"With declining enrollment, fewer teachers and the loss of one administrator, it made good sense to cut out a whole house," said Mechem.

When Newton North opened six houses operated with 500 students each. Now with just five houses, the numbers remain under 500 pupils for each administrative unit.

"What you can try to do is make certain adjustments," said Mechem, cautioning against possible long-range effects of the mandatory school cutbacks. "People say there is fat and this is not necessarily true. So sometimes in these programs you can make adjustments in the short-term that really won't effect anybody."

"My real worry is long-term," he continued. "If you have graduated from college today you may think twice before becoming a high school teacher."

He also noted that temporary equipment needs will be solved by the transfer of equipment from vacated city schools but said "that not being able to have money for equipment over a long period of time would be a serious problem."

'Ameer's Project'

"Ameer's Project"

A TRIBUTE TO A FRIEND

Last Christmas was barely over when we decided to embark upon a project to improve our store displays and craft ideas for the 1981 fall and Christmas season. Ameer Atallah, one of our young employees with an artistic flair, was appointed to be in charge of the project.

Ameer had just begun his work when on February 9 an automobile accident brought his efforts to a halt. Although Ameer has steadfastly recovered from his physical injuries, to this day he remains in a coma.

As friends and fellow employees of Ameer we all decided to pitch in and finish the project as a tribute to him. Throughout the summer we have pooled our talents and developed new ones that we never knew we had in order to complete what became known to us as "Ameer's Project".

We hope that our joint efforts will meet with your approval and that in some way they will add a little brightness to your holiday season. Perhaps, you have found an idea that you could use for your church bazaar, your youth group, or just to create for your personal pleasure. Perhaps, your children have enjoyed our new dioramas in the downstairs section. If, as we hope, you have found that in some way you have enjoyed or benefited from "Ameer's Project" we ask that you let Ameer know by sending him a note or a get well card.

His address is:

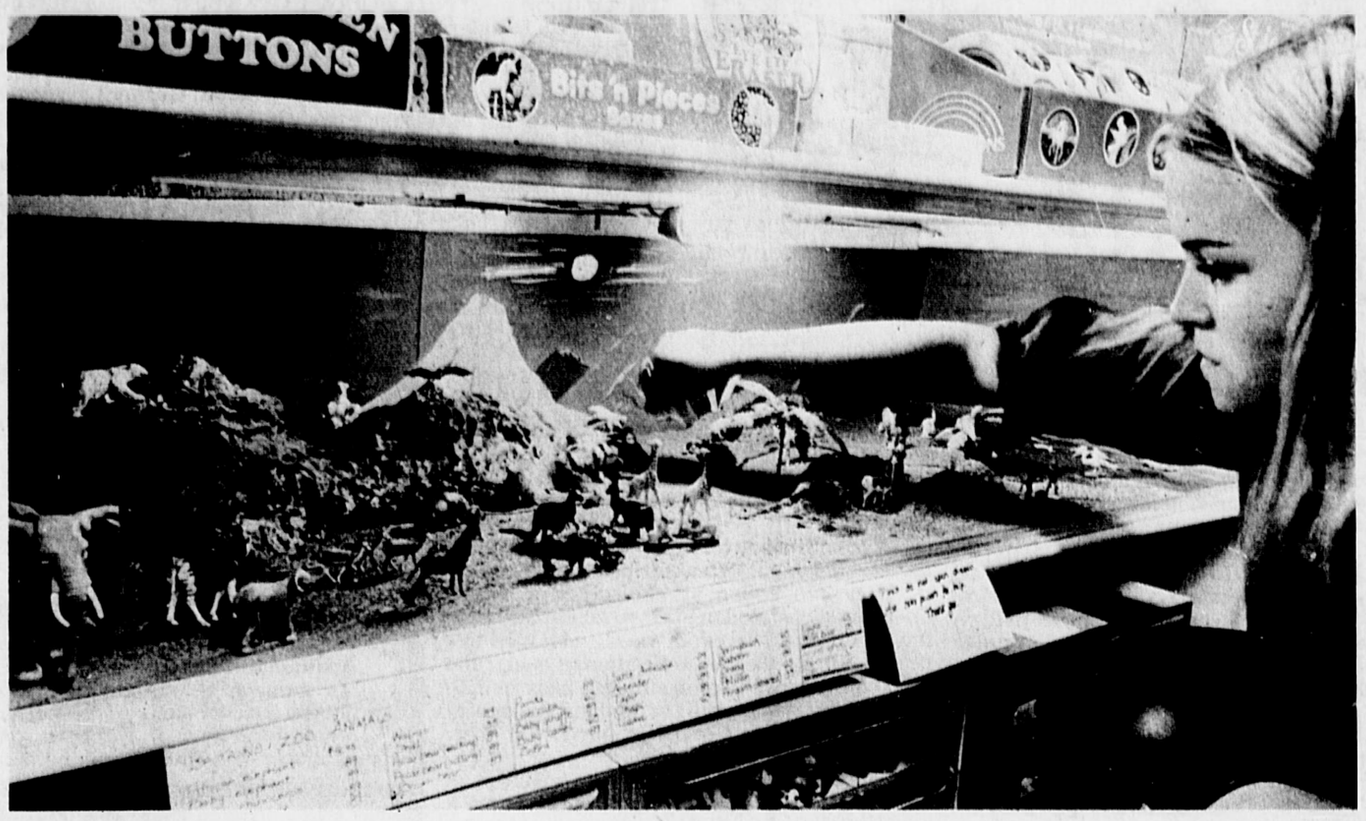

Ameer Atallah
Room E 12
The Greenery Nursing Home
111 Chestnut Hill Ave,
Brighton, Ma. 02135

As of yet Ameer can neither speak or see. His understanding of the human voice, however, is becoming more apparent as each week goes by. Each and every card will be read aloud to him and saved for the day when he will be able to read it himself.

Sincerely,

Dodd, Linda, Marty, Rich, Debbie, Julie, Marilyn, Jeanne, Ethel, Jeanne, Hilda, Kathy, Mary, Mike, Dex, Jim, Arsen, and Gerdy

Twenty-year-old Ameer Atallah

Ameer Atallah,20, of Westwood has been in a coma since February 9th. A card or letter just might trigger a response from the unconscious boy.

By Philip Keohane
Editor

WESTWOOD— His friends call it "Ameer's Project."

Ameer is Ameer Atallah who graduated from Westwood High two years ago. For nearly seven months now Ameer has been in a coma.

Before Ameer's automobile accident, he tended to be on the quiet side, the type who prefered away-from-the-crowd activities. He liked going off to skateboard or skeet shoot, or to waterski where he skimmed along solo on the end of a tow rope.

But above all he enjoyed most digging deep into his creative imagination to come up with ideas for the displays and showcases at the hobby and craft shop where he had worked since he was 14.

When Christmas was over last year, Ameer was put in charge of improving the displays at Youlden's Hobby Shop that had expanded along High St., not too far from the high school. His aim was to have everything done this fall so that the exhibits for Christmas 1982 would be bright and fascinating for the hundreds of children who come into the store.

Ameer's project had just gotten underway when, on the night of February 9, his car crashed in Norwood. Nine doctors worked for nine hours on the injured teenager. He has been unconscious ever since.

But Ameer's project continues.

Eighteen of his fellow workers at the craft shop, including owner Gordon Youlden, have just about completely redone the inside of the structure. They took their cue from the first glass-fronted displays that Ameer had finished in the basement. One was filled with toy mice, complete with their own bowling alley. Ameer had put a background light in the display and built it just about three feet high so that the view was the right height for the hundreds of tots it attracted. He made similar displays with miniature wild animals, complete with mountains and ponds.

"We have pooled our talents and developed new ones that we never knew we had in order to complete what became known to us as 'Ameer's project'", said Youlden.

Although Ameer has not been in the store for six months, he is very much on the minds of those that work there. And almost every day a visiting youngster sees Ameer's work and nudges a companion with: "Hey look at this, a family of funny mice!"

Ameer would like that.

Gordon Youlden visits the lanky boy about three nights a week at the Brighton nursing home where Ameer has been a silent patient for months. Often some of Ameer's co-workers will make the trip too.

There is no tip-toe stillness in the room where Ameer is. His visitors talk to him continuously, chatting about familiar subjects, asking questions, watching for a flicker of response. Some think they see improvement. Ameer turned 20 in July. Thirty friends showed up for the event in his room brightened with comical, giant get-well posters.

"His eyes are open now," one recent visitor said. "That's progress, even if he doesn't see."

Ameer still has one leg in traction. "That's our barometer," Youlden said. "It's almost as if Ameer is sometimes answering a question or responding. He kicks his leg when I asked him if he's ready to come back to work." At other times there are flickers of facial movement, even a smile, from Ameer who is dressed in Bermuda shorts and a T-shirt during the day.

The entire wing on the floor where Ameer is a patient is filled with about 20 other young people ranging from 16 to 24 years of age who are also in comas. One nurse has told a visitor that Ameer has, in her opinion, the best chance of awakening. On the same floor, down the hall, is another wing with patients who are recovering after coming out of comas.

Some medical experts believe "sound therapy" will help most to cut through Ameer's coma. His mother visits daily telling him of her day's bright and light happenings. Even Ameer's pet bird and his cat were brought in for a visit in hopes of a response. A radio hums continuously in the background.

Those that work at Youlden's think they have detected Ameer's increasing understanding of the human voice as they talk and kid and cajole. He neither speaks nor sees. But sometimes he seems to react to a word or a tone of voice.

Recently they have come up with an idea which they think might help reach his consciousness. They are asking those who have enjoyed "Ameer's Project" at the store to let the boy know with a note or a get well card. His co-workers promise that every card will be read aloud to their friend and saved for the day "when he will be able to read it himself."

This too is "Ameer's project."

Julie Youlden looks at the display of toy mice which Ameer designed specifically for children.

Forget butter and syrup: Try garnishing pancakes with fruit

THE SLIM GOURMET

Calorie-conscious cooking

By Barbara Gibbons

Syrup (50 to 60 calories a tablespoon) and butter (100 calories a tablespoon) are the fattening, old-fashioned ways to top pancakes. The better choice is fresh fruit: sliced, chopped, crushed or pureed into a flavorful fresh "sauce."

Right now, peaches and fresh berries are a good choice. Later in the year, hot cinnamon scented applesauce, crushed pineapple or purees of fruits from the freezer can serve as calorie-wise toppings for pancakes, waffles and French toast.

Cottage cheese pancakes are particularly suitable for fruit toppings, and they're as easy to make as the ordinary kind. Here's how:

YOGURT-COTTAGE CHEESE PANCAKES

three-quarters cup low-fat plain or vanilla yogurt half-cup low-fat cottage cheese
2 eggs
three-quarters cup all-purpose flour half-teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
optional: pinch of grated lemon or orange peel

Combine yogurt, cottage cheese and eggs in blender or food processor. Cover and blend until completely smooth and the texture of cream.

Stir flour, baking soda and salt (and peel, if desired) together; add to the yogurt mixture. Blend only until mixed.

Spray a griddle, large nonstick skillet, or electric frypan liberally with cooking spray. Heat until a drop of water dances on the surface. Pour the batter onto the hot surface in pancake rounds. When the pancake tops are bubbled, turn them and brown the other side. Serve hot with pureed peaches, crushed strawberries, applesauce (or "light" syrup). Makes 10 pancakes, under 60 calories each.

PANCAKE SHORTCAKES — Allow Yogurt-Cottage Cheese Pancakes to cool, and reserve them for desserts. For each serving, top the pancake with a half-cup sliced fresh strawberries or other fresh fruit (lightly sweetened with honey, fructose or sugar substitute to taste). Top with a squiggle of light whipped cream or a blend of vanilla yogurt and light whipped cream folded together. Approximately 145 calories per serving.

Here's one big pancake to fill with fresh fruit:

GERMAN FRESH FRUIT PANCAKE

1 cup all-purpose flour half-teaspoon baking powder pinch of salt
1 cup skim milk
5 eggs
4 or 5 ripe peaches, peeled and sliced
2 tablespoons brown sugar
cinnamon

You will need a nonstick skillet with a metal, non-plastic handle than can go into a hot oven.

Stir flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat in milk. Beat in the eggs, 1 at a time.

Spray the skillet liberally with cooking spray. Add the batter. Cook on top of the range over direct heat for 1 minute, then transfer the skillet to a preheated 425-degree oven. Bake uncovered, 20 to 25 minutes until puffed and golden. Remove from the oven. Fill with sliced peaches (or other fresh fruit) lightly sprinkled with brown sugar and cinnamon. Makes six servings, 210 calories each.

WITHOUT A SKILLET — Use a nonstick pie pan. Preheat it in the oven while you make the batter. Spray the pie pan with cooking spray. Pour the batter into the heated pie pan and bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

HOT OR COLD BAKED ZUCCHINI POTATO SALAD

1 large potato, peeled, in julienne strips
2 medium zucchini, in quarter-inch slices
2 tablespoons minced fresh parsley
1 tablespoon olive (or salad) oil three-quarters teaspoon dried chervil leaves (or a pinch of dillweed and tarragon) half-teaspoon salt (or to taste)
optional: lemon to taste

Parboil the potato for 5 minutes, then drain and allow to cool. Combine with remaining ingredients, except lemon, and toss lightly until coated. Mound the mixture on a sheet of aluminum foil, shiny side up. Fold over the foil, then bake the packet in a preheated 375-degree oven for 25 minutes. Open foil and bake 8 to 10 minutes more. (To serve cold, sprinkle with fresh lemon juice to taste.) Makes four side-dish servings, 70 calories each.

Registration to be held for MBTA cards

NEWTON — The Department of Human Services and Council on Aging announced this week that registration for senior citizen and handicapped MBTA identification cards will be held at Newton City Hall on Sept. 15, between 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

The registration will take place in one of the general meeting rooms in the Veterans Department on the first floor. To qualify, senior citizens must be 65 years of age or older. Residents should bring their driver's license or birth certificate for proof of age.

Handicapped residents must have a letter from their physician indicating their disability. There is a 50-cent charge to obtain the I.D. card.

As a result of a policy recently implemented by the MBTA, senior citizens and handicapped individuals who obtain an MBTA ID card can ride on the MBTA system for free during the hours of 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The transpOrtation schedule for registration for senior citizen/handicapped MBTA ID cards is: 9:00 a.m., Norumbega Gardens, Auburndale; 9:10 a.m., Golda Meir House (on Washington Street); 9:20 a.m., Newton Community Service Centers, Davis School, West Newton; 9:30 a.m., Horace Mann Apartments, Newtonville; 9:40 a.m., Paramount Theater, Newton Corner; 9:50 a.m., Jackson Gardens, Newton Corner; 9:55 a.m. Newton Corner Senior Drop-In Center, Lincoln-Eliot School; 10:00 a.m., Newtonville Senior Drop-In Center, Newtonville Library; 10:05 a.m. Newton City Drop Off; 10:20 a.m., Parker House, Newton Centre; 10:30 a.m., Stone Institute, Upper Falls; 10:35 a.m., Echo Ridge, Thurston Road, Upper Falls; 10:40 a.m., Senior Drop-In Center, Zervas School; 10:50 a.m., Newton City Hall Drop-Off.

The return trips will be provided along the same routes.

Disease patients gain group support

NEWTON — The September meeting of the Newton-Wellesley Parkinson's Disease Self-Help Group is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 16 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Usen Auditorium.

Speakers for the meeting are Meg Cibulskis, director of the Parkinson's Disease Resource Center at the Boston University School of Medicine, and Jacqueline Ducharne, social worker at the Resource Center.

The goal of the self-help group is to provide a supportive network wherein patients with Parkinson's disease, as well as their family and friends, can combat feelings of isolation, share common experiences, and learn more about the illness.

For more information about the Self-Help Group, contact Mrs. Ruth Deats at 527-3539 or Mrs. Betty Nimmo at 235-1401. Information is also available from the NWH Public Relations Office, 964-2800, ext. 2246.

The three R's and an eye exam

BOSTON — A Boston vision specialist warns that, along with new jeans, pencils and lunch boxes, parents should also be prepared to have their children undergo a complete, comprehensive eye examination in preparation for the school year.

Dr. Richard C. Laudon, optometrist in charge of the Pediatric Clinic of the New England College of Optometry, says that vision screening may not test vision as it relates to the classroom experience.

He points out that a simple screening evaluates acuity (eyesight) at a distance of twenty feet, while in the classroom students must perform a variety of tasks at various distances.

"The acts of reading and copying from blackboard to desktop are complex and require a completely different set of visual skills than simply reading an eye chart," stresses Laudon.

Three visual skills are critical to visual information processing—focusing, coordination and tracking. Focusing is the ability of the eyes to maintain clarity at various distances, coordination is the ability of both eyes to focus simultaneously on a single object, and tracking is the ability to direct the eyes accurately across a page or down a column.

Many conditions effect a child's visual performance, such as strabismus, or eye turn, and amblyopia, or lazy eye. In many cases these conditions are readily apparent and can be detected during a routine screening.

"They can cause breakdown in a child's ability to direct and sustain visual attention in the classroom," he explains. He adds that this fluctuation in visual performance over time may be the reason some children pass routine screenings yet complain about headaches, fading or blurring of print, or losing their place while reading.

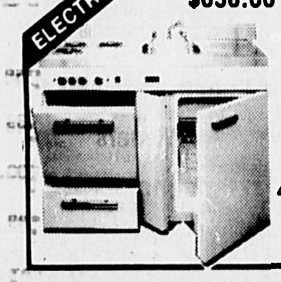

Impaired visual skills can often result in an apparent learning disability. This becomes a problem for the student, and can also be frustrating for the concerned parent. Laudon reminds parents that a vision screening is not a comprehensive evaluation.

Short of a complete eye exam, the pediatric optometrist suggests a number of ways parents can help detect visual disorders. For children over seven years of age, be suspicious if they complain of headaches, blurred vision, or words running together.

Raphel selected vice president of construction

BOSTON — Robert D. Raphel, 39, of Newton, has joined the Boston office of Commonwealth Mortgage Company, Inc. as vice president of construction.

He works closely with developers in out approvals for condominium projects throughout New England. He is also involved in coordinating construction loan programs.

Raphel has been active in the savings and loan industry for the last 15 years as both a loan officer and a managing officer of a savings and loan service corporation which handled condominium conversions.

In addition, he spent over six years as a director of finance for a real estate development company. He was previously with Leader Federal Savings and Loan in Lexington.

Grant to partially fund mural project

NEWTON — The Arts in the Parks program of the Newton Recreation Department has been awarded a $2,500 grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities for general support of its programs.

Linda Plaut, Director of Arts in the Parks, explains that $1,500 of the award will be earmarked for the community mural currently in process under the artistic direction of ceramic muralist Lilli Ann Killen Rosenberg, a Newton resident.

The mural will be installed on the brick wall of the building currently occupied by Brigham's in Newton Centre, and will be dedicated as part of the Harvest Fair festivities, Sunday, Oct. 4.

Throughout the summer, Rosenberg, who in the past 25 years has undertaken similar project in Cambridge, Boston, New York City, Illinois and Columbia, South America, worked with community groups, the Newton Public School's Summer Creative Arts program, other Newton artists, and senior citizens.

Each participant sculpted and molded clay forms which in some way related to the historic, recreational and business theme of the mural.

Completed pieces along with brightly colored mosaics will be imbedded in durable colored concrete in a form celebrating Newton as the Garden City.

An advisory committee consisting of the Newton Centre Businessmen's Association, the Newton Centre Improvement Association, George M. Levy, of Chandler Levy Hardware, Edward Mandell of Alyce J. Mandell, Co., Robert Russo of Russo's The Total Look, Timothy Coppolla, Chairman of the Newton Beautification Commission, Mark Frye of the Mutual Bank for Savings and many, many others has been working on this project since early February.

In addition to the grant, contributions have been received from businesses and individuals. Tax deductible contributions can be made payable to the Newton Centre Improvement Association and sent to Arts in the Parks, Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale, Mass. 02166.

Residents urged to collect unclaimed insurance money

BOSTON — State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane's office is attempting to return $811,608 to more than 6,000 Massachusetts residents under the state's Unclaimed Money Law. Many Newton residents are entitled to some of these unclaimed funds.

Crane noted that these monies have been turned over to the treasury by insurance companies doing business within Massachusetts. Included in the proceeds are; unpaid life insurance benefits, unpaid endowments on term insurance and unpaid benefits on health and liability insurance policies.

"Ninety percent, said Crane, represent the cash value of term life insurance policies which many owners do not realize they are entitled to claim."

Under the state's Unclaimed Money Law (M.G.L. c 200A) accounts which have been unclaimed for seven years are declared abandoned and turned over to the treasury. Crane then tries to locate the rightful owners to return their monies to them. entitlements from these unclaimed insurance /Individual/ accounts range from $25 to a largest single account worth $21,000.

Crane commented that: "For too long the insurance companies of Massachusetts have made little or no effort to locate the owners of these unclaimed accounts. This practice must stop. We've already taken the John Hancock Insurance Company to court for withholding what we believe to be in excess of three million dollars worth of its customers money."

Candidates night set for Sept. 13.

AUBURNDALE — The Ward 4 Newton Republican City Committee will hold a Candidates Night on Sunday, Sept, 13 at 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the home of committee member Flora Ellington, 131 Rowe Street in Auburndale.

According to Ellington, all three mayoral candidates have said they will attend, as well as candidates for Ward 4 Alderman and the school committee candidates. Ward 5 Alderman Carol Ann Shea has also said she will attend, according to Ellington.

Ellington stressed that the candidates night is non-partisan and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Ex-hostages find return an ordeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Readjustment to American society for many of the 52 hostages held captive in Iran for 444 days has been an ordeal of divorce, psychiatric care, stress and threats, it was reported today.

Since they returned in January, four of the hostages have been divorced, two dependents have attempted suicide and many have suffered from ulcers, skin rashes and weight loss, the Washington Post reported.

Katherine Keough, head of the Family Liaison Action Group and wife of former hostage William Keough (a Waltham native), told a presidential commission considering compensation for the hostages that another three couples are planning to split up, the Post said.

The presidential commission formed by President Carter and continued by President Reagan is expected to announce this month its recommendations on the government's obligations to hostage groups, possibly with comprehensive legislation.

Two former hostages have required "extensive neuropsychiatric care" with lengthy periods in institutions and more than a dozen others are receiving some psychiatric care, the commission was told.

In addition, the commission was told many former hostages suffer from high blood pressure, skin rashes, migraine headaches, intestinal and colon disturbances and a number of cases of T-M syndrome, a stress disorder caused by constant grinding of teeth or clenching of jaws, the Post said.

Others have nightmares and flashbacks of their captivity.

"The combined horror of the experience haunts me still," Army Warrant Officer Josephs M. Hall said. "I continue to have the feeling that imminent danger lurks nearby. I know how vulnerable I and my family are and I await the next tragedy."

Malcolm K. Kalp, one of the first hostages to reveal he had been beaten, said he still suffers from "a constant ringing in my ears ... and have difficulty sleeping at night."

"Most do have some problems," Keough said, "but they're not insurmountable. They are just what you'd expect, simple life-adjustment problems. Most are coping. Sort of a normal muddling along."

One freed hostage came back with an urge to stock up on underwear because he had only one pair during his captivity. On his return, he required more dresser and closet space than his wife had alloted him for two dozen pair of underwear.

Dance specialists teach Arts in Parks classes

NEWTON — The Newton Community Concert Band under the directorship of Newton Public Schools music teacher Ron Bergin will begin its third season Tuesday, October 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Emphasizing the traditional concert band repertoire, the band gives community people the opportunity to reactivate long neglected musical instruments in a congenial and professional atmosphere. Woodwind, brass and percussion players of all ages and abilities are invited to participate in band activities.

Originally a dream of Newton resident, Dr. Alan Posner, who believed many Newton and area people looked for opportunities for ensemble playing, the Arts in the Parks program of the Newton Recreation Department applied for and received a seed grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities to help launch the band.

Rehearsals are held Tuesdays beginning October 6 in the Music Room at Newton South High School. The fee for registration is $10. To register send check payable to Arts in the Parks, Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Newton, Mass. 02166.

EMTs offered refresher plan

LOWER FALLS — The Norumbega Chapter of Massachusetts Emergency Medical Technicians will sponsor a Department of Transportation refresher course beginning Sept. 22, running six consecutive Tuesday nights and all day Saturday, Oct. 31.

Course fee is $10 for members, and $30 for non-members who will be admitted only if space is available.

The Norumbega Chapter will run the refresher course every other year. Anyone who will need refresher training between September, 1981 and December, 1982, should plan to attend the course this year and fulfill the requirements.

To register, call Marlene O'Keefe, Newton-Wellesley Hospital Emergency Dept., 964-2800, ext. 2193.

Congressman Frank to speak at solar exhibit

NEWTON — Congressman Barney Frank will be the featured speaker at the "This Is Solar" Fair and Exhibition, the kickoff program for Newton Solar Week, on Sunday, Sept. 13 from 1 to 5 p.m. at Newton City Hall. A supporter of alternate energy programs, Frank will speak on "Solar in America."

The "This Is Solar" Fair and Exhibition will be held inside and on the grounds of Newton City Hall at Walnut Street and Commonwealth Avenue.

In a festive atmosphere of balloons, clowns, music and food (including solar oven cookies), residents will have a chance to view solar energy displays and exhibits, including the Massachusetts State Energy Office Solar Bus.

On Monday, Sept. 14, at 7:30 p.m., Lew Boyd, president of Boyd Associates, will speak on "Active Solar Domestic Hot Water" at the Newton Highlands Branch Library, 20 Hartford St., Newton Highlands.

On Tuesday, Keith B. Gross, solar architect, will speak at 7:30 p.m. at the Boston College Law School (Newton), 885 Centre St., in Stuart Hall, Rm. 411, on "Solar Greenhouses and Sunspaces."

"Solar in New Construction" will be the topic of a lecture by Robert O. Smith and Norman Saunders, both solar engineers, at the Boston College Law School in Rm. 411, Stuart Hall, at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

Terry Bastian, solar designer, will speak on "Do-it-yourself Solar Projects" at the Newtonville Branch Library, 345 Walnut St., at 7:30 pm. on Thursday.

"Women's Energy Workshop" will be the subject of a lecture by Stephanie Gibson, solar architect, at the West Surburban Y.M.C.A., 276 Church St., Newton Corner, at 9:30 a.m. on Friday.

John Pearce, energy writer and consultant, will speak on "Planning your Solar Retrofit" both on Saturday, Sept. 19 and Sept. 26, from 10 a.m. to noon at the West Surburban Y.M.C.A., Newton Corner.

A complete schedule of events is available from the Newton Housewarming Solar Office by calling 552-7057.

Some facts that will curl your hair.
If you've been thinking about giving yourself a home perm, there's something you should know. The reason perms curl your hair is because they literally rearrange the molecules within the hairshaft permanently. Whether you end up with soft waves or frizz depends on how, and how much those molecules are rearranged. At our salon, our stylists are trained in the chemistry of permanent waving. They don't take it lightly. Before each perm, you can ask them to analyze your hair to be sure it can take the chemical change and come through it beautifully. So if you want the curl and easy care of a perm, come to our salon. We recommend perms by Redken; the scientific hair care company. So don't risk your hair's beauty. Come into our salon and make a permanent change—for the best!

Newton women plan Gourmet gala for March of Dimes

DEDHAM — A number of Newton women are members of planning committees for the March of Dimes Gourmet Gala on Sunday, Oct. 11 at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston.

National and local celebrities will prepare one of their favorite dishes at a special cooking station, and guests at the elegant, black tie affair will be able to taste each dish. Funds raised by the gala will be used in the fight against birth defects, which affect 250,000 children each year in the United States.

Among the celebrities participating in this year's Boston Gala sponsored by the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation are Beverly Sills, Tufts University President, Dr. Jean Mayer, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Craig Claiborne of The New York Times and Robin Young of NBC.

Serving on the Food and Nutrition Committee are Lora Brody, president of The Woman's Culinary Guild as co-chairman and Christine Masclee, director of public relations for Ocean Spray.

Sybil Tonkonogy, talk show hostess on WNTN, is on the publicity committee. Mrs. David E. Genser, Mrs. Thomas P. R. Hinchey, Mrs. Edward Masterman, Mrs. Michel Rosen, Mrs. Robert Sage and Mrs. Edward Lampert have been named to the Social and Ticket Committee.

For more information call the March of Dimes, 329-1360. Massachusetts Bay Chapter of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation is at 865 Providence Highway, Dedham 02026.

BOSTON—People who like animals and children may have a choice of volunteer jobs this fall at the New England Aquarium, Central Wharf, Boston.

Volunteer openings include introducing children to starfish and horseshoe crabs, working behind the scenes in the galleries, interpreting exhibits to visitors and working in the gift shop.

Volunteers also benefit from an extensive education course about the world of water and its fishy inhabitants. Weekday courses begin Thursday, Sept. 25 through Thursday, Nov. 19 (except Thursday, Oct. 8) from 1 to 3 p.m. Evenning classes will be held Fridays Sept. 25 through Nov. 13 from 6 to 8 p.m.

For more information about volunteering at the New England Aquarium, call 742-8830, ext. 293 weekdays.

Coach Norm Wall

Hard work could reward Tiger eleven

By Steve Tiberi
Sports Correspondent

A year ago at this time Newton North coach Norm Walker was faced with a team that had just one player returning on offense and a group of inexperienced players to try and fill the holes with.

That team went 6-3-1 and Walker believes the performance of the 1980 squad has inspired this year's team. Walker greeted 107 candidates on Monday for the first day of practice at Newton North field and was impressed by the condition and attitude of his troops.

"They were in phenomenal shape," said Walker. "This has been the best group I've seen in a few years. They came into practice in good condition and with a good attitude."

"I think it goes back to last year's team," said Walker, who has been the head coach at Newton North for eight years and a coach for 20. "We only had one starter on offense back and that team worked hard to win as many games as it did. A lot of those kids are back and are ready to play and play well."

The Tigers have five starters returning on offense and six on defense. A group of talented players that saw limited action on last year's team are back to asssume full time roles.

"We have some people back and the talent is there," said Walker. "But, I want to stress blocking and tackling in the early going. The Suburban League is competitive and we are going to have to block and tackle well in order to do well. Blocking well and tackling well are the keys to a good season."

The Tigers have scheduled three scrimmages in the next two weeks to practice the fundamentals. Milton is the first opponent on Saturday and Walpole, a perennial Bay State League power, will face North on next Wednesday. Natick will meet North the following Saturday. The regular season opens Saturday, Sept. 19, against Framingham North.

There will be nothing fancy about the Tiger offense this season, not with three-year fullback Al Fortune in the backfield. Fortune is a punishing runner. "When Al gets up a head of steam, watch out," said Walker. Backing up Fortune will be John Corsi and Ed Natale.

Speedy senior Adam McKee, 6-1, 215, could be the other halfback. Another halfback prospect is Mike Abresze, who saw limited game time last season. Junior Ralph Torrez could also see some action.

The quarterback position is up for grabs and three or four players are in a fight for the job. Rich Marcioni, who started as a defensive back last season, has worked hard in the off-season and will make a strong run. Tim Brandon, a 6-4, 180-pound junior, has an excellent arm and with a little experience could be the best of the bunch. Ryan Foley, who backed up Bob Billings last year, is also in the running. Lefthander Fred Dalicandro, a senior, has the ability to lead the team.

"What it might come down to," said Walker "is the person who runs the club the best, will get the job. Right now the position is wide open."

Whoever does get the quarterback job will have a talented corps receivers to throw to. The Tigers have an abundance of talented ends. Mario Proia back from last year is a good blocker with good hands. Junior Deane Morreale, 6-1, 215 pounds, John Coppola, 6-6, 215 pounds, and Paul Howley are all possible starters at the end postion. Junior George Claflin will also challenge for an end spot.

Bill Drew will be back at the wide receiver slot and he can give the Tigers a speedy back and deep threat.

Along the offensive line, the Tigers have a pair of veteran tackles back to lead the way. Kevin Connell and Kevin Troy played all of last season and the two will add stability to the line. The center spot is wide open with 6-5 210-pound junior Dan Reilly and senior Peter Aisenberg vying for the spot.

The guard position is also a bit of a question mark. Senior Terry Clarey, who started last season, will be at right guard. Aisenberg, junior Jeff Gormada or Paul Bresnahan could start on the other side. Junior Mat Davis also has a shot at the guard spot.

The defense is experienced in the secondary and the end position. Captain David Rowland will lead the defense from his end spot. Rowland started every game last season and is the leader on defense. Ed McCarthy will return to his middle guard spot. Howley, Proia, Claflin or Coppola could all have a shot at the other end spot.

The tackles are Gromada, Connell, Troy, Morreale and junior Leo Butera could earn a starting role. Fortune will go two ways and play inside linebacker. Seniors Neil Hadro and Steve McGrath will also see action at linebacker.

Marcioni and Drew will return to their cornerback position, but are being pushed by senior Bob Mack. Tim Mulvey will be the safety.

The Tigers are looking for someone to handle the punting game. Foley and junior Clarey have been battling for the spot. Senior Peter Munsat will handle the place kicking chores.

Walker will be assisted this year by John Bamberry, who in his second year. Bob Malone, who is returning to high school coaching after 15 years, will coach the lineman. Mike Coppola is back to coach the secondary, running backs and quarterbacks. Carl Pockwinse and Frank Looney are coaching the junior varsity.

Newton South to go airborne

Newton South football coach Art Kojoyian has only had his team together for one day of practice and he will be the first to admit that many questions must be answered and some holes filled.

Kojoyian will also tell you, after just the first day of practice with his 60 candidates at Newton South High, that his team is going to throw the football frequently in the upcoming campaign. The Lions mentor has a couple of good reasons for his willingness to go to the airways.

They are a pair of experienced and talented ends that can catch the football and a couple of quarterbacks with strong arms. Mike Antonellis, a Dual-County League All-Star last year, is returning to the right end spot and David Hill will be the left end.

Joe Spagnulo and Jon Greenberg will battle it out for the starting quarterback position. Greenberg, a senior, started the season last year and has a strong arm. Spagnulo, a junior, started the last four games of the campaign as a sophomore and displayed a propensity for getting results by throwing the football.

"We're going to throw the football this season," said Kojoyian. "Last season we threw for over 300 yards in one game. We have the people that can catch and the people that can throw."

Greenberg and Spagnulo will have a chance to show what they can do in the scrimmages. Newton South will face Framingham North on Saturday and will also scrimmage Bishop Fenwick.

"It'll be up to them to determine who starts," said Kojoyian. "I'll watch their performances in the scrimmages and make my decision. They will split the duties in the pre-season games. One of them will have to win it."

Kojoyian hopes to put a running game together to complement the passing attack. The Lions have just one back returning with a vast amount of varsity experience. Arthur Walton is a senior and has been running for the Lions since his sophomore season. Walton is South's quickest back and should do a lot of running. Jim Hanelin, John Stevens and Steve Anglin will also be tried at the running back spot.

"We have a lot of backs," said Kojoyian, "but not much size. Our biggest back is about 160 pounds. We may get some help from some good-looking sophomores, but it's too early to tell."

Chris Kiah and Kevin Perry are raw, but have some speed and could help the running attack. Steve Brady, Mike Lombardo and Mike Newmark are also sophomores with speed.

"These sophomores showed me a few things in the first day," said Kojoyian. "They have a lot to learn, however, and it is going to be a teaching process. We are going to have to get a lot of things in by the first game of the season just three weeks away."

The Lions open the season on Saturday, Sept. 19, against Littleton. Along the offensive line, senior co-captain Dave MacDonald played at guard last year and is the most experienced lineman. At center, Kojoyian hasn't made a decision, but Mark Stolpinski and Dave Ingham are fighting for the job.

The other guard slot is up for grabs. Ken Kohlberg and Jim Campbell, both seniors, are possible. At the tackle spot, 245-pound junior Bob Baker could start. Juniors Neil Johnson, Adam Elman and Gene Lindsey are also fighting for a starting position.

The key to the offensive line could be the versatility of Mike Pappas. The senior could move from his end spot to tackle or guard.

As on the offense, the defense of the Lions will be highlighted by a pair of strong ends. Senior Denis Murphy, who started last year at defensive end, is back. On the other side Pappas will handle the chores. Baker will play at left defensive tackle. Rich Gockelman and Johnson are other tackles for the defensive line.

MacDonald and Ingham are the leading candidates for the tough inside linebacker role in Newton South's 52 defense. Steve Mosca, a starter last year, returns to his cornerback slot. Jim Hanelin is a prospect for the other corner. Hill returns to the safety postion and Steve Anglin is the other safety.

Former Junior Varsity coach Paul Murphy is coaching the backs this season. John Staulo, who wrestled and played football at Newton South and later the University of Rhode Island, is the first-year line coach. John Kennedy, another former South player, is the jayvee coach. Greg McKenny will be the freshman coach. Art Kojoyian Jr. is helping out at freshman line coach.

CFL Roundup

Ferragamo's struggling

(UPI) — While Edmonton Eskimo quarterback Warren Moon silenced most of his critics with his latest performance, Montreal Alouette QB Vince Ferragamo would have to invest in a pair of heavy-duty ear plugs to accomplish the same feat.

Moon, who has been criticized throughout the year for his inability to finish off long downfield drives, guided the Eskimos to four touchdowns and a 44-34 victory Sunday afternoon over the Saskatchewan Roughriders in their Canadian Football League game.

Ferragamo, the high-priced refugee from the NFL's Los Angeles Rams, had two passes picked off and was removed in the fourth quarter during the Alouettes' 16-11 loss Saturday night to the Hamilton Tiger Cats.

In the other CFL games on the weekend, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, led by the two-touchdown performance of 1980 rookie-of-the-year William Miller, downed the Ottawa Rough Riders 31-8; and quarterback Joe Paopao tossed three scoring strikes to lead the B.C. Lions to a 31-21 decision over the Calgary Stampeders.

"I knew I'd have to come back to make the big plays — I'm starting to play more aggressively," said Moon, who completed 26-of-40 passes for 418 yards.

Moon admitted his performance may have been inspired by necessity as Saskatchewan quarterback John Hufnagel had an even more impressive afternoon.

St. Patrick's fortified by seasoned linemen

By Ernie Jones
Sports Correspondent

"It's whats up front that counts."

St. Patrick's football coach Bob McIntyre hopes the adage holds true for the upcoming Catholic Suburban League season.

The Knights boast a strong veteran line and McIntyre is happy with what he's observed so far in the opening days of double-session practice.

"Our strong point is the line. We have some veterans and some good size," the Knights' mentor said.

He added, "The team reported in good shape. I like the attitude. It's positive. You can't spend too much time on conditioning because only a week of double sessions is not enough time to get someone in shape."

Bill Lederman heads the list of lineman that McIntyre will build his clud around. Lederman, a senior tackle, tips the scales at 200 and is 6-1 in height. He was a starter last season and no stranger to the Catholic Suburban curcuit.

Mike Reilly is new to the team this season. He is a transfer student from Cambridge Rindge and Latin and weighs in at 190. McIntyre is trying him out at tackle and is pleased with his progress so far.

At the guards' slots are senior Tony Gulla and junior Jim Petito. Gulla is a seasoned veteran and a senior. Petito is showing improvement each day.

Senior Chris Murphy is at center and his 5-10, 185 pound size should help on the tough yards up the middle. Frank Minelli is being utilized at tight end. McIntyre feels he has the right combination of blocking ability, speed and hands to handle the demanding position.

The Knights had 25 players come out on the first day of practice. McIntyre expects more freshmen when school opens. Two years ago when talk circulated that the school might close the size of the enrolment suffered. McIntyre is optimistic with the number of students increasing that his pool of talent will increase as well.

An important addition to the team is Asst. Coach Bob Currier. He handles the defense and the line. Currier was the head coach at Don Bosco for 14 years and decided he needed a change. His experience should prove an asset.

Morning practice sessions are held with full equipment and the time is filled with hard-hitting drills. The squad practices in shorts in the afternoons and goes over plays. McIntyre wasted little time instituting his multiple offense.

According to McIntyre, the offensive backfield needs work. Jim Barrett was back-up quarterback last season and will probably start in the Knights' opening contest.. Ed Donnelly will play fullback and handle some of the tough yards on dive plays as well as provide much of the backfield blocking.

Junior Dave Nagle will be tailback and might be the ball carrier on sweeps, while teammate Steve Fahey will be flanker back. Mike Sullivan will play at split end and will also be called upon to pull down aerials.

McIntyre said he'll probably take advantage of his strong line and run more than throw on offense. The St. Patrick's mentor added that the team's real strength might be its defense.

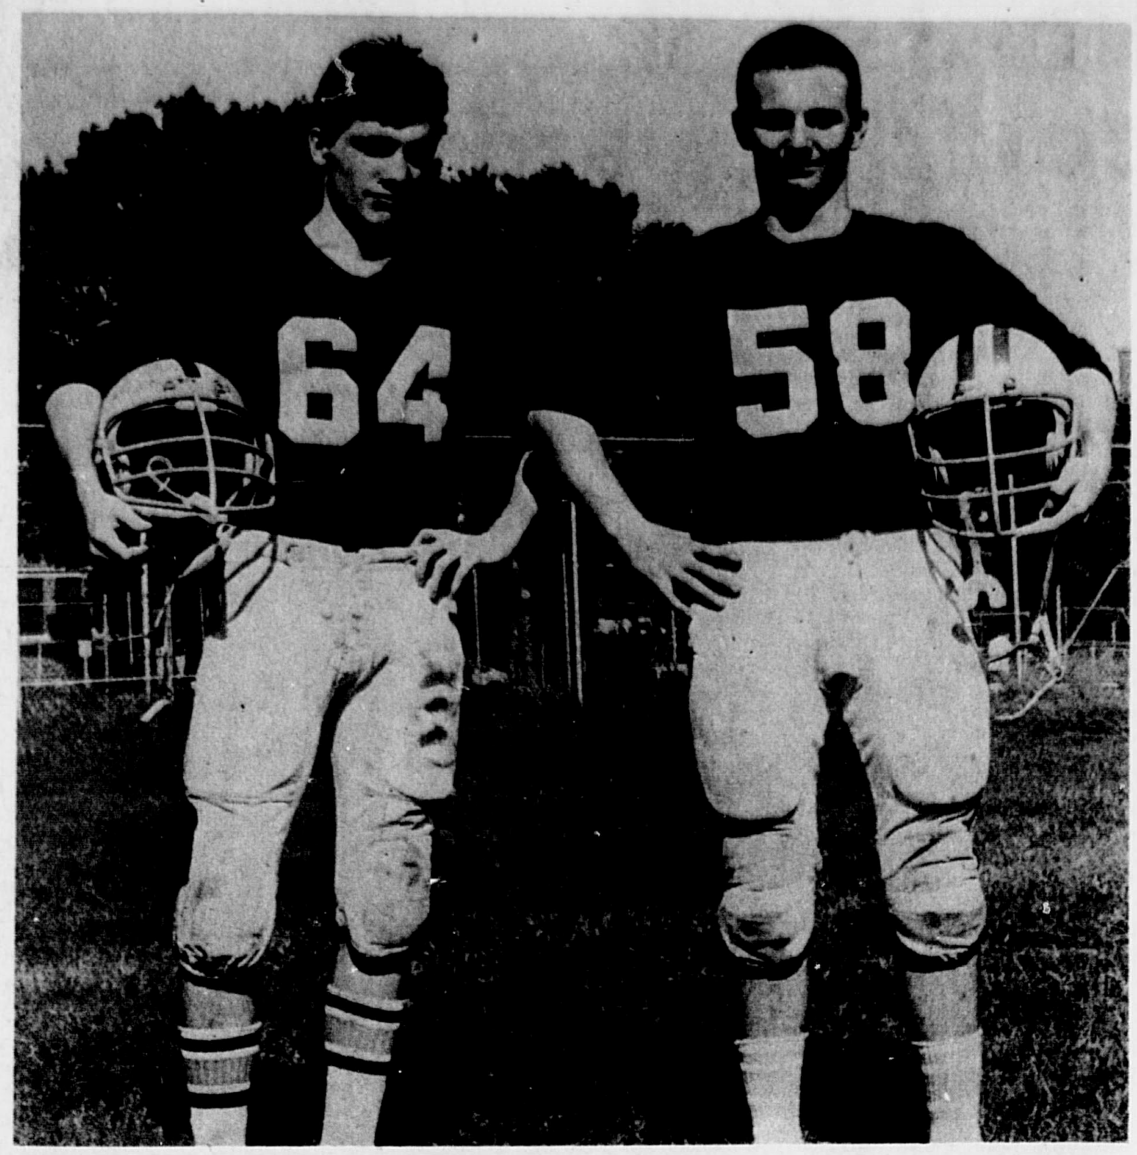

"We always have a good defense," McIntyre said.

With 24 players most of the Knights who make the grade will have to play both ways. Last season, the Knights finished with a 3-6-1 record.

"It's too early for predictions," McIntyre said. "We'll take them one game at a time," he added.

The Knights should be able to see where they stand when they take on Cohasset and Tyngsboro in a scrimmage Saturday morning at Cohasset.

St. Patrick's will host Hudson Catholic at Victory Field on either the 19th or 20th of September, McIntyre hopes to arrange some night games.

Bout at Caesar's

Holmes will fight Cooney next March

CLEVELAND (UPI) — World Boxing Council Heavyweight Champion Larry Holmes will fight No. 1 contender Gerry Cooney next March at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas after first defending his title against Renaldo Snipes, fight promoter Don King told UPI Monday.

Snipes, 24, of White Plains, N.Y., will get his chance Nov. 6. at a site yet to be determined, King said.

"The Cooney-Holmes fight will be the biggest ever," King said. "We'll be announcing everything later at a big press conference."

Like Cooney, Snipes is undefeated. He ran his record to 22-0 in August with a controversial split decision victory over Gerrie Coetzee of South Africa. Snipes was knocked down twice in the bout and cut around both eyes. He lacks any real punching power and Holmes will be a heavy favorite in the bout.

Cooney, an awesome puncher, knocked out former heavyweight champion Ken Norton in just 56 seconds last May. It followed a first-round knockout of Ron Lyle, another former top contender, last October, and a 4-round technical knockout over Jimmy Young.

Dennis Rappaport, one of Cooney's managers, said an agreement had been reached and that the contract signing was expected soon.

Ainge battle is back in court

NEW YORK (UPI) — The legal battle to determine whether Toronto infielder Danny Ainge stays in baseball or jumps to the Boston Celtics of the NBA resumes in U.S. District Court.

The Blue Jays obtained a restraining order Aug. 25 which prevented the Celtics from negotiating with the former Brigham Young All-American guard. A hearing is scheduled for 4 p.m. on Toronto's litigation.

The Celtics, in a suit of their own filed the same day, maintain a clause in Ainge's contract which prohibits him from playing basketball even if he retires from baseball effectively prevents Ainge from joining the world champions. A hearing on the Celtics' suit is scheduled for today in U.S. District Court in Boston.

The Celtics, who drafted Ainge in the second round of the June 9 NBA draft, are convinced Ainge wants to retire from baseball. Last week, published reports said Ainge was given verbal assurances by the Blue Jays he could make the switch and that he was willing to pay back his $300,000 bonus. Toronto officials heatedly deny such assurances were given and have vowed to make Ainge live up to his contractual commitments with the club.

If Ainge wins, the language will be removed from his contract. Standard clauses prohibiting active players from participating in another professional sport will remain, but he could get around that by placing himself on a voluntary retired list. Ainge has said he would repay the bonus.

Newton Youth Hockey tryouts this weekend

Tryouts for the travel teams of Newton Youth Hockey will be held on Saturday and Sunday at the Fessenden School Rink in West Newton. All players should be at the rink a half-hour before taking the ice in full uniform including full face masks and internal mouth guards for pee wees, bantams and midgets.

The tryout times for the midgets (born 1965-1966) are 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. The bantams (1967-1968) tryouts begin at 9:40 a.m. to 11:10 a.m. The pee wees (1969-1970) start at 11:20 a.m. to 12:50 p.m. The squirts (1971-1972) begin at 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. The mites (1973-1974) start at 2:40 p.m. to 3:40 p.m.

Injury to Robiskie puts him out for the season

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins may have lost reserve fullback Terry Robiskie for the season.

Robiskie suffered both ligament and cartilage damage to his right knee covering a kickoff Sunday in the Miami Dolphins' 20-7 victory in St. Louis.

Coach Don Shula said Monday the Dolphins were in the process of activating rookie free agent linebacker Rodel Thomas, a Quincy, Fla., resident, who played college football at Alabama State.

Shula said Thomas would be used to fill Robiskie's place on special teams and would work at linebacker.

John's son makes 'dramatic recuperation'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "dramatic recuperation" of the 2 ½-year-old son of New York Yankees' pitching star Tommy John means the child could be back with his family before the end of the week, doctors said Monday.

Travis John, who was on the critical list for three weeks, was "behaving just like any normal 2 ½-year-old," said Dr. Fred Epstein, the pediatric neurosurgeon treating the boy.

Epstein said the tot probably would be discharged from New York University Medical Center on Thursday, barring any change in his condition.

The child plummeted from a third-floor window at the family's New Jersey summer home Aug. 10, and suffered serious skull injuries.

NWH offers PEP approach to pregnancy

NEWTON — Newton-Wellesley Hospital offers a multidisciplinary program to teach pregnant women how to stay physically fit, and to help them understand the emotional changes that accompany pregnancy.

The PEP Program (Physical Fitness, Experiencing Pregnancy, and Prenatal Nutrition) is a four-week course consisting of four hours of exercise and discussion. A registered physical therapist will lead classes on relaxation techniques, posture and muscle toning, while a registered dietitian and a childbirth nurse will present discussions on nutrition and prenatal issues.

Women are urged to enroll in their second or third month of pregnancy. Written referral by an obstetrician is required. Husbands or friends are also welcome to attend.

Cost for the four-week course is $20 for women and 25 for couples. September classes will be held on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. in the hospital's Usen Auditorium.

For further information, call 964-2800, ext. 2343.

Service News

NEWTON LOWER FALLS — Navy Dentalman Napoleon A. Morse, son of Robert A. and Elizabeth Morse of Cornell St., Newton Lower Falls, is currently deployed to the Mediterranean Sea.

He is a crew member aboard the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz, homeported in Norfolk, Va.

During the ship's fourth Mediterranean cruise, the crew is participating in training exercises with other 6th Fleet ships and units of allied nations. The six-month cruise will also include port calls in several Mediterranean coastal cities.

Mental Health

Images

By Marvin Snider

The image we present to other people is an important part of how we communicate.

In business, there are clear standards regarding proper dress. For the adolescent, it may be important to have a unique look, especially one that sets him apart from his family. For some women and men, it is important that they look "right" and that their clothes have the "right" labels.

For others, it is being in the "right" neighborhood, belonging to the "right" organizations and sending their children to the "right" schools.

Why is image so important?

Communication, the way people convey information to one another, is the means by which relationships are managed and work accomplished. The first impression is conveyed by appearance.

If you walked into your doctor's or dentist's office and found him and his office unkempt, you would probably feel uneasy. His appearance and that of his office conveyed an impression about what to expect without a word being said. It may or may not be correct. Nevertheless, that brief impression can determine whether you pursue the relationship further.

The same is true of how people seek out relationships at a party. If a person's appearance appeals to you, you want to meet him or her. If he seems unattractive, your attentions will go elsewhere.

People who are uncertain about themselves or who are particularly interested in gaining approval of other people or feel part of a group may pay particular attention to their appearance. This occurs frequently with adolescents, who put a high priority on dressing alike and different from parental expectations.

This is part of normal development which serves two purposes: It helps a child move out into the world and gain acceptance and experience in dealing with peers.

Similar experiences can also apply to adults. It is not uncommon to hear a person say, "I feel like a different person when I dress up. It makes me feel good." For some adults, the mid-life crisis is expressed by maintaining a youthful image in dress, speech and behavior.

The communication of an image is not limited to physical appearance. It can also apply to ways of walking and talking. It also has to do with being or doing the "in" thing, be it smoking marijuana, drinking alcohol or idolizing a musical group.

We all need to feel loved, appreciated, and to belong to someone or something. Appearance and behavior are ways in which this gets expressed.

With maturity, the ways and priorities in which this may be accomplished are broadened and enlarged. While an adult may be concerned about appearance, priority and emphasis may shift to quality of character and accouting more to one's self than to what others think.

An important ingredient to achieving success in relationships and in the work world is to be aware of the kind of image that is needed and to learn how to convey the desired impression within the framework of your own values.

Some people think concern with image is superficial and to be frowned upon. We need to distinguish between concern with image, its presentation and the values which underly it.

Having a good sense of your own identity is important for good mental health. How you communicate that to the rest of the world is a separate question. Effective communication of who we are and how we want to be seen is a key ingredient to social and vocational success.

If you have a question or topic you feel would be of general interest, send it to: Dr. Marvin Snider, The Institute at Newton, 30 Lincoln Street, Newton, Mass., 02161. Copyright, 1981, by Dr. Marvin Snider, Director of The Institute at Newton, Newton Highlands.

Chiropractic for Health

by Dr. David G. Rutman, Chiropractor

You can be a bit of a diagnostician when it comes to your own children. In fact, you should be on the alert for possible spinal misalignments. They can often be observed when the child is standing still or moving. Look for balance. In other words, the shoulders should be even, the elbow equally turned out, feet pointed slightly out in equal amounts and the like. When the child is moving, there should be no extra weight given to one side, no extra rolling on one foot or extra throwing of one arm while running. Keep an eye on your children.

Chiropractic treatment can help children, housewives, secretaries, athletes and businessmen. Children respond well to chiropractic treatment and they make good patients. Protect their spines and their postural development. If you have a job that involves repetitious tasks you may benefit from treatment. Athletes benefit from chiropractic in treatment for athletic injuries. Everyone who suffers from the tension and stress of today's hectic pace can breathe easier and feel better with regular chiropractic treatment. DR. DAVID G. RUTMAN, CHIROPRACTOR, 4593 Washington Street, Roslindale, 323-5022.

CHIRO TIP:
When checking your children's posture, have them open their mouths. The jaw should drop straight, not to the right or left.

How to claim your money.

If your name appears on the State Treasurer's Unclaimed Money list, published in today's newspaper, call or write:

Business Women to meet Sept. 17

WELLESLEY — The Boston West Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will meet on Thursday, Sept. 17.

This meeting and future meetings will be held at the Trim Conference Center, Babson College, Wellesley, the meetings start at 6:30 p.m.

A vocational speaker, who is a member of the 33-member chapter, speaks at each meeting. This month's guest speakers will be Dianne Damata, assistant treasurer, Dedham Institute for Savings. Lillian Greene will be the vocational speaker. She is the corresponding secretary for the Boston West Chapter and works at Eaton Corporation. For more information contact Johanne DeMarco, president, Boston West Chapter, at 237-4072.

Children's theatre begins fall term

BOSTON — Creative Drama, an exciting concept in childhood education, is what the Boston Children's Theatre is all about. Now in its thirty-first season of "children performing for children," the Boston Children's Theatre is beginning its fall term of classes.

Registration for the classes will be held Sept. 14 to 18 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Classes will begin the week of Sept. 21.

Offered after school Monday through Friday and on Saturday mornings, the classes group children according to age and experience. Children ages 8-17 are eligible to take the classes offered at the beginner, intermediate and advanced levels.

The material covered in the courses includes improvisation, pantomime, speech and work on scenes.

For further information, contact the Boston Children's Theatre, 124 Holland Road, Brookline, MA 02146; telephone 277-3277.

Glee Club holds open rehearsals

NEEDHAM — Men with singing experience are invited to two open rehearsals of the Highland Glee Club, on Monday, Sept. 14 and 21 at 7:45 p.m. at the Auburndale Congregational Church, Grove Street.

The club, which began in 1908 as a local men's chorus in Newton Highlands, now includes singers from many Boston communities and chooses its programs from a library of more than 800 selections. The club repertoire includes modern and classical songs, sacred music, folk and humorous songs, ballads and show tunes.

Each season, the glee club sings in December and April for its sponsoring members and the general public. It also performs throughout the Boston area for social and fraternal organizations, church groups and fund-raising activites. Each program is tailored to the occasion with soloists and extra music as required.

For further information call 444-2663 or 893-1500 (days) and 893-8750 (evenings).

A Cappella choir holds auditions

FRAMINGHAM — The A Cappella Singers, a greater Framingham women's concert choir under the direction of Astrid Thalheimer, announces openings for all voice parts for the 1981-1982 season.

President Joan Gay of Framingham presented the new program which will begin on Monday, Sept. 14 with the first of two open rehearsals. The second will be held on the following Monday, Sept. 21. Auditions will be scheduled after these rehearsals on Saturday, Sept. 26 and Tuesday, Sept. 29.

Prospective new members are invited to attend both open rehearsals at Scott Hall in Framingham Center. For more information, contact Lois Himml, Framingham (877-3845) or Joan Gay, Framingham (877-3824).

Gay also announced the board's selection of Susan Habel of Arlington as A Cappella accompanist for this season. Miss Habel is presently teaching piano and organ in Arlington, Sherborn, and Needham and she is music director for Grace Lutheran Church in Needham.

"Pins and Needles" opens Sept. 10

BOSTON — "Pins and Needles," the 1937 musical review with music by Harold Rome, moves to Boston's Theatre District on Sept. 10.

Originally performed by members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, the show salutes the spirit of unionism in the 1930's with sparkling songs, amusing original skits, and colorful staging by an energetic cast who capture the play's powerful statement.

"Pins and Needles" is produced by the Peoples Theatre of Cambridge, one of greater Boston's oldest theatre companies, which has received such distinguished credits as the Association for the Performing Arts Award in 1980 and 1981, as well as John Bush Jones' of the Boston Phoenix Best Play Award for its 1980 production of "Bus Stop."

"Pins and Needles" will be performed Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 10-12, 17-19, 24-26; Oct. 1-3, and Sunday, Oct. 4, at 8 p.m., with a matinee on Saturdays at 3 p.m., at the Church of All Nations, 333 Tremont Street, Boston.

Tickets $6.50 Thursday evenings and Saturday matiness; $8.50 Friday and Saturday evenings.

For advance tickets and information, call 451-6480. Senior Citizen and Group Rates available.

Paul Leone

NONANTUM — As a cool autumn chill hung in the morning air, more than 250 friends, relatives and neighbors paid homage to Paul (Pompeo) Leone Thursday morning at Our Lady's Help of Christians Church in Newton.

The 56-year-old Leone, who was buried at Newton Cemetery, died last Monday in a mid-day landslide of earth and stone at the Porter Square MBTA construction site. The station is one of several stops on the $43 million Red Line extension project.

Leone, along with two other men who escaped harm, had been installing tow anchor shortings into the rock face when the supports gave way, sending a cascade of earth, sand and rock onto the Nonantum man.

After 70 minutes of feverish digging by close to 30 people, including Leone's brother, Bob, the Newton man was pulled from the debris. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Cambridge City Hospital just after 2 p.m.

Taking passage from John's Gospel, Assistant Pastor Robert Fichtner told the mourners that Leone's life had taken a different form than what he had known prior to the accident.

"We come here this morning all with various ties to Paul Leone and his family. We come here with a sense of loss and grief which is human nature and is good," said Fichtner. "But because we believe to God we have hope and faith that death is not the end but a new beginning for a better life."

Fichtner, who did not know Leone personally, called his sudden death "tragic."

Leone, born in San Donato, Italy emigrated to the United States 15 years ago. He is survived by his wife, Fiorita, two daughters, Pasqualina Leone and Carmine Colomba Denino, and two grandchildren.

"I am the resurrection and in life he who believes in me though he die shall live and every one who lives and believes in me shall never die," read Fichtner.

"It is the uncertainty of life," that I wanted to stress and "how quick it can all be over," said Fichtner.

The cave-in at the subway tunnel excavation site is currently under investigation by three state agencies.

Ursula (Hollander) Manhard

Ursula M. (Hollander) Manhard, 73, a Newton florist for many years, died unexpectedly Sunday, Aug. 30.

Active in community and city affairs throughout her life, Mrs. Manhard was a corresponding secretary of the Newton Ward I Republican Committee. She was also a member of the Newton Women's Republican Club, the Newton Community Club, the DAV Auxiliary, W.J. Farrell Post 23, the YMCA Auxiliary and the Friends' Committee of the Newton Veterans Honor Guard.

For the past 30 years, Mrs. Manhard organized the sale of Christmas wreaths for the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 311 in Newton, their only fundraising activity.

She was born in Pocasset, Mass., a daughter of the late Julius and Addie (Schwamb) Hollander, and was the wife of the late Major Warren B. Manhard of the USAF, a Boston attorney who was killed in World War II. She was educated at the Brimmer School, Erskine College and Bennett College.

She leaves her son, Warren B. Manhard II, of Lexington.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning in the Newton Cemetery Chapel.

Louis J. Atkinson

A funeral mass was held Wednesday, Sept. 2, for Louis J. Atkinson of Auburndale who died Aug. 31.

Born in Swansea, he was employed by Jordan Marsh.

Mr. Atkinson is survived by two nieces and two nephews.

The mass was celebrated in Corpus Christi Church Wednesday morning with burial in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Dallas' J.R. on anti-smoking campaign

NEWTON — Larry Hagman, star of TV's "Dallas" series, is asking people to write letters to him describing original ideas on how to quit smoking cigarettes, according to Al Leone, president of the American Cancer Society's Newton/Wellesley Unit.

The Larry Hagman Quit-Smoking Letter Writing Contest is an advance buildup to the Society's Fifth Annual Great American Smokeout. The competition will be held during the fortnight of Sept. 14 to Sept. 27, and winners will be announced in advance of the Smokeout, which is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 19.

The contest will be conducted primarily by radio stations throughout the nation in cooperation with participating units of the American Cancer Society.

In the Newton/Wellesley community, radio station WNTN will conduct this public service program, and all letters will be sent to the station.

"Our judges will be looking for original ideas that are also practical," Leone said. "The national winner and a friend will receive a three-day, all-expense paid trip to Hollywood which will include dinner as Larry's guest."

All entries to the Larry Hagman Quit-Smoking Letter Writing Contest must be clearly written in 100 words or less and postmarked no later than midnight, Sunday, Sept. 27. They should be sent to Larry Hagman, care of WNTN Radio, 143 Rumford Ave., Newton, Mass., 02166.

Build Your Career Around Bentley

Are you ready to spell out a new career direction—begin the game of entering the job market—or add just the right letters (BS or BA) to help advance your present career? If so, you're ready to choose a course, program, or seminar from the many business offerings at Bentley College's Undergraduate Evening Division and the Center for Continuing Education.

The Evening Division

Most students in this part-time, credit-bearing, undergraduate division are employed full-time and bring maturity and valuable experience to the learning process.

The division offers a broad business focus leading to eleven degrees as well as a Certificate in Accountancy. Classes meet in the late afternoon, evening, or on Saturday on our Waltham campus or through extension programs in Braintree, Marlboro, Newton, and Randolph. And to be sure that you come out ahead of the game, the Evening Division offers workshops on note taking, essay writing, and exam preparation, plus free tutorial assistance in the Departments of English, Accountancy, Quantitative Analysis (math) and Computer Information Systems.

For help in planning your part-time undergraduate education, call our Evening Division (617) 891-2901.

Center for Continuing Education

Bentley's Center for Continuing Education can provide you with new skills and fine-tune your business talents through specialized courses and seminars, and certificate-granting programs.

Classes are planned for early evenings or Saturdays to easily fit into already busy schedules and registration can be conveniently handled by mail, phone or in person.

Increase your score in the business world when you choose from Continuing Education programs like Personnel Administration, Paralegal Studies, Accounting, Management, Real Estate, Taxation, Administrative Assistant, and Pension Administration.

Make the right move to build your future by calling Bentley's Center for Continuing Education (617) 891-2135, Monday-Thursday until 7 P.M.

DON'T GET BURNED BY AN OLD FLAME.

How long have you and your old gas heating system been together? If it's longer than you can remember, it's probably best to begin something new.

Right now we have a selection of new gas heating systems with a variety of efficiency ratings. Our top units come fully equipped with energy saving features like vent dampers and pilotless ignition, and burn fuel up to 20% more efficiently than older models. On other units, these features and others are available as options which enable you to design the system that best suits your budget and heating needs.

So don't let your old gas heating system leave you cold. Call us today. We'll warm you with something new.

LEGAL NOTICES

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
PROBATE COURT
Middlesex, ss.
No. 526937
NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of Ruth M. Dwyer, late of Newton, in said County:

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R.Civ.P. Rule 72 that the First, Second and Final accounts of Linda J. Downing as Conservator (the fiduciary) of the property of said ward have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said accounts, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge on or before the First day of October, 1981, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary or to the attorney for the fiduciary obtain without cost a copy of said accounts. If you desire to object to any item of said accounts, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R.Civ.P. Rule 5.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

CREATIVE HOME FINANCING

If you're in the market for a home of your own, you're probably in the market for a home loan, too. A conventional mortgage is usually the first kind that comes to mind, but other alternatives do exist.

These include • privately insured loans • GI-insured loans • FHA/HUD-insured loans • Farmers Home Administration loans • urban "homestead" loans • "house-to-house" loans • variable interest rate loans • graduated payment mortgages and • HUD's subsidized homeownership program.

To learn about these possibilities, talk to a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® before you start looking. REALTORS® are real estate professionals, and forms of financing are part of their expertise. They can tell you what's available in your community, and how you can qualify.

Temple Beth Avodah honors Rabbi and Mrs. Robert Miller

NEWTON — Rabbi and Mrs. Robert Miller will be honored for ten years of dedicated leadership in a weekend of celebration and commemorative activities at Temple Beth Avodah of Newton.

A comparative newcomer to the community of temples in the Newton area, Temple Beth Avodah has flourished under the guidance and compassionate ministration of Rabbi Miller.

Guest speaker at the Sabbath evening service on Friday, Sept. 18, will be Rabbi Harry Roth of Temple Emanuel of Andover, a long-time friend and colleague of Rabbi Miller.

The congregation will celebrate on Saturday evening, Sept. 19 with a gala dinner dance. Esta and Sam Blacker are co-chairmen.

Rabbi Robert Miller

New express bus runs from Riverside to Hub

NEWTON—A new express bus service for daily commuters to Boston has been initiated by the Gray Line Company.

According to company spokeman Mary Foley, the bus will run from Riverside Station in Auburndale to Park Square in Boston, with one stop at Copley Plaza at St. James and Dartmouth streets. The service begins at 7 a.m. and continues every 20 minutes until 8:40 a.m. from Riverside. The bus leaves Boston at 4:30 p.m. and continues every 20 minutes until 6:10 p.m.

The cost for the service is $1.50 one way. All the buses are luxury motor coaches, according to Foley. The service began on Aug. 17.

Registration is open for Mt. Ida Evening Division

NEWTON CENTRE — Fall registration for Mount Ida Junior College Evening Division of Continuing Education is open now through Sept. 21, when the fall term begins.

The 12-week fall term offers credit courses in business administration, paralegal studies, secretarial and early childhood education. The Evening Division grants associates degrees in early childhood education and business administration, and certificate degrees in paralegal and early childhood education.

Eight professional and personal development programs granting continuing education units, are also being offered this term.

The courses, designed to build individuals' marketable skills, professional capabilities and personal interests include, Office Skills Update for career reentry, Administrative Skills Seminar, Computers for the Layperson, Introduction to Travel, Techniques of Supervision, Career Changing in the 80s and Job Search Techniques.

One of the professional development programs is "How to Launch Your Own Successful Business," taught by Joanna Tamer, president of Small Office Strategies and professional consultant to new business owners.

A free introductory lecture on the joys and hazards of small business ownership will be presented on Sept. 12 from 10a.m. to noon at Ricker Hall on the Newton Centre campus.

Introduction to Word Processing is a three-week course covering the complete operation of a word-processing unit. Real Estate Appraisal I and II (of single-family dwellings and of income-producing properties) is one of the noncredit programs. It is sponsored by the American Association of Certified Appraisers.

For more information call the Evening Division of Continuing Education, at 969-7665 for the above two courses and 969-7000 for the free lecture on Small Business.

Consumer Division needs mediators

NEWTON CENTRE—Volunteer mediators are needed by the Consumer Protection Division of the Newton Department of Human Services, which mediates consumer complaints involving a Newton resident or a Newton business.

Those interested in consumer advocacy, with five hours a week to give, should call Mary Ann Albert or Fredi Shonkoff, coordinators, Consumer Protection Division between 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., Monday—Friday, 552-7170.

Tension mounts as preliminary nears

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The purpose of next Tuesday's mayoral preliminary election is to see which challenger will win the right to battle Mayor Theodore Mann in the Nov. 3 election.

Most observers believe Mann, a three-term mayor with more than 20 years political experience, is a shoo-in for one of two spots on the November ballot.

For the other spot - a contest between Alderman Mark White and Waban businessman Bruce Marquis - is up in the air. One aspirant will be eliminated on Tuesday.

Mann, traditionally strong on the south side of the city, should continue to maintain his base of support. White could show strong support in the middle wards and should give Mann a tough showing in Ward 7 where he is an alderman-at-large. Marquis is expected to fare well on the north side of the city -where both he and his wife Lucy were raised - and ward 5 where he now resides.

Mann defeated Peter Harrington in the 1977 November election by more than 3,000 votes as 25,176 residents turned out at the polls. Election Commissioner Alan Licarie estimates the voter turnout for next week's preliminary election to be about 12,000 or about 25 perecnt of the registered electorate.

It is the experience possessed by Mann, however, that White, 31, and Marquis, 37, have attacked throughout the campaign. Marquis, who has never held political office, feels so strongly about the issue that he has made it a cornerstone of his campaign claiming, "Ten years of one administration is enough."

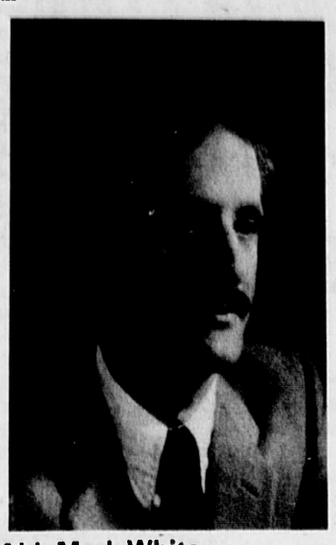

White, a vocal alderman and an outspoken critic of the Mann adminitration during his eight-year tenure, admits Mann's longevity makes the mayor vulnerable, but has attacked the incumbent on more substantive issues.

By virtue of his position on the board, White, a Boston attorney, claims he is better qualified than Mann to work with the city's legislative branch. He has also attacked the mayor for "not keeping up with the times," and failing in "planning, management and courage."

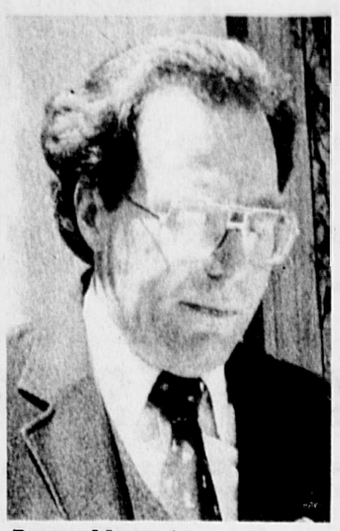

"We need leadership, innovation and initiative," says White. "We need someone who will come out and fight on the issues and not care about political concerns."

Mayor Theodore Mann

Ald. Mark White

Bruce Marquis

Marquis, who has run a "back to basics" campaign, has stressed during the time of Proposition 2½, the city needs someone with managerial talents. Marquis last worked as the director of corporate affairs for the National Easter Seals Society and before that as the executive director of the National Spinal Cord Foundation.

Marquis notes that he is out to refute the myths about the mayor that say "how wonderful he is," that "his friends on Beacon Hill will help us(Newton)" and that "he is unbeatable." He has also called for a government that is "more open with the electorate" and has disclosed his personal finances to prove the point.

Mann, 59, meanwhile refuses to attack his opponents publicly, instead resting on the laurels of his administration. He notes that his record is well documented in the economic vitality enjoyed by the city, an expanded tax base, and the neighborhood revitalizations that have taken place during the past 10 years.

"The voters," notes Mann, "will decide if the business of the city has been handled properly." White, however, has claimed that the city, because of its large tax base and high tax collection ratio, could have enjoyed the same vitality without Mann at the helm.

When queried about the accusations of his administration growing stale, Mann asks rhetorically, "Since when is experience a detriment?"

It will not be on Tuesday. Mann, by virtue of his long-standing public record, has the visibility neither of his two opponents enjoys. While White and Marquis have pressed the flesh, Mann has not been forced to the streets and has directed much of his campaign by meeting the daily needs of the city.

At the forefront of the campaign has been the issue of revaluation, mandated by Proposition 2½, and delayed by the current administration since 1976. Other issues include crime, spiraling county and MBTA costs, planning, and the direction of the school system in the wake of fiscal constraints.

Both White and Marquis have accused Mann of dragging his feet on revaluation at the expense

Chaos seen in Hyde closing

By Sarah Clayton
Staff Writer

NEWTON — If Hyde Elementary were closed next year, 10 of the 17 elementary schools in Newton, in addition to Hyde, would need to be redistricted by 1987-88, the School Committee learned this week.

This information, part of a report presented at the first meeting of the school year by Director of Research and Planning, Dr. Vincent Silluzio, was requested by the committee following the April fire which caused extensive damage to one of the three Hyde school buildings.

An emergency plan prepared by the school's principal, Arthur Laughland, allowed the. "Hyde family to stay under one roof" in the remaining two buildings and finish out the school year.

Silluzio's study on the future of Hyde looks at three alternatives for the school: to close the school, to reduce the size of the Hyde district to a point where the existing buildings could accomodate the remaining students, or to renovate the damaged building or build a small addition so the Hyde district would in tact.

Noting that both the May 1979 and November 1980 school consolidation reports said it was not feasible to close Hyde School now or in the future, Silluzio told the committee that in a Hyde closing, twice as many receiver schools would be required than in previous consolidations. In the past, two receiver schools has been the maximum required.

Silluzio added that long range projections show that overcrowding beginning in 1987-88 would make redistricting of receiver schools necessary as well. Silluzio's report uses Bowen, Countryside, Mason-Rice and Zervas as receiver schools in a Hyde closing.

By 1996, the peak of the next period of expected enrollment increase, these schools would range from a low of 102-116 percent of capacity to a high of 118-132 percent of capacity, according to Silluzio, and average class sizes would range from 25-32 students.

The redistricting necessary creates a flow of students from school to school which is complicated at the very least.

By 1987-88, Silluzio said it would be necessary to redistrict approximately 12 percent of the Bowen district to Ward, approximately 30 percent of the Countryside district to Oak Hill, 20 percent of Mason-Rice to Ward, 20 percent of Ward to Underwood, 20 percent of Underwood to Lincoln-Eliot, 14 percent of Zervas to Angier, and 13 percent of Angier to Williams.

Based upon previous criteria in school consolidation, including emphasis on a minimum of disruption, Silluzio said it would "not be feasible to close Hyde in 1982-83 or at any time in the foreseeable future."

Newton man dies in fire

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — A 30-year-old Newton man died Monday morning after being pulled from his flaming car in the parking lot of Capuccino's Restaurant on Beacon Street at Four Corners.

Jon Myers, of 5 Walnut Hill Rd., was pronounced dead at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston about 6:30 a.m. Myers, a restaurant manager in Watertown, suffered extensive burns.

Newton Police detectives are investigating the death. The Suffolk County Medical Examiner's office would not disclose the cause of death. A hospital official, however, said Myers died of a heart attack.

Myer's 1981 Monte Carlo caught fire in the parking lot at 1114 Beacon St., approximately 75 feet from the entrance to the restaurant, early Monday morning. Fire officials said the blaze started under the hood in the engine compartment when gasoline fumes ignited.

Fire Chief Edward Reilly said the key was in the ignition and the car was idling when the fire began. Reilly speculated that Myers, who was found on the passenger's side of the car, was asleep.

"He was probably asleep and never woke up," Reilly said. He maintained that the fire was not "of suspicious origin."

"We are not looking at anything suspicious, but we have to check everything out," he said.

Firefighters, who were unaware that a person was in the vehicle, arrived on the scene at about 2 a.m. after receiving a call from a customer leaving the Italian restaurant.

A crowd of about 25 people watched as firefighters battled the smoke filled inferno with flames climbing up to 10 feet in the air.

It was only after the blaze was extinguished that firefighters found Myers. Firefighters Bruce Proia, Francis Coffey, and Tony Lochiatto pulled the disfigured Myers from the car.

"We extinguished the fire and went into the car," said Proia. "We couldn't see anything in there and we dragged him (Myers) out...No one knew anyone was in there."

Proia, an EMT, revived Myers when he was pulled from the car. Myers, who had no pulse, began breathing again after Proia performed cardio pulmonary recuscitation (CPR).

Myers was brought to Newton Wellesley Hospital and later transferred to Brigham and Women's.

In the Capuccino's parking lot Monday afternoon, a headlight, an antenna and other pieces of the car that was demolished remained on the black charred pavement as a reminder of the car fire.

Walter Tennant, who attended high school and college with Myers, remembered him as a "hard working, good kid."

A fine time was had by all

NONANTUM—It was a spectacular event that attracted well over 2000 people to Hawthorn Park in Nonantum last Sunday afternoon.

The annual Senior Citizens Picnic, a 15 year tradition sponsored by the Nonantum Childrens Christmas Party Association, brought the largest crowd in its history, as well as 300 volunteers from dozens of cities and towns as far as Gloucester.

"I love it," exclaimed Joseph Coakley,56, of West Newton, who has been a volunteer since 1970. "I love seeing the faces of these people!"

As music played and people danced, Coakley was busily working behind a makeshift bar, surrounded by waitresses who anxiously waited for their orders.

"We had 122 cases of beer, 9 cases of wine and 9 cases of booze!" He didn't expect any of it to be left by the end of the day, which began at noon and ended at 7 p.m. "They're handling it very well though," Coakley remarked, "They're happy."

All the liquor was donated by individuals and various clubs and organizations. "This is how I get it," said Coakley, as turned to his car, parked behind the bar, and pulled out a bottle wrapped in a brown bag. His car was packed with cases and packaged of liquor.

It's hard to say who was having a better time, the seniors, who the party was for, or hundreds of volunteers who helped service 210 tables. more

Helen Lindburg came up from Gloucester that day to work as a waitress. She could often be seen dancing, clapping her hands and singing along to the music of the Nonantum Hobo Band, which entertained everyone that afternoon.

Susan Flynn, 24, of Auburndale said,"I thought it would be a nice was way to help out. The old people seem to appreciate it."

And Fat Pellegrini, coordinator of the event, was conspicuous that day, in his green, orange and white "Lake" T-shirt and apron and a large button announcing,"I'm the Boss," walking around shouting through a megaphone.

"Come on, let's make room, so everybody can see!" Up on a large platform, belly dancers , dressed in their traditional Arabian costumes, and modern dancers directed by Maria Scalzi of Watertown, entertained everyone.

Before long, music from a marching band could be heard in the distance. "Ok, everybody, out of the way. OUT of the way," one man shouted. As people shuffled to the sides, a path was formed in the middle of the park.

As heads bobbed up and down to catch a glimpse of the oncoming surprise, cheers began to echo through the park as the Color Guard, dressed handsomely in crisp whites, from the South Weymouth Naval Air Base, came marching through singing the, "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The 50 member band of the American Legion Post 156 of Waltham marched proudly behind them.

The total cost of the event ran close to $10,000 which was donated not only by people of Newton, but many surrounding communities. "We didn't advertise. Most of it was word of mouth," said John Webber, 62, of Newton.

"I enjoy it. It's a fun type of thing," and added that,"Not enough people pay attention to senior citizens. Webber has been volunteering for 15 years.

As many seniors feasted on steak, hamburg, hotdogs, corn on the cob and cantaloupe, as well as a wonderful variety of homemade pastry, others crowded onto the dance floor under a colorful canopy. Accompanied by traditionally dressed square dancers, Stephen Parks, of the Garden City Squares, called out instructions.

"Alright, now your partner..." Those who couldn't get onto the platform crowded around the ends and edged on the dancers.

For Sara Cappadonna, 67, of Watertown, it was a day to make new friends and see old ones as well.

"I'm meeting people I haven't seen for years," she laughed. "I'm enjoying it very much."

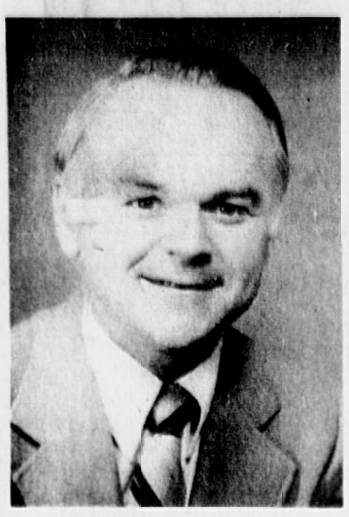

Her friend Dorothy Vona, 67, of West Newton, agreed. "Everyone is very pleasant and sociable."

It was the first time that Henrietta Simon, 84, of Brighton, attended the event. "It's woderful, such good food and so much of it!"

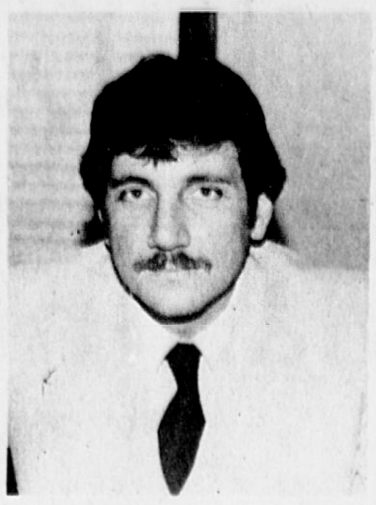

Father Antony Moore of St. Bernard's Parish in West Newton spent the afternoon searching for seniors who might speak Italian. Father Moore, who will be visiting Italy soon, thought he needed some practice with the language. "And they like to hear it too!"

Only school race for Ward 1 seat

By Sarah Clayton
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Although in the past the School Committee has been the focus of hotly-contested races for a stake in governing the Newton schools, remarkably little interest has been shown this time around.

Despite the challenge of Proposition 2 1/2 and difficult issues such as declining enrollment, local political observers see the loss of fiscal autonomy by the schools with the passage of 2 1/2 as one reason for the lack of interest in School Committee races this year.

With the preliminary coming up Sept. 22, only the Ward 1 and Ward 2 races are being contested although this is deceptive since School Committee members are actually elected at large.

Incumbents Nancy Mann (Ward 3), Susan Silbey (Ward 4), Ann Berwick (Ward 6) and Robert Ricles (Ward 8) will all be re-elected without opposition. Non-incumbents Marcia Mitchell of Ward 5 and James Mnookin of Ward 7 are also unchallenged.

Mitchell and Mnookin are filling seats vacated by Honora Kaplan and Sandra Fleishman, respectively.

Candidates for the Ward 1 seat, vacated by Howard Spergel in June following his decision to move to Northampton, Mass., are Jonathan Brant, of 33 Maple Lane, David Wilbourn, of 6 Surrey Rd., and Leonard Gentile, of 20 Emerald St.

In Ward 2, incumbent Katherine Jones, of 1087 Commonwealth Ave., is being challenged by perennial candidate Kenneth Hartford, of 30 Clarendon St.

Jonathan Brant, a Ward 1 resident for 8 years, is currently a practicing attorney and associate professor of law at New England School of Law and lecturer at Tufts Medical School.

A magna cum laude graduate of Brandeis University and a graduate of Harvard Law School, Brant served from 1975 to 1980 as an assistant attorney general under Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, where he handled major cases involving education, special education, and children's rights, including the Chad Green case.

Brant has been awarded the Twentieth Century Award by the Massachusetts Bar Association and is treasurer of the Newton Toddler Program. He also serves on the Ward 1 Democratic Committee.

Brant and his wife, Renee, have two children.

David Wilbourn, 47, who has lived in Newton for 12 years, is also a candidate for Ward 1.

Wilbourn, a native of Providence, R.I., graduated with honors from MIT. He served as a company commander in the U.S. Army and was president of a small chemical firm in New York before returning to MIT as a Sloan Fellow in 1969-1970.

Since 1970, Wilbourn has been chairman of the board of Keltron Corp., an electronics manufacturing company in Waltham.

Along with his wife, Joyce, Wilbourn has served as co-president of the Cabot PTA this past year and on the executive board since 1977.

The Wilbourns have two children.

Leonard Gentile, a Newton native, is also seeking the Ward 1 seat.

A graduate of Newton North in 1970 and the University of Maine, where he earned his teaching certificate in social studies, Gentile has taught in the Newton schools for three years at both the junior and senior high levels. During this period, he served as an assistant coach in both varsity basketball at Newton South and baseball at Newton North.

In addition, he has worked as a teacher of social studies, psychology and sociology at the secondary school level in the Maine public schools.

Currently employed as an administrative aide to house chairman of Human Services and Elderly Affairs, Rep. Joseph DeNucci, Gentile is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guerrino (Goody) Gentile, also lifelong Newton residents, and is married to the former Susan McManus.

Mayoral candidates spar in League debate

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Under attack from Ald. Mark White and businessman Bruce Marquis, Mayor Theodore Mann defended his administration's record in a debate that attracted approximately 500 residents Saturday night.

With the preliminary election less than two weeks away, the three candidates squared off in front of an SRO crowd for the second time in a week.

The candidates hammered away at the dominant themes they have stressed for the last three months.

Mann said his administration has brought the city through the "troublesome times" of Proposition 2½ without a loss of critical services. He called the tax cutting measure "the ultimate test of whether we had a management team."

He stressed that Newton is the only city in the state with a Triple A bond rating. Mann contends that the rating, used by investors, is an indication of the administration's effective financial leadership.

White, an aldermen for the last eight years, chipped away at Mann's record throughout the 90-minute debate. He rapped Mann hard for his lack of planning, management and leadership.

White particularly blasted Mann for his lack of leadership on MBTA service for the city and his handling of revaluation. He noted that the administration abstained on the confirmation vote of former Chairman Barry Locke who faces bribery charges.

Marquis, who has promoted himself as a "citizen that will bring a fresh creative approach to government," said the the city needs a "manager, not a politician."

The 37-year-old Waban resident explained: "The need is for a manager who is accustomed to squeezing every last ounce of service out of a dollar bill and someone who is accustomed and expert in providing efficient and effective services for people." Marquis cited his 15-years management experience with human service and handicap organizations as evidence of his leadership ability.

The candidates each gave short opening and closing statements and were questioned by Newton Graphic Editor Cynthia Black, WNTN newswoman Colleen Hughes and League of Women Voter's representative Marcia Francis. In addition, the candidates answered questions from residents.

Mann, who has been mayor for 10 years, called on residents to carefully consider his record. "The record of my executive leadership is well documented," he told residents. "You should look at achievements; not promises...I have a record to run on. That record is open to public scrutiny."

"Since I've been mayor nearly $200 million in new construction has taken place," he explained. "There is neighborhood revitalization taking place all over the city. There is a confidence in our school administration despite declining enrollment."

Mann said his handpicked "highly qualified managment team" has helped bring significant improvements to "quality of life" in city. He cited the innovative re-use of closed school buildings as part of the innovative management steps the city has taken to provide housing and broaden the tax base.

White countered that the Emerson School, closed four years ago, still remains vacant. White also attacked Mann for cutting police officers and over the city's crime rate.

Holding up a 1972 Mann re-election leaflet, White, chairman of the aldermanic Public Safety Committee, said burglaries and housebreaks have increased 45 percent since 1972.

"For every 1000 people in Newton, 51 were a victim of a crime," White said. "Something has got to be done and cutting the size of the police force by 41 people in last five years is not the way to deal with this kind of crime rate."

Mann countered that while the national crime rate has soared to 122 percent over last 10 years, Newton's crime rate has gone down 10 percent. White promised to help reduce the crime rate.

"I don't want to mislead anybody here," Mann said in his closing statement. "We had more crime than we should have even though we are under financial disadvantage. We must do more."

In his closing statement, White said Mann was not responsible for the city's high credit rating. He claimed the rating was due to property values and the tax collection ratio.

Marquis, who filed a financial disclosure form at the beginning of the campaign, once again called on Mann and White to disclose their personal finances.

"I am willing to be open and candid about my personal finances," Marquis stressed. "Why haven't my opponents?" Neither Mann or White responded to the criticism.

Marquis also reiterated his commitment to implement zero-based budgeting - giving priority to most needed services - and to improved services for underachievers in the school system.

White said he would provide a standard percentage of the municipal budget to the school system.

"I would come up with a fixed percentage of money to the schools. The School Committee and the administration would distribute it as they see fit." He criticized Marquis' "back to basics" approach, maintaining that the system should continue to provide specialized programs.

Mann said the school system has continued to provide "high quality" education despite the effect of Proposition 2½.

Mann, who sponsored a recent bill that allows the Middlesex County Advisory Board to cut the county budget, promised to fight for abolition of county government. In addition, Mann said he would work for a fair local distribution formula and efficient MBTA service.

Hallett dedication

NEWTON — Oak Hill residents and others will gather Saturday at 12:30 p.m. for a dedication ceremony in memory of Edward M. Hallett Jr.

The dedication of a grassy area on Saw Mill Brook Parkway opposite the shopping center will be attended by Mayor Theodore Mann and neighborhood leadr leaders. Hallett was a long-time resident.

FURNISHED MODELS ALMOST READY
Last chance to purchase at pre-opening prices!
At $250,000 to $350,000 the new homes at The Gables are an extraordinary value. There are many reasons.
LOCATION—The Gables, on Dedham Street at Murley Lane in Newton, directly adjoins the Charles River Country Club. The single family attached homes are clustered in small groups among the trees to take full advantage of the natural beauty of the site.
SPACE—The distinctive two and three bedroom homes are extravagant by contemporary standards. For example, the three bedroom unit offers 3100 square feet of living space; the smallest two bedroom, 1900 feet—unusual, when you consider that most new two bedroom houses contain less than 1200 square feet.
AMENITIES—Every home has its own attached two-car garage. There are large decks and/or terraces. Each home has a full basement, many with large windows and/or sliders. The private clubhouse looks out on an expansive sunning area, swimming pool and tennis courts. Combined electronic/guardhouse security protects you.
Pre-opening prices will be available only until the furnished models are ready. Astute buyers have already purchased 20 of the 29 currently available units. For complete information visit the sales office on the site—Dedham Street at Murley Lane in Newton. Open 9 to 5 daily, or phone (617) 969-0200.

Students back at Brown Jr. High

By Sarah Clayton
Staff Writer

NEWTON — After the passage of one month, the sealed-off wing of the fire-damaged Charles E. Brown Junior High did not mystify the 7th graders who began a new school year at the end of last week.

The loss of several science classrooms and the gutted library did not overshadow the burst of new life as activities resumed at the renamed Meadowbrook Junior High.

Seventh grade students began their year at Brown two days late and 8th graders returned to school this morning. Before the fire which caused more than $2 million in damage to the school, students were slated to return to school on Sept. 9.

"I think we've had a good day," William Jesdale, acting principal, said cheerily of the opening day of school. "I think the kids were pretty accepting."

Jesdale said there did not seem to be any difficulty for the students becoming acquainted with the school or with the use of three classrooms at Oak Hill Elementary as science classrooms for both 7th and 8th graders.

He added that a faculty task force was set up on Friday to begin to determine the educational needs of the school which as of this year serves only 7th and 8th graders from its districts. Ninth graders are now attending a reorganized four-year South High School.

With declining enroliment and the fact that Brown is now a two-year junior high, school officials expect that all of the area destroyed by the fire would not need to be rebuilt to serve the student body.

Although assessments of the damage to the building and materials in the library and classrooms are not complete, Jesdale said the task force will educational needs study the long term of the school.

"The priority was getting classes going again so people haven't had a lot of time to think about the longer haul," Jesdale stressed.

Roy Cornelius, director of Support Services for the Newton Schools, said that members of Jesdale's staff are continuing to assess the damage to materials and that the final figures are expected to be ready around Nov. 1.

Bernard Everett, retired assistant superintendent of schools, and Clarence Lipton, retired advertising executive, discuss the Great Decisions course offered by the Newton Lifetime Learning Program sponsored by RSVP and Newton Community Schools. Courses are offered Tuesday mornings at 492 Waltham St., West Newton. Registration continues through Oct. 6. ,

Are you 'in' at high school?

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

FAD : A practice or interest followed for a time with exaggerated zeal.

NEWTON — This school year, like any other, brings with it a host of new fashion trends, musical tastes, female sexpots and new places "to just hang."

For a taste of 'what's in and what's out' in the eyes of this city's youth, we paid a visit to both Newton North and Newton South as each school opened its doors this past week for the 1981-82 school year.

If the girl your son brings home wears Sergio Valenti jeans, Nike sneakers (preferably with colored laces), a Camp Beverly Hills T-shirt, and has a Bill Dorf handbag slung over her arm, she is IN.

Better yet, if she has a Rubics Cube, a Walkman radio - glued to either WCOZ or WBCN - and a pack of Marlboro Lights in a hard box, tell the boy he has a good thing going. She, by definition alone, is IN.

Other IN females will be wearing khaki or gold colored clothes, flat shoes, baggy sweat pants and will carry quilted handbags.

Those clothing items on the way OUT are sport sacs, spiked shoes, or dungaree jackets.

According to Laurie Cooper, a Newton South cheerleader, "clothes are IN, but prices are way OUT."

Musical tastes were tough to pin down, but most students agreed that disco was OUT and rock and roll along with new wave music had taken its place.

Not unnoticed was a revival of the rhythm and blues of the MOTOWN sound of the 1960's.

Tom Petty, the Rolling Stones, the Doors, the Clash, Bruce Springsteen, local groups Boys Life and Electric Children, and Squeeze are all IN while Donna Summer is OUT.

At North, William Donahue was quick to mention that Bacon House, one of six administrative units at the high school, was OUT. It was closed this year as a result of declining enrollment.

Also OUT were 52 teachers, riflery and sailing - all victims of Proposition 2½.

At South, Drive-Ins and the Stop and Shop parking lot are IN while the Highlands and the high school parking lots OUT. Said one student: "The cops are IN so the Highlands are OUT."

For North students, the log at Albermarle Park is IN as is the third parking lot.

The "Dallas" craze is still IN, but somewhat OUT compared to last year when it soared atop the ratings. General Hospital, for the mid-day television crowd is very IN while Saturday Night Live for the late nighters is OUT.

Other Soap Operas IN are One Life to Live and All My Children. Those OUT include The Young and the Restless and The Doctors.

"Boys are IN," according to South senior Dana Isenberg, "but not at this school."

Brooke Shields is IN, but Endless Love is OUT. Robert Redford "will always be IN," and this year he is joined by Clint Eastwood, Bill Murray and Steve Martin.

Bo Derek, with or without Tarzan is IN, as are Victoria Principal and Cheryl Ladd (despite the fall of Charlie's Angels). Those glamour women on the way OUT include Angie Dickinson (too old) and Farah Fawcett.

In sports, baseball is back and is IN. Football, because of its early start is also IN. Soccer, because of the exile of the Teamen is OUT.

Candidates' night

NEWTON CENTRE — Bowen School PTA is sponsoring a School Committee candidates' night Thursday, Sept. 17.

The event will feature the three candidates in the preliminary election for School Committee represenat re Comi Committeeman from Ward 1.

The meeting will be at the home of Catherine and Andrius Tvirbutas, 84 Parker St., Newton Centre, beginning at 7:45 p.m.

The candidates are Jonathan Brant, David Wilbourn and Leonard Gentile. Of the three, the two with the most votes will go on to face each other in the final election in November.

Chief wants detectors in all public buildings

NEWTON — Fire Chief Edward B. Reilly, Jr. will continue to push for smoke detectors in all of Newton's Public Buildings.

Presently, as school renovations are made, smoke detectors have been installed. Most of the other schools are protected with heat detectors, which when they were installed over 25 years ago were the best on the market. Now the technology in recent years, have made the smoke detectors much more sensitive than earlier detectors.

Approximately 75-80 percent of Newton's homes are presently equipped with smoke detectors. In the past 15 years Newton has had 24 fire fatalities in homes, and none of these homes were equipped with smoke detectors. In the homes that were protected by smoke detectors occupants have been alerted while they were asleep and unaware that a fire was in progress. Other times people were not at home and neighbors heard the alarm and reported the fire to the fire department. Smoke detection gives early warning of hostile fires, thus reducing property loss and possibly saving lives.

The national figures just released back up what Chief Reilly has been stating. The death rate from fires in this country is on the decline. Approximately 75-80 percent of this nation's fire deaths occur in residential properties. During the era before general use of smoke detectors (1975) for 20 years we averaged 12,000 fatality rate per year from fire. The National Fire Protection Association estimates 7,780 lives were lost by fire in 1979, with 6,505 lives lost in 1980. This is a 16 percent reduction in life loss in a year, but more significantly it is about 50 percent reduction of life loss from the years before the general use of smoke detectors.

Committee announces fundraiser

NEWTONVILLE — The Sondra Shick for Alderman Committee has announced that it will hold a fundraising party on Friday night, Sept. 18, from 7:30 - 10:30 p.m.

The event will take place at the home of Kathy and Paul Ehrlich, 403 Walnut St., Newtonville.

The party will feature music supplied by musicians from the Greenwood Consort and will feature hors d'oeuvres and wine. Tickets are $12.50 per person and $25 per couple.

Sponsors of the party include State Representative David Cohen, Tamara and John Bliss, Anita Capeless, Jeffrey Bernstin, Audrey and David Cooper, Former President of the Board of Alderman Harry Crosby and School Committee Representative Sandy Fleishman.

Save the Registry

Even granting the justification a lot of us have for being frustrated at a visit to one of the Registry of Motor Vehicles offices, the thought of abolishing the agency doesn't strike us as wise. City-town takeovers aren't a practical alternative under Proposition 2 ½.

Registry branches are busy places, particularly in the metropolitan region. The system breeds complications. Frequent congestion means long lines. Impatient clients talk about aloofness, bewail red tape, even charge incivility, which may account for the unfriendliness that has developed.

It showed up in the Senate-spawned budget proposal to wipe the department out. A conference committee agreement spared the bureau, but there was a cutback in funds which has resulted in the closing of several offices throughout the Commonwealth.

Doubling of the vanity plate charge and the attempt to impose the disputed boost from $2 to $4 on inspections hasn't helped the cause, even though these were dictated by administration dollar chasers. Also, a State House insider tells us, able administrator Richard McLaughlin, the registrar, has riled a few of the lawmakers.

For whatever reason, the cudgel on abolition has been taken up by four House members. They have launched an initiative petition with intent to go to the ballot if the General Court doesn't concur. It is their belief communities can do the job better and for less.

We disagree. A state-operated, centralized computer system and regional offices can't be effectively replaced by 351 individual units. To suggest it borders on the nonsensical.

Pressure oil cartel

It isn't enough that our country has scored a historic victory over the OPEC cartel, arresting dependency on foreign oil which had held us hostage during a crisis begun in 1973 and 1974.

For the U.S., 1981 was a a year conservation paid off. So great has the glut become on the world market that the exporters have been forced to cut prices. Badly rattled, the Middle East suppliers have had difficulty reaching a consensus on new price levels or strategy for future dealings with customers.

Our troubles are far from over, unfortunately. No sharp drop in retail gasoline prices has yet arrived. The best that can be said is they have leveled off, a stagnation apparent over the past two months. Moreover, we'll be sending $80 billion or more overseas in the present year to pay for what we continue to need.

The trick now is to keep the advantage gained through alternative fuel use, smaller cars, insulation and production efficiency. That can be done only by maintaining pressures on the Arabs and other oil-producing nations.

Imported oil accounted for 20 percent of American energy needs going into the 1980's. With continued conservation and a greater domestic output from new wells, the Petroleum Institute is saying we can cut that to 10 percent by 1990.

This is the way to go. Gasoline price cuts could swing the inflation pendulum the other way.

Slamming the backdoor on new taxes

By William Poole

WITH ONE SPIN YOU COULD WIN $100,000.

Promotion for an instant lottery game... an example of a backdoor tax

BOSTON (UPI) — "Taxes" is always an ugly label — much harsher sounding than similar words, such as "fees" and "lotteries."

But despite different public perceptions, the goal of all three is often the same — to get money from the public to run government.

Fees and lotteries are sometimes called "backdoor taxes," implying they are more likely to be ushered in by lawmakers who do not want the public to take notice.

But even the backdoor can find itself in the spotlight. Last week, for example, state plans to raise certain fees, especially those for auto inspections, and expand the state lottery system to include video-type electronic games of chance captured the headlines.

Adverse public reaction forced the State Lottery Commission to abandon plans to add electronic slot machines to its revenue raising arsenal.

Word that a pilot program had been proposed for selected bars and night clubs in Boston triggered the public outcry, which led to a unanimous commission vote to abandon its plans.

The other revenue-raising proposal that ran into trouble was the doubling of the $2 semi-annual car inspection fee to $4, with $1.25 to go to the state and the rest to automobile service stations which conduct the tests.

Suffolk Superior Court Judge Hiller B. Zobel threw the inspection story back onto the front page when he ruled Wednesday and again, Friday, that the administration had not followed proper procedures in establishing the increased fees.

Zobel said officials had failed to document the state's need for increased revenue. Under the $2 per inspection system all revenue went to the service stations to help cover the cost of the tests.

The station owners, however, contend that neither the $2 nor the $2.75 they receive under the new system pays them adequately for the inspections.

Zobel, in his 5-page ruling Friday, said if the fee increases covered just the costs of the inspection program, and perhaps a little bit more, they "would be unobjectionable."

The administration of Gov. Edward J. King had argued that fiscal 1982 budget cuts of $1.8 million and the layoffs of at least 175 state employees constituted a fiscal emergency that triggered the need for $1.25 of the $4 auto inspection fee to go the state's coffers. The rest — or $2.75 — was to go to the private service stations which conduct the tests and give out inspection stickers.

But in his ruling, Zobel noted the state would garner $5 million in additional revenue during the six-week Sept. 1-Oct. 15 fall inspection period.

"For almost 60 years, it has been settled law in Massachusetts that a fee like this one cannot serve as a substitute for taxation," Zobel wrote in his ruling Friday.

"Imposition of taxes for revenue is the sole prerogative of the General Court (Legislature)," he said.

Zobel's ruling threw into question about 200 fee hikes, many of them announced by the King administration without prior legislative approval. The stage thus was set again for further battles over the state's budgetary and administrative policies.

An end to the honeymoon

Reagan's costly vacation

Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Voters with long memories may recall that one of the most frequently asked (but never fully answered) questions posed to the candidates in the 1980 presidential campaign went something like this:

How can Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, if elected, fulfill his incessantly repeated pledge to simultaneously cut taxes, increase military spending and balance the federal budget?

As the first anniversary of his election to the White House approaches, President Reagan and his senior policy advisers finally are providing some answers:

— They convinced Congress to slash drastically both personal and business taxes only a few months ago — but now they're talking about possible increases in tobacco, alcohol and other taxes to offset the revenue shortfall they created.

— They insisted for months that the defense budget not only would be immune to federal spending reductions but would enjoy a 7 percent increase — but now they're forced to substantially scale down that increase.

— They repeatedly promised a balanced federal budget by 1984 — but now they're backing away from that commitment, haplessly explaining that their expectations for economic growth during the next few years were excessively optimistic.

In other words, all three components of the president's principal campaign pledge — lower taxes, higher military spending and a balanced budget — now are endangered.

What went wrong? First, Reagan relied upon economic assumptions so hopelessly unrealistic that his program was virtually doomed to collapse upon its first confrontation with the real world, where conditions never match any president's expectations.

Second, the president paid a very high price for his month-long August vacation in terms of losing the initiative and momentum he had captured during his first six months in office.

That phenomenon involves intangibles such as expectations and perceptions — but those elements are inordinately important in the murky world of politics where reality often is subordinated to imagery.

Finally, in an exquisite display of bad timing, the president allowed the initial reports of backpedaling on all of his fiscal commitments to surface at a time when he was basking in the California sun, unavailable to apply the personal charm and political savvy that were so crucial to his successes in earlier months.

Reagan could well regain the initiative he has temporarily lost, but he faces a tough struggle against a formidable array of ideological opponents who have been searching in vain ever since his inauguration for the opportunity to effectively thwart the president and his programs.

While the outcome of that battle for control of the voters' hearts and minds remains very much in doubt, it's probably safe to assume that the president's protracted honeymoon finally has come to an end.

The acerbity of the rhetoric critical of the president already is rapidly climbing to unprecedented levels. In the October issue of Harper's magazine, for example, contributing editor Walter Karp argues:

"I truly hope it is now obvious to everyone that Reagan's program for cutting inflation and ending economic stagnation is not an economic program at all. It is merely a pretext for carrying out certain fundamental political goals that the American people would never accept on their own ruthless terms."

Indeed, while the president was on vacation, the Agriculture Department revealed how it plans to implement the Reagan-promoted reduction in federal funds used to subsidize lunches served to low- and middle-income school children.

For Reagan and the GOP

A matter of interest

By Clay F. Richards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While President Reagan is still getting high marks from the public and his tax and budget cuts are popular, there are storm clouds gathering over the GOP that could halt the dramatic Republican comeback drive.

After returning from the August recess and talking with fellow GOP House members, Republican leader Bob Michel went straight to the White House to tell President Reagan in strong language there were big problems with the voters back home.

There was a growing concern among voters, the GOP House members reported, that while the Reagan tax and budget cuts were fine, they didn't mean much because high interest rates put a new car — let alone buying a home — out of the reach of many Americans.

Few Republicans are more concerned about the interest rate problem than national chairman Richard Richards who sees the problem as the potential end of his dream of establishing the GOP as the dominant party for the rest of the 20th century.

"Interests rates are indeed a problem and our polls reflect it," Richards said. He said polling also shows that "the typical voters is going to give us more time" to solve the problem, "But I don't know how much time."

"The average guy understands high interest rates better than he understands other problems," Richards said, explaining how interest rates could become the GOP's biggest problem at the polls next fall.

On the positive side, Richards adds: "The president knows that and he is working on it."

While Richards says he doesn't know how much more time the voters will give Republicans, he believes the public's patience will have worn out if things are not better by next November.

"If we haven't turned the corner and haven't improved significantly, we will not do well in the 1982 elections," he said. "If we don't build more homes and sell more cars, some of our early supporters will fall off."

"In 1980 we got votes that traditionally had been Democratic all their lives," he said. "They thought Reagan had a better idea — but if we don't prove we can lead, they will step back to their traditional voting pattern."

Richards says he is worried, but not pessimistic, because the tax cuts that are crucial to the success of the Reagan economic program don't even go into effect until October and the full impact won't be felt until next year.

"I think the president is still riding high," he added.

But he adds glumly: "If supply side economics and Ronald Reagan fail, we will step back to the 29 percent rating we had a year ago — we're going to lose the 19 percent we gained in the last year."

"We certainly don't have any longer than November 1982 — we may not have that long," he said. "If we don't turn things around we will pay the price."

Unfeeling

To the Editor:

This is a comment on the "Nonantum Mourns Death" story by Jonathan Greenspan in the Sept. 3 paper.

My assumption is that the intent was to give a sensitive account of an untimely and tragic event. If that was the case, why describe a grief-stricken widow as "wailing"?

Why add the callous detail that this "wailing" could be heard from two houses down, and over the sound of a television broadcast? Why characterize the widow, age 54, as an "elderly woman"?

The approach seems peculiarly unfeeling.

Intersection update

To the Editor:

After you ran articles on the construction being done by the city at the intersection of Greenlawn, Brentwood and Park Lane, the wheels of government really began to turn.

Ald. Mark White convened his committee to determine what happened. He found out that in 1978 the aldermen approved a possible trial of stop signs and crosswalks. He found that no trial period was instituted with barrels and sandbags before construction was started.

He found an intersection that has been used as a basketball court for many years and that has had one minor accident in 38 years.

Most importantly, he found that the Public Works Department had $42,000 to use up on four intersections in the city. He took care of the problem right away by washing his hands of it and giving it to Ald. McGrath's committee.

Ald. McGrath felt that the safety of this intersection had to be improved, regardless of what the residents wanted or didn't want. He stated emphatically that 90 degree angles are the safest.

Construction moved ahead. Hopefully the city will issue instructions so its citizens can learn how to negotiate the new curves so as to lessen the dangers created and to inform them why 90 degree angles do not look like they teach in the Newton school system.

This is really a new math.

Education commitment

To the Editor:

No undertaking, public or private, can succeed without deeply committed people behind it.

In the case of Newton's schools, we have a system that is, by and large, a successful one.

No one denies that there are problems. The city is caught up in the same agonies of cost-cutting and declining enrollment that afflict other Massachusetts communities. Neverthe less, Newton residents have several intangible advantages apparently not shared by some nearby cities.

Historically, Newton has placed a high priority on public education. Horace Mann himself was here to influence the development of public education in Newton; his commitment has been carried on through generations of families and public decision-makers.

This determination to provide superior public education to Newton's children has not diminished in our time, and if we are sometimes depressed by the problems now besetting us, we must remind ourselves that we are living in a special community, one which has weathered other extraordinarily hard times and managed to deliver an education that earned the respect of the nation.

We have all heard those who say that Newton's days of educational leadership are over. Leadership, however, is a quality which surfaces in bad times as well as good. The word "innovation," with its overtones of gadgetry, is a word better suited to the 60s than to the 80s, but leadership in educational excellence can still be a fitting term for Newton in the 80s.

When people at the State House look around the state in 1981 and 1982, what they well see is that other communities have been educationally devastated by the requirements of Proposition 2 ½.

They will see that this not so in Newton. True, we have made cuts that hurt. We face decisions in the coming year that will also hurt. But education is a matter of day-to-day actions of teachers in classrooms. What matters is that beyond our frictions and endless discussions, the people of Newton support the idea of quality public education. When the teacher enters the classroom he or she must do so with the backing of the community. Here they still do. Active discussion, even heated argument, should not be mistaken for non-support. Non-support is what is happening in communities in which class sizes will, this year, reach levels of 40-plus pupils in an elementary classroom. If such a statistic were to be applied to Newton, rightfully outraged citizens would take the time and trouble to make sure their sentiments were heeded.

Newton families, and the many city residents who actively support public education, have a message for those who think public education can be made the whipping-boy of relentless cuts in funding. The message?

Our commitment to our schools is real. We know about the schools' problems and are equally committed to addressing them, but the people of Newton never have sat around waiting for legislative axes to fall, and they aren't likely to start now.

Marcia Mitchell,
Waban

of some of the city's homeowners who have been paying a disproportionate share of property taxes.

Mann, defending the administration's decision to delay revaluation, notes that the rising value of residential property in the city is the best insurance one has against inflation, especially the city's elderly population.

As far as the effect on the average taxpayer, Mann has said: "One third of the homes will pay higher taxes, one-third will drop and one-third should remain the same."

According to city assessors, the tax rate is expected to drop from the current level of $171 per thousand of assessed property value to between $20 and $30. However, as a result of revaluation, property values on the average Newton home will jump from 700 to 800 percent therefore acting as a counterbalance to the drop in the tax rate.

White has claimed that "most people's taxes are going to go up, especially those homeowners on the north side of the city who own older homes, many of whom are elderly residents on fixed incomes.

Marquis has said "it is the uncertainty of these people" that he is concerned with if elected would implement a program to aid low-income and other needy residents finance the anticipated jump in taxes.

Because revaluation will not be completed until after the November election and the legislature has passed into law the right of a community to send out estimated tax bills, the effect of revaluation will not be felt until residents receive their second tax bill.

Hyde

the size of the district to correspond to the smaller educational space which currently exists, would require redistricting one-third of Hyde students to contiguous schools. According to Silluzio, this would result in only one of four receiver schools, Bowen, becoming crowded and over-capacity in the 1990's and a group of Bowen students would need to be redistricted.

Space requirements for the third alternative, renovation or building an addition, were prepared by Roy Cornelius, director of Support Services, and Laughland in May.

Additional space required to house the current and projected enrollment at Hyde includes three classrooms, a music room, an art room and a learning center. This would be in addition to the 11 rooms which are currently usuable at the school.

Cornelius noted that these space considerations would leave Hyde too small to serve as a receiver school in future consolidations.

Health Department answers questions on CPR training

NEWTON — The Newton Health Department has the answers to some commonly asked questions about Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and advice on the classes.

What is CPR? A basic life support for people whose heart and lungs have stopped functioning. You are providing artificial air and circulation.

What causes the heart and lungs to stop? The most common cause is heart attack, but it can also occur from drowning, electrocution, suffocation, or reaction to a sting.

Why learn CPR? Over 641,000 people die each year from heart attacks; 350,000 before they reach the hospital. Starting CPR before help arrives buys time for the victim.

How much time does the rescuer have to begin CPR? Four (4) minutes! If air is cut off from the brain for that long, the victim may fall into a coma, or suffer permanent brain damage.

How long do you perform CPR? Until help arrives.

What do you learn in a health department CPR class? In nine (9) hours you cover:

— One and 2 man rescuer techniques.

— Practice on adult and infant mannequins.

— First-aid for choking.

All classes are taught by certified instructors and students receive an American Heart Association certification card.

Why can't you just read the manual and not come to class? CPR is like tennis - you have to practice to be able to hit the ball!

Who should learn CPR? The whole family - students, grandparents who babysit, adults who have small children, or spouses in high-risk age bracket for heart attack. Anyone who wants to give someone a second chance!

When are classes and how do you sign? The Health Department has the following schedule:

Basic Life Support: Oct. 1 and 8, 6 - 10 p.m.; Oct. 26 and Nov. 5, 6 - 10 p.m.; Nov. 12 and 19, 6 - 10 p.m.

The courses will be held at the Newton Health Department, 492 Waltham Street, West Newton. For further information and registration call 552-7058.

Aldermen hold detector request

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The aldermanic Public Facilities Committee last week unanimously voted to hold a request to install smoke detectors in all municipal buildings at a cost of $300,000.

Despite an urgent plea from Fire Chief Edward Reilly and Building Commissioner Allan Fraser, aldermen demanded that representatives from the mayor's office give the committee a full financial review before a vote on the request.

Both Reilly and Fraser stressed that millions of dollars in damage could have been avoided if the city had smoke detectors in the three school buildings gutted by fire in the last two years.

The Meadowbrook Junior High School, renamed Charles Brown Junior High School, and the Hyde Elementary School suffered more than $4 million in damage from recent fires. Reilly said that significant damage could have been avoided if the buildings contained smoke detectors rather than antiquated heat detectors.

Smoke detectors are much more sensitive than the heat detectors, installed 25 years ago, and would have alerted firefighters much sooner, according to Reilly..

Public Facilities Chairman Richard McGrath, however, found the number of requests from various municipal departments for additional state aid disturbing.

"We are now experiencing a dramatic increase in requests for funds," McGrath said, "when just a few months ago we were cutting people's jobs because we didn't have enough money."

Committee members agreed. "I'd like to see a total financial package from the mayor's office before we vote," said Alderman Joseph DePasquale. "I think that it is important that the board know where the city stands in terms of surplus, state aid, and other requests."

The board has more than $1 million in requests from municipal departments for only 600,000 in additional state aid. The 24-member legislative body has already approved $610,000 for roof repairs of school buildings.

Noting that the city's fire insurance could be jeopardized if aldermen do not put smoke detectors in municipal buildings, a distressed Fraser said: "The city has lost money on every major fire we have had...We are damm lucky we haven't lost any firefighters."

He added: "We know they (smoke detectors) work. They will give the Fire Department a very early and direct response that will keep losses to a minimum."

Reilly pointed out that if Meadowbrook School was equipped with smoke detectors, the fire would have been probably confined and the library, which was demolished, would have been saved.

The $300,000 would cover the installation of smoke detectors in all municipal buildings including 20 schools, 15 Recreation Department buildings, eight fire stations, 10 libraries, and eight public works buildings.

Aldermen voting to hold the request were: McGrath, Dominic Taglienti, Joseph DePasquale, and Robert Katz.

Absent were: Elaine Gentile, Matthew Jefferson, Paul Coletti, and Ernie Dietz.

Fink will leave a different school system than he found

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — He came to this city as a "neophyte superintendent of schools," during the summer of discontent, 1969.

America, spearheaded by its youth, began to question the values and foundations of the society. Change, long overdue, was transforming the basic tenets of the land.

One of the foundations, of course, was education. From the college campus to the elementary school classroom, the learning process was undergoing a metamorphosis toward a less structured, liberal mode of education — one that encouraged question and debate.

Aaron Fink

Aaron Fink, who suddenly announced his resignation as the top man in the Newton School Department last week, was responsible for much of that change in the city's classrooms.

And his leaving (effective at the end of the 1981-82 school year), like his arrival, comes at a time when education is under fire.

In Massachusetts, the challenge comes from the fiscal austerity imposed by Proposition 2½ (in which the school system lost its fiscal autonomy), an economic retraction that Fink himself calls a "discriminatory law against the young and the poor." In the nation, the challenge is both fiscal — President Reagan's budget cuts — and political in nature, most notably the attacks from the extreme right.

In his airy office at the Newton Educational Center last Thursday, Fink, whose salary of $49,000 is the highest of any city official, voiced his stern disapproval of the forces rebuking the educational system and forewarned of the consequences.

Fink, who looks younger than his 59 years, came to the Newton school system after an eight-year stint as principal of Scarsdale High School in New York. He was previously principal of Niskayuna High School in Schenectady, New York, for two years and at Stoughton High School in Massachusetts for six.

On future plans, Fink said he was "considering several opportunities in and out of education" but was "not free to talk" about them at the present time.

"It's not one particular issue or another," said Fink of his decision. "It is something I've thought about for several years."

"I've felt for a long period of time there are other things I've wanted to do," Fink continued noting he has has spent 29 years administering schools.

In his remarks at the opening faculty meeting of the Newton public schools on Sept. 8, Fink said an average student would pass through the system over a 13-year-period and he as an average student "would do the same thing."

During his tenure, the attacks on education have come full circle. Whereas Fink came to Newton when education was leaning away from structured curriculums, rigid discipline, and conservative teaching methods, his successor will encounter movements back in that direction.

In his speech to the Newton faculty, Fink told of the threat posed by the Moral Majority and its "insidious attacks on the basic freedoms of public education."

"I fear that we are moving into an era in which authoritarian behavior is not only tolerated, but approved and encouraged," he continued. "Those who just know what is right and what is best for us insist that we make judgments and decisions with a degree of authority that squashes discussion and dissent."

> 'I fear that we are moving into an era in which authoritarian behavior is not only tolerated, but approved and encouraged.'
> --Supt. Aaron Fink

Nationally, there is a growing concern about the direction of public education and here in Newton, where the school system is a major source of pride, the concern mounts as well.

"You can't attack all of society, but you can attack some of its institutions," said Fink of the criticism directed toward the school system. "Yet we have to be able to listen to criticism and to be able to separate voices.

"I react very strongly against generalizations," he asserted with an air of aplomb. "There are too many real live issues to deal with simplistic answers."

"Conditions have changed a great deal since the 1960's," noted Fink of the challenges facing his successor. In Newton, the school system has adapted to the changes — in particular declining enrollment and fiscal austerity — with on an ongoing consolidation of the city's educational facilities.

Last week less than 12,000 Newton students returned to the classroom, off more than 6,000 pupils from 1967 figures when enrollment peaked at 18,424. Since 1976, when school enrollment was 15,242, the city has closed six elementary schools and one junior high.

None of the school closings have been easy. Parochial and political interests have unfortunately pitted one city neighborhood against another at the time of each consolidation. However, it has been a challenge that has been met head on since the school department released reports in 1971 and 1973 on declining enrollment and projected contingencies for school consolidation.

"We don't go into this business to close schools," said Fink. "But a lot of difficult decisions have been made."

Fink said in his speech that he was "most pleased" that the "internal scapegoating and competition that had taken place in many of the neighboring communities in the wake of such decisions had for "the most part been avoided" in Newton.

"Within the schools we can — and must — maintain a climate of civility and integrity if we are to survive," he added.

"The management of a school system in an era of declining enrollment is a very challenging thing," said Fink. "It is much easier to manage a school system during the time of an expanded economy."

"Essentially," Fink continued, "you have to ask how do you maintain the essential quality in the school system and even extend it during a period of fiscal austerity?"

In addition to the fiscal constraints and the demographic pressures placed on a school system today, Fink noted there have been a growing number of mandates placed upon his administration since 1969, including special education programs, the METCO program, and the growing diversity of the Newton community.

As far his role as superintendent, Fink said there "must be a healthy balance between some sort of central control and that which must reside in the individual schools."

"The most important people in the school system are the individual principals," he continued. "They control the particular climate and focus on the particular needs of that community."

"We (the administration) can help them meet these needs," said Fink. "We're always finding that balance between the continuity of exposure for those children going through the system and those things that must be left at the discretion of the individual schools."

Music class for handicapped

NEWTON — The Massachusetts Easter Seal Society and the All Newton Music School announced the development of a pre-school music program for physically handicapped children.

The music therapy program will be starting in the fall and will be held at the All Newton Music School, located at 321 Chestnut Street in West Newton. The classes will involve the parents and two trained music specialists; Amy Orser and Debbie Umans. Some of the activities will include movement and singing games, instrumental play, and story telling with music.

Classes start on Monday, Sept. 28 at 3 p.m. To register call Easter Seals at 482-3370. Spaces are limited.

Pay raises for board, mayor denied

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Mayoral and aldermanic salaries will remain as is for the next four years.

Aldermen voted 12 to 9 last week to uphold a Citizen's Committee report denying the office of mayor a pay hike. Afterwards, the board voted 17 to 4 against a $400 salary boost for each of the 24 aldermen despite an advisory group recommendation for a raise.

As a result, the mayoral salary remains at $37,500 and aldermen will continue to receive $1,800 annually. Under the city charter, both offices are unable to receive pay boosts until the next municipal election.

Prior to the final vote, aldermen voted against a recommendation by Alderman Edward Richmond calling for a "token" yearly raise of $1,000 for the office of mayor over the next four years.

Richmond had previously called for an incremental raise of 6.5 percent effective Jan. 1, 1982 which would have raised the mayoral salary to $48,240 by 1986.

The salary of the office of mayor was last raised in 1978 from $27,500 to its present level. Aldermanic salary was also raised four years ago from $1,200 to its present level of $1,800.

"It is clear to me there is a block of 12 aldermen who are opposed to any significant increase in the salary of the mayor," said Richmond. "It is incomprehensible to me that this board will not recommend that the position of mayor of this city deserves at least a token increase."

Aldermen delayed a final vote on the item at the Aug. 10 board meeting by employing a parliamentary procedure. However, the postponement of the item failed to change the board's vote because the citizen's committee - whose recommendation many aldermen said they would sanction - again failed to support a mayoral pay raise.

The advisory group, which was called together for a "special meeting" as a result of the aldermanic delay, voted 3 to 2 on Aug 19. for a five percent step raise in mayoral salary effective Jan. 1, 1983.

However, because the seven-member committee did not produce five votes on the prevailing side (as stipulated by a committee vote), it failed to voice a recommendation.

"In the time of 2½ we have to be tight but at the same time we have to ask that within an eight-year time frame what job hasn't received a raise?," said Alderman Cynthia Creem. "We're all being very political rather than being realistic."

Alderman Bruce Carmichael blamed the political atmosphere surrounding the debate on the citizen's committee failure to produce a recommendation.

"We're under constraints," commented Carmichael, "we appointed a citizens committee to give us a recommendation and they didn't."

Alderman Robert Katz thought a raise for any official was inappropriate at this time. "You can't justify under any circumstances giving raises to anybody for an elected office by using the money we're saving by cutting other people."

Alderman Lisle Baker thought otherwise: "When you want good management you've got to pay for it," said Baker. "You have to pay the office what's it worth."

Aldermen voting for a mayoral raise were: Baker; Barker; Bauckman; Budge; Creem; Richmond; Shea; Sheehan; and Tennant.

Aldermen voting against a mayoral raise were: Carmichael; Coletti; Daley; DePasquale; Gaynor; Gentile; Katz; McGrath; Miller; Morris; Schur and White.

Candidates

Two challenge DePasquale in Ward 1 race

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Alderman Joseph DePasquale, elected in 1978, is facing two opponents in the preliminary contest for his Ward 1 seat.

John McDermott, 21, a Boston College senior majoring in political science, is contending that DePasquale has "not been accessible and responsive" to the needs of the ward.

Gabriel Crognale, 27, an environmental engineer at the Massachusetts Division of Water Pollution Control, is also attacking the incumbent.

The two challengers, however, have their work cut out for them. DePasqule, who works at DePasquale's Grocery on Adams St., has been in the forefront of many issues involving the community.

DePasquale opposed the recent $38 million Druker plan to revitalize Newton Corner because of its overwhelming scope. In addition, the 28-year-old businessman has been working on traffic improvements in the ward.

The ward, composed of Newton Corner and Nonantum, has a large Italian population. The overwhelming traffic in the area and lack of parking appear to be the dominant concerns of many Ward 1 residents. In fact, all three candidates are promising to support traffic and parking improvements in the ward.

DePasquale was also one of several aldermen in the forefront of a movement to prevent Chaulk Ambulance from taking over the emergency service operated by the Fire Department.

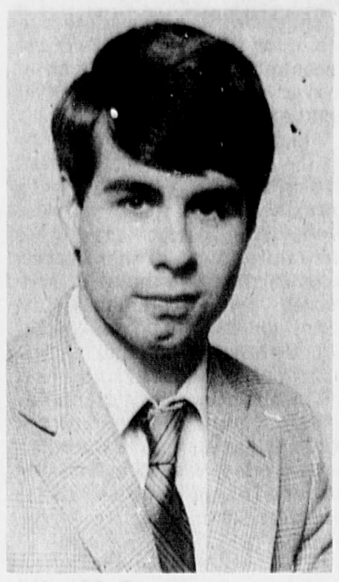

DePasquale, who stresses that he is always available to the public, characterized the charges of his challengers as "mudslinging."

"There is no one on the board that is more accessible than I am," he explained. "I am always available at the store and willing to return calls." DePasquale also pointed out that he has always returned constituent's phone calls.

Responding to McDermott's charges that he has not attended half the special meetings called by the board and frequently missed votes, DePasquale said: "I don't have the exact figures, but I have attended 90 to 95 percent of all board meetings."

DePasquale said he will work for the completion of a redesign of the traffic channelization and loop in Newton Corner and state and federally funded improvements to the Adams and Washington Street intersection.

"I have met the demands and needs of constituents on hundred of small items ranging from stop signs to improved sidewalks,"

John McDermott

Joseph DePasquale

DePasquale said. He also promised to help improve parking in the area by "easing all-night parking restrictions" for certain areas of the ward.

Crognale believes the incumbent has ignored the needs of the ward. "I decided to run to improve things in the area," he said. "I saw that the only way to get them done is to get elected."

Crognale, who has lived in Newton for the last 15 years, has campaigned to improve traffic in the area. He has specifically promised to install traffic signals in front of the Purity Supreme on Washington Street.

A Northeastern University graduate, Crognale believes his engineering experience will be an asset to helping solve the many traffic problems plaguing the ward.

He also feels the needs of the large Italian population in the ward are being "pushed aside."

If elected, Crognale said he would attempt to implement a bilingual program for young children to learn both Italian and English. He said the programs could be offered by expanding the local Multi-Service Center offerings along with aid from the Human Services Department.

Furthermore, Crognale said he would support a limited "on-street" parking program for lightly traveled streets. "I think parking is a big problem," he explained. "There are some streets in the area where we can implement on street parking."

McDermott, who has strongly attacked DePasquale and may pose the greatest threat to the incumbent, has taken his campaign to the streets. Unlike either DePasquale or Crognale, he has been knocking on doors throughout the ward.

The Newton North graduate, who works part-time at Edward's Supermarket in Watertown, said he would be more "accessible and sensitive" to the needs of the ward.

McDermott, who believes he can bring some vigor and fresh ideas to the board, says his young age is an asset. "A lot of people have said it is good to see someone so young in the race," he explained.

Although he is a newcomer to city politics, McDermott has been the most vocal critic of DePasquale. He has specifically criticized the incumbent for not attending meetings and voting against a proposal to put a question concerning nuclear proliferation on the ballot.

"I don't think he's (DePasquale) done the job," said McDermott. "I will be more responsive to the needs of the residents." The challenger also criticized DePasquale for voting against the recent condominium ordinance and for ignoring the city solicitor's advice on the ambulance issue.

DePasquale countered that the illegality of the ordinance was backed up by case law, including several rulings by the state's Attorney General, whereas the state law used to challenge the ambulance contract was unclear.

McDermott said he would attempt to alleviate the tremendous parking problems in the ward by initiating parking permits for residents.

"Parking conditions are horrendous," he said. "I would attempt to get parking permits to regulate the number of cars on a street."

In next Tuesday's preliminary election, this contest will be on the ballot only in Ward 1. Of the three candidates, the two with the most votes will be nominated to run against each other in the November election.

Ald. Katz in serious race in Ward 8

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Robert Katz, the freshman aldermen who was an underdog two years ago, is facing a strong challenge from two opponents in the Ward 8 alderman race.

Marcy Richmond, an attorney for the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs, has garnered the support of many local public officials and already spent approximately $1,500 in the quest for the seat.

Katz, who appears to be in the hottest preliminary contest, has only spent $300 and is relying heavily on his record. Richmond, on the other hand, has taken to the streets and visited nearly 1,500 homes.

Deborah Rubin-Barnhart, a Boston attorney, is also taking a shot at Katz's seat. Barnhart, who notes she is the only candidate in the race that owns a home and has a child in the school system, is campaigning to improve public education. One of the three candidates will be eliminated in the Sept. 22 preliminary election. Ward 8 is made up of Oak Hill and Newton Centre.

Despite the power of money in a municipal campaign, Katz feels he can overcome the financial blitz by Richmond.

"The voters in Ward 8 are too intelligent to let a candidate buy an election," he said. "I'm one of those people who believe that if you return your phone calls and respond to people, the voters can't be bought."

Katz, the youngest alderman ever elected, is no stranger to a hot campaign. Two years ago, Katz upset favorite Alvin Mandell by a slim 87 votes.

Katz, who claims to have the finest attendance record on the board, has emphasized that he has provided strong constituent assistance.

"Alderman don't move mountains," he said. "But I've returned all phone calls and worked hard for the community."

Katz, assistant production manager for a Boston firm, points out that he is also the author of a "tax-saving" staffing ordinance approved by the board which prevents "unwarranted expansion" by city departments.

Katz said that his knowledge and experience will be invaluable in aiding revaluation in Oak Hill. "I will work to see that once and for all the tax structure is equitable," he added. "I am tired of seeing people with bigger and newer homes unfairly taxed."

Richmond, who is spending more money than any other alderman candidate, has extensive governmental experience at the state and federal level.

The 28 year-old Suffolk University Law graduate is working hard to convince voters that she can "better represent" the ward.

"I am ready to serve the residents of Ward 8," said the Suffolk University Law Graduate. "I am working hard now and if elected I will work even harder."

The former voluntary prosecutor for Middlesex County District Attorney's Office has received the endorsement of state Rep. Susan Schur (D-Newton), state Rep. David Cohen (D-Newton) and former Newton state Rep. Lois Pines.

In addition, Congressman Barney Frank is attending a coffee for Richmond. Frank, however, said he was not "formally endorsing" the candidate.

Richmond, former legislative assistant to Congressman Michael Harrington, has campaigned to help initiate a long range plan to development in the city.

Noting that Ward 8 has the greatest amount of land that could be developed, she said: "I think we should take a long range approach to most issues...Usually what happens is there is a reactive approach to land use."

Richmond, who is particularly interested in land use and public safety issues, has promised to help preserve "the character of the neighborhood and community" life in the ward and throughout Newton. She has also campaigned to fully fund Police and Fire Departments.

Richmond has criticized Katz for his lack of leadership. She has specifically charged that Katz "took a walk" during the recent vote on the $38 million Druker proposal to revitalize Newton Corner.

"He (Katz) has not represented the people on some critical issues," charged Richmond. Katz said he was absent for the Druker vote because of an "illness" in the family. "I resent those charges," he added.

Richmond also supports the ordinance regulating condominium conversion recently approved by aldermen. "I think the condominium ordinance was a good thing in that it may help inhibit the depletion of rental housing in the city," she said.

The lifelong resident of Newton has also promised to challenge the prevailing pessimism resulting from Proposition 2½. "Today, it is not a question of more government or less government, it is a question of improving the government we have."

Rubin-Barnhart is also dissatisfied with Katz's record. The 30- year old Northeastern University graduate is the only candidate who has not spent any money in the contest.

The Newton South High School graduate said she opted against raising funds so she would not feel obligated to any contributors. "I want to repay Newton for what it's done for me," she explained. "I'm not in this for future political gain or to look for more clients."

She noted, "I am not a politician."

"I don't look at what this job can do for me," she continued. "I feel this is a civic duty. I don't feel aldermen should be paid... the cutbacks from Proposition 2½, I think the money could be put to better use."

How does Richmond feel about running up against the strong financial campaign of Richmond?

"If the yardstick of this campaign is the amount of money to be expended, then I've lost and I will accept it gracefully ," she said. "I am running on my record." She added that the voters are "too intelligent" to be influenced dramatically by the money spent by candidate's in the race.

The Boston attorney, who has an 11-year old daughter, Lisa, said improving public education is one of her prime objectives.

"To me education is probably the most important issue," she said. "I am concerned about the loss of fiscal autonomy."

Rubin-Barnhart said aldermen should not review the budget line item by line item and search for dramatic cuts, but have more confidence in the School Committee and educational experts employed by the School Department.

Robert Katz

When asked if she would support giving the School Committee a standard percentage of the municipal budget, as proposed by mayoral candidate Mark White, Rubin-Barnhart called it "ludicrous." She pointed out that factors such as declining enrollment and the tax levy must be considered.

As ward aldermen, She added that her "number one concern would be the needs of the residents."

Citywide race for Ward 4 nominees

NEWTON — Incumbents Donald Budge and Richard McGrath are facing the largest field of all the preliminary races in the contest for their two citywide Ward 4 alderman-at-large seats.

Both Budge and McGrath are veteran aldermen and are favorites in the race. Lane Sofman, Robert McMillen and Mark Golden are the challengers and it is expected that one of these three will be eliminated in Tuesday's run-off.

Ward 4 is made up of Auburndale, a small part of West Newton hill and Lower Falls.

Budge, seeking his fourth term, is standing on his record. The six-year veteran alderman, a member of the aldermanic finance committee, is quick to point out that he has repeatedly fought for tax-saving measures.

A self-described fiscal conservative, Budge has continually questioned municipal department heads on a wide range of expenditures. "I try to work with and cooperate with department heads, but I don't always agree with them," he noted.

"I am running on my record," he said. "I have been very faithful in attendance at board and committee meetings...I've done a diligent job and tried to protect the taxpayers."

Budge, an attorney and certified public accountant was one of many aldermen who supported Mayor Theodore Mann's decision to allow a private firm to take over the emergency ambulance service.

"All the feedback I have had on the ambulance is that it is working very well and very smoothly," he said of the move which saved a minimum of $320,000 for taxpayers, but came under heated criticism. He added: "It appears that we should be getting better coverage."

Budge, a graduate of Northeastern University and Suffolk Law School, also defended his "reluctant" vote for a sewer-user tax. "A lot of people are making a lot of noise on the sewer-user charge," he explained. "That will pay for money previously collected by real estate taxes."

He emphasized that the tax will help shift the tax burden to many non-profit institutions, such as Boston College and Newton-Wellesley Hospital, that were previously paying no taxes. As a result of the tax, the institutions will be forced to pick up some of the tax burden.

Budge is also chairman of the aldermanic Data Processing Sub-Committee which has saved taxpayers by eliminating postions and offering greater efficiency.

The local attorney also noted that he is for preserving the villages in the city. Budge defended his recent vote on the $38 million Druker revitalization proposal. He pointed out that the project would have provided badly needed rental housing. "The city as the whole was the real loser," he noted.

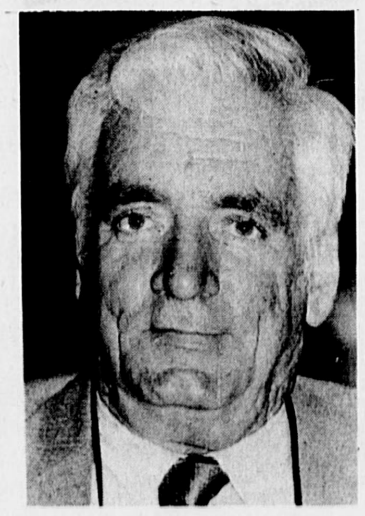

Budge, who has battled for many changes in committee, added: "I don't make a lot of noise. I do my work in committee where it should be done."

McGrath, current chairman of the Public Facilities Committee and former state representative, has been on the board for eight years.

Ald. Donald Budge

Ald. Richard McGrath

Like Budge, McGrath has been critical of department heads during budget time, scrutinizing officials "that abuse the tax dollar." He has also been critical of what he considers the administration's hoarding of surplus money during non-election years.

McGrath, 45, has also been skeptical of the revaluation process which he says will "come to a head" after the election. "All the flags tell me the job isn't being done properly," says McGrath. "If not for aldermen, it would have delayed further. The board brought to light that revaluation was not being done by the assessing department."

"Tha administration was foot-dragging on it," he continued noting that revaluation has "always been treated as a political item."

McGrath, self-employed in an irrigation systems business, noted that when he came to the board one of his goals was the revitilization of the Public Works Department, a job that he has helped to "achieve."

Recently, McGrath was in the forefront of the maintenance of an in-house ambulance service, a service which he feels could have been kept despite claims by the administration of a lack of money. "We were told that we didn't have the $300,000 to run the ambulance service," he noted. "This was obviously erroneous if one looks at the $4 million surplus we had."

McGrath defended his opposition to the $38 million Druker proposal noting that the plan actually offered the city 15 fewer low rental units than was already in the Gorin and Leeder building. "Once I found out that we were actually losing bedroom units, I couldn't support it," he said.

In response to an accusation that he was anti-police, McGrath refuted the charge saying he "was not in awe of the badge" worn by Police Chief William Quinn but treated him in the same light as any other department head during budget time. "I don't get elected to get along with department heads," said McGrath. "My job is to review the budget in an open and objective manner."

Sofman, a dentist and graduate of Temple University, is making his first run for public office.

"I'm concerned and upset with some of the things I've seen on the board," said Sofman. "I feel that it is time to make my voice heard."

Sofman sees the problems brought upon the city by Proposition 2½ as the major issue confronting the city over the next two years particularly the effects on the educational system and the budgetary process.

"I want to make sure that we preserve the quality of the educational system that we have," said Sofman. "I feel that it's in jeopardy right now and I feel that it's necessary that we have people who see education as one of their top priorties."

Sofman noted that he would not have approved the Marriott expansion (recently denied by the board), but would have voted for the Druker proposal for the Newton Corner area.

"I would have voted for Druker because it was not encroaching on open space and it would have provided for much needed housing especially elderly and subsidized," said Sofman. "It was larger than I would have liked to have seen, but the alternative provides nothing in terms of housing. The alternative also provides no relocation plan for those tenants that were displaced."

Sofman also said he was in favor of the condominium ordinance just passed by the board as well as the preservation of the city's village system.

McMillen, who has been very visible at City Hall, believes it is time for some new blood on the board.

"We have had some incumbents that have been on the board for a while," said McMillen, 24. "Perhaps it's time for new blood."

"I feel that there are areas where the incumbents could have been more helpful to the citizens of the community," said McMillen. "They haven't really accomplished what they were elected to do.

Specifically, he noted that Budge had voted against the recently passed condominium ordinance and that the issue of revaluation is "still in front of the board."

"I feel that he had a responsibility to the people that have lived here the bulk of their lives and who are being threatened by developers," he continued.

McMillen, employed as Director of Sales for Escort Transportation Service, said he felt the "executive branch of this city may be overlooking the message of Proposition 2½" with the implementation of user fees on many public services.

He said he was in favor of the Marriott expansion, noting that they were going to use additional space on their own property, yet was opposed to the Druker proposal for Newton Corner.

"I was against the height of the building but felt we could have worked out a deal with Druker," said McMillen. "I don't want skyscrapers to come in but the trade-off of housing and additional taxable income could have made it worth it."

Another problem McMillen sees is what he perceives as a "north and south division on the board."

"We have to try and move ahead and work together," continued McMillen. "Too many times we're in the syndrome at City Hall where people favor their own business interests with their particular votes."

Golden, a sales representative for Pingouin Yarn, is in favor of regulating the conversion of rental housing units in the city.

Unlike his opposition, he feels that education must take a back seat to the "protection of the life and property of our citizens."

"In my opinion the first duty of a municipality is to provide a safe environment for its inhabitants," said Golden. "It is a well known principle of education that without safety and security the learning process ceases."

Golden was out of town for the week and could not be reached for further comment.

Conference set for arts groups

By the Arts Council

In Springfield, free Sunday evening performances fill Forest Park with music and theater. In Provincetown, Truro and Wellfleet, plans are underway for the annual Fall Festival Sept. 17-20, when more than 75 professional artists and craftspeople will open their studios to the public.

In Lowell last year, a series of art lessons offered to senior citizens proved so popular that the class filled in one day. To the west, elementary school children in the 26 towns of Franklin County have been treated to an exciting range of experiences in music, theatre, dance and the like since the mid-seventies.

All of these activities are sponsored by local arts councils, organizations devoted to creating lively cultural atmospheres in their communities. With Proposition 2 ½ cutting municipal funds and the loss of several federally funded programs like CETA, these small and energetic councils face a most demanding challenge — to do more with less.

To assist such groups, the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities is sponsoring a two-day working conference at Old Sturbridge Village Sept. 24 and 25 for arts managers from around the state. Arts leaders will make presentations and lead discussions to generate new ideas on the running of programs and the r sharing of resources and to explore the use of local advocacy as well as the potentially influential cable television.

Local arts councils benefit residents and artists like Carole Bolger (above) whose will be open to the public during the fall festival weekend planned by the Lower Cape Arts and Humanities Council Sept. 17-20.

"This is an era of declining public support for the arts, and community arts groups, because they are so new, will have a harder time surviving than the older institutions which have cultivated the traditional sources of support over the years," says Anne Hawley, executive director of the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities. "Local arts councils do enjoy wide support from people, but they have not had time yet to secure funding from private sources. We are sponsoring this statewide conference to help 200 local arts representatives become more familiar with the types of support still available to them, as well as to explore the development of new sources of revenue.

"These local organizations," Hawley continues, "do so much to provide access for all citizens in the state to the arts and humanities by offering free or low-cost performances and workshops to people of all ages, by serving as a clearing-house for information on local activities, and often by awarding funds to those groups that residents agree should be helped. Beyond that, they manage to employ literally hundreds of artists and humanists — from the musicians who play at concerts to talks by local historians."

"We do face hard times," agrees Mary Kay Hoffman, director of the Arts Council of Franklin County, founded by a group of parents determined to improve the arts programs in the schools. "With the enrichment funds cut throughout the system, we will be unable to continue to provide the types of services we have in the past. But change is not necessarily a bad word. We will simply do something different. Our current plan is to offer an in-depth visual arts program in our own facility."

One of the ways to develop community support, reports Bob Teigs of the Lower Cape Arts and Humanities Council, is to find new sponsors for specific programs. "We started an 'Art in the Bank' program here some time ago. We set up the system for selecting artwork, and the banks provided exhibition space. Now two of the banks have taken over the selection of artwork. We are no longer involved, but the art is still available to the public. I think that's great. We got the idea rolling, and now it has a life of its own."

No two arts councils are the same. The Lowell Arts Council, formed as an integral part of that city's government, has used the short year and a half of its existence to help fund a summer theatre, a foreign film festival, a design contest to find a product that could be manufactured by the handicapped, and then reached out to local businesses to secure wider support for the future.

An equally wide range of activities has been sponsored by the Mayor's Office of Community and Cultural Affairs (MOCCA) in Springfield — from the painting of murals to the publication of a book of poems by prison inmates. A four-day festival, held over the 4th of July weekend, has become an annual tradition according to Deputy Comnissioner Rick Norcross, who reports an attendance of more than 100,000 people who can choose from more than 75 performances. All for free.

"Local arts councils became a national phenomenon when people, no natter where they lived — in city neighborhoods, small towns, or suburbs, wanted arts events and programs available nearby," notes Anne Hawley. "These councils now provide an enormous service to the citizens of the Commonwealth. Our late September conference will assist these groups in meeting the many challenges of the next decade."

Those interested in additional information on the conference, "Planning for the Eighties," should contact: Susan Hartnett, 727-3668.

Mental Health

Premarital counseling

By Marvin Snider

Our society is replete with contradictions. One of the most costly ones is the prevailing attitude toward preparation for marriage.

We approach the most complex of experiences with the assumption that surviving from birth until the state of matrimony is sufficient preparation for wedded bliss. The fallacy of such an assumption is readily demonstrated by examination of divorce statistics. Attempts to promote premarital counseling are akin to selling ice to the Eskimos. What is the risk to an obvious need for education in a highly education-oriented society?

We continue to be plagued by a double standard. In all other areas of human endeavor the absence of needed information or skills is corrected through participation, in one form or another, in an educational program. However, in the areas related to mental health, within which I include premarital counseling, there is a different standard.

It is commonly believed that exposure to life experience is sufficient preparation for the trials and tribulations of marriage and raising a family. This is expected to be true no matter what experience an individual has growing up. It matters not whether a child grows up an orphan, in a family where chilcren are abused, in a family where one or both parents are alcoholic, where parents are in a state of perennial war, or are divorced.

How prepared for marriage is the person who as a child grew up in affluence and whose every need was met without having to learn responsibility or experience the feeling of being needed? It can also pertain to the child who grew up in an environment where the first, and sometimes the only, priority is the fulfillment of one's own needs and desires. It is quite clear in our present culture that the years of childhood and adolescence do not adequately prepare an individual for his place in society, let alone for marriage.

Modest attempts have been made in our educational institutions to offer courses on marriage and family living on a high school level. Even when these offerings are of the highest quality, they generally miss the mark in their timing.

Such courses are taught to high school upperclassmen, whose thoughts of marriage and family are likely to be envisioned in the "distant" future. These students are commonly more preoccupied with preparation for getting a job or going to college. They also are lacking the needed emotional maturity to appreciate and tackle the nuances and complexities that are involved in the development of a mature emotional relationship.

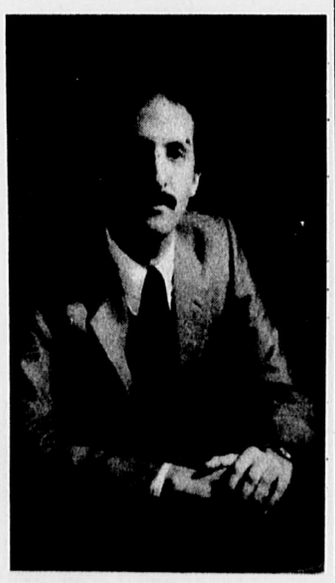

A learning experience has its greatest impact when the motivation to learn is present, in addition to appropriate emotional maturity to handle the information constructively.

The time to provide education for marriage and family living is when a couple is seriously considering marriage. A guideline can be gained from current law that requires a blood test to insure that two people do not enter marriage with disease. It would seem equally appropriate to expand this notion to require that people entering marriage undergo premarital counseling to insure that they have considered the issues they will have to experience. These issues include management of money, family relationships, lifestyle, religion, values, division of labor and ways to resolve conflict.

After centuries of looking like something the cat dragged in, dogs are finally beginning to look sharp.

Pet grooming salons have made it possible for even ugly dogs to enjoy good looks, but whether looking good makes a dog feel good, remains a mystery.

Fuji, a black and white Lhapso Apso, will be four in March. "He's a doll," said Virginia Foerter of Dedham, who calls herself his mother. "I take my Fuji to be groomed whenever he starts to smell like a dog."

Grooming salons are popping up like dandelions. There was a time when only eccentrics had the dog shampooed, but now, giving the dog a day of beauty is as common and understandable as being in love with Lassie.

Most salons offer the basics: complete comb-outs and baths for dry or oily skin, blow-drying, ear cleaning and manicures. Some shops tie bows in doghair while others mist clients with cologne.

Joan Lawson of the K-9 Kastle in Norwood has been grooming dogs for eight years. Of her 300 customers, 85 percent are poodles.

"Each breed needs a different amount of attention," she said, "but, poodles and long-haired dogs require most care."

She said dogs usually need attention every five to eight weeks but it varies dog to dog. At most shops, prices range from $12 to $20.

Dog groomers are not required to be licensed in this state the way hairdressers are or plumbers, but "it's coming," said Dick Marsh, president of the Massachusetts Association of Professional Dog Groomers. "We want a say, instead of having someone write up regulations that are asinine."

Marsh, 43, who owns The Doggarie in Roslindale, learned grooming in a West Roxbury pet shop 30 years ago. The 90-member, five-year-old organization was formed, he said, to upgrade the grooming profession and to unite groomers to fight for cleaner shops and improved doghair styles.

At Twickenton in Dedham, most clients are regulars.

"I know the dogs by sight and by name," said Christine DeFilippo who owns the salon. "Sometimes I don't remember the people's names but I say, 'Oh, there's Missy's mother.'"

The 35-year-old groomer, who met her husband at a dog salon six years ago when both brought in dogs to be brushed, said she spends a lot of time talking to dogs.

"I like talking to dogs," she said. "I talk to them all the time. It makes them feel loved, not like a piece of furniture being refinished."

Fuji, who is groomed at Twickenton, likes the salon, Mrs. Foerter said. "He doesn't mind it (being groomed) at all," she said. "It's because Christine loves him as much as I do. When I bring him in, she'll say, 'Hi Sweetheart. Hi Fuji.'"

It takes about two years to become a professional groomer and takes about one hour to groom one dog. But what it takes to become a dog grooming success is "2000 percent patience," Marsh said.

Most shops require an appointment but some will accept walk-ins for just a manicure or straight shampoo. Some shops sell pet supplies and some have accommodations for overnight guests.

Sue Maguire of Maguire Kennel in E. Walpole, which has been in business for 49 years, grew up with dogs. Her mother is a groomer and her father was a veterinarian for 61 years.

"I know the dogs better than I know the people," she said. "Dogs are better than people. They're loyal. They don't care if you are in a good mood or bad mood and they don't care how you look.

"When they love you," she said, "they love you."

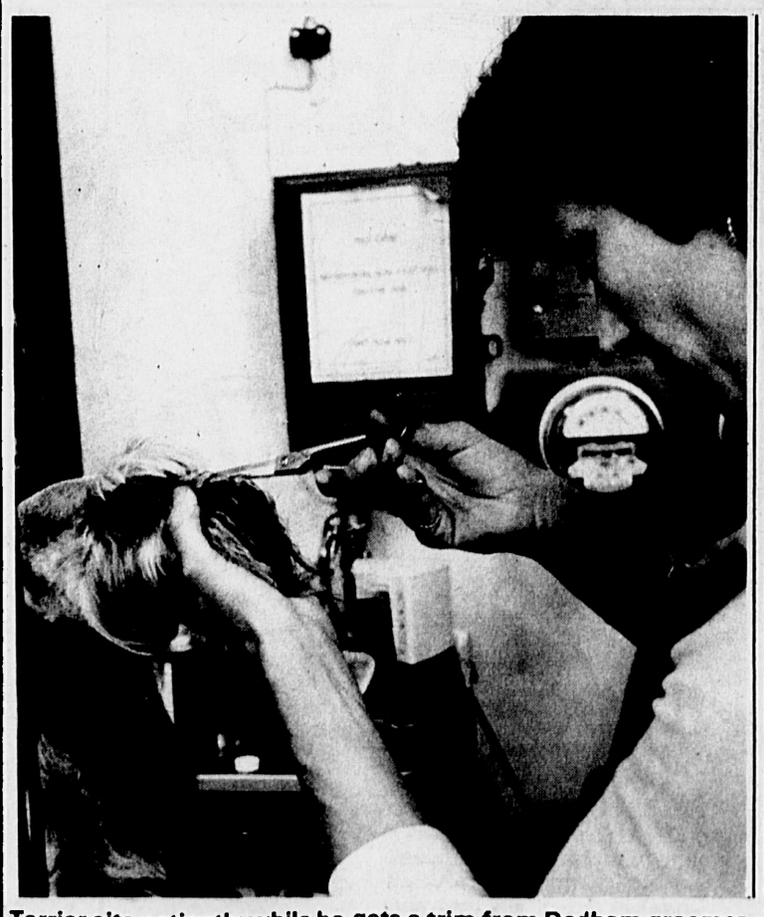

Lucy Hauptman of Needham has had her black Peek-A-Poo, Cooky, professionally groomed for the past five years because she has had no choice.

"Cooky has a very nasty disposition," said Mrs. Hauptman. "She won't let me brush her and if I try, she bites me."

The dog, who spends eight hours at the salon every other month, comes home "cute," with her hair parted down the middle and a pom-pom on her tail.

"Fuji is my baby." Mrs. Foerter said. "He's a spoiled brat but I spoiled him because I love him. When he comes home, he feels like silk.

"I sit and rock him and sing, You Light Up My Life."

Terrier sits patiently while he gets a trim from Dedham groomer.

This little dog good-naturedly accepts a bath.

Magic 'impossible pie' tastes good, calories disappear

THE SLIM GOURMET

Calorie-conscious cooking

By Barbara Gibbons

"Impossible Pie" main-course casseroles are all the rage. One was even a $10,000 prizewinner last month at the annual Chicken Cooking Contest.

What IS Impossible Pie? It's an easy oven-baked casserole in which a wet biscuit batter is poured over the ingredients of your choice. Like magic, 30 minutes later, this unlikely looking mixture emerges from the oven under a golden self-making biscuit crust.

LOW-CALORIE CHICKEN PIE

1 cup diced cooked white meat chicken half-cup shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese half-cup small curd low-fat cottage cheese
6-ounce can tomato paste
1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves half-teaspoon dried basil leaves optional: salt and pepper to taste
1 cup skim milk
2 large eggs
two-thirds cup biscuit mix

Combine first 6 ingredients and mix lightly. Spread in the bottom of a 9-inch nonstick cakepan. Add salt and pepper, if desired, to taste. Combine remaining ingredients in a mixing bowl and beat 1 minute. Pour over chicken mixture. Bake uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes, until golden. Remove from oven and wait 5 minutes before cutting in 4 wedges to serve. Serve crust-side up. Makes four main-course servings, under 300 calories each.

Here are two of my favorite vegetarian variations on the "Impossible Pie" theme:

UPSIDE-DOWN PIZZA QUICHE

three-quarters cup low-fat cottage cheese
6-ounce can tomato paste
half-cup (2 ounces) shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese
1 cup skim milk
2 large eggs
two-thirds cup buttermilk baking mix half-teaspoon each: oregano and basil
2 or 3 sprigs fresh parsley, minced
optional: pinch of minced garlic, or 1 tablespoon minced onion

Spread cottage cheese on the bottom of a nonstick 9-inch cakepan. Top with spoonfuls of the tomato paste; spread the mixture evenly with the back of a large spoon. Sprinkle the mozzarella cheese evenly over the mixture. Combine the remaining ingredients in an electric mixer bowl, blender or food processor (using the steel blade) or beat by hand until well blended. Pour over the tomato-cheese mixture. Bake uncovered in a preheated 350-degree oven 35 minutes. Remove from the oven and wait 5 minutes before serving. Slice into 4 main-course wedges. Serve crust-side up, to be eaten with a fork. Each serving, 250 calories.

TAMALE PIE

7-ounce can cut corn kernels, undrained two-thirds cup low-fat cottage cheese
6-ounce can tomato paste
pinch of minced garlic (fresh or dried)
1 teaspoon cumin seeds (or half-teaspoon ground cumin) quarter-teaspoon dried oregano
3 tablespoons minced hot (or sweet) fresh pepper half-cup (2 ounces) shredded extra-sharp Cheddar cheese about three-quarters cup skim milk
2 large eggs
two-thirds cup buttermilk baking mix (or self-rising cornmeal mix)

Drain corn and reserve the liquid. Combine the corn and cottage cheese on the bottom of a 9-inch nonstick cakepan. Top with spoonsful of the tomato paste. Spread evenly. Sprinkle with garlic, cumin, oregano, minced fresh pepper and shredded Cheddar. Add milk to corn liquid to make 1 cup; combine with remaining ingredients and beat smooth by hand, or in an electric mixer, blender or food processor. Pour batter over the corn-cheese-tomato mixture. Bake uncovered, 35 minutes in a preheated 350-degree oven. Remove from oven and wait 5 minutes before cutting into 4 wedges to serve. Each serving, 300 calories.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brown

Betsy Ilene Shulkin weds Peter Brown on Aug. 23

Betsy Ilene Shulkin became the bride of Peter David Brown of Newton on Aug. 23 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Shulkin of Newton Centre.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Miami and received her master's degree at Loyola College. She is a speech language therapist in the Newton schools.

Mr. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Brown, was graduated from Bentley College and Suffolk University. He is president of Simplex Chemical Corporation.

The couple will live in Chestnut Hill after a trip to the west coast and Hawaii.

Nursing home advocates will train volunteers free

NEWTON—West Suburban Nursing Home Advocates will conduct five free training sessions in October. The curriculum focuses on information for volunteers but all interested persons are invited to attend.

The sessions will be held at Newton Corner Baptist Chapel, 187 Church St., on Oct. 6, 8, 13, 15, and 20, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Information about the nursing home ombudsman services program, aging, legal for and rights of nursing home residents, and other aspects of long-term care will be presented. .

Most program volunteers visit nursing homes weekly to hear, investigate and resolve concerns. They get to know both residents and staff, and serve as problem solvers and information exchangers. Other volunteer opportunities are available, including telephone information and referral assistants, legislative analysts and community workers.

Program staff provide ongoing supervision and support. Monthly in-service training is conducted. Credit for college or university field placement can often be arranged.

Preregistration is required for planning purposes. Training schedules will be available in late September. Call 244-7157.

The advocacy program is funded by West Suburban Elder Services, Inc., and is a part of Metropolitan Ministries, Inc.

Julia Kritzman is bride of Dr. Bruce P. Abbott

Julia Ann Kritzman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Julius Kritzman of Waban and Dr. Bruce Packard Abbott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Abbott of Winchester, were married at Waquoit, Cape Cod, on Aug. 22. The wedding and reception were held in the garden of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Leo Stone. Rev. Jonathan Sinclair Carey performed the ceremony.

Marjorie Kritzman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and her cousin, Ann Cohen of Chestnut Hill, was junior bridesmaid. Kenneth Abbott of Berkley, Cal., was his brother's best man.

The bride was graduated from Newton South High School and attended New York University School of Fine Art Arts and the Art Students League of New York, of which she is a member. She is also a member of the Boston Visual Arts Union.

Dr. Abbott is a graduate of Winchester High School, Tufts College of Liberal Arts and Tufts University School of Medicine. He received his training at Brown University Providence Hospital and Tufts New England Medical Center Hospital. He is currently in the private practice of neurology at Newton-Wellesley Hospital and Glover Memorial Hospital in Needham. He is a member of the Department of Neurology the New England Medical Center Hospital and Tufts University School of Medicine.

After a trip on Cape Cod, the couple is living in Needham.

Wellesley College researchers release U.S. child care report

WELLESLEY — The inadequacy of child care policies and programs is hampering the federal goal of equal opportunity for women in employment and education, according to Child Care and Equal Opportunity for Women, a report prepared for the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights by the Wellesley College Center for Research on Women.

Since its release in August, over 20,000 copies have been distributed to congressional representatives, federal agencies, state and local human rights commissions, and women's organizations.

According to James A. Levine, who coordinated a team of center researchers including Sharon Harlan, Michelle Seligson, Jsoeph Pleck, and Laura Lein, "This is the first systematic examination of the relationship between the federal government's child care policy and equal opportunity. Social scientists and policymakers have been far more concerned with the effects of maternal employment and day care on children than they have been with the effects of the lack of child care—or of inadequate child care—on parents' lives."

Lack of child care affects women particularly minority women in many ways: It prevents them from participating in the labor force, reduces the amount of time they can devote to employment or education, prevents them from participating in federally supported education and training programs, makes them unable to take advantage of job promotions or training necessary for advancement, and sometimes conflicts with their ability to perform their work.

Because of the need for child care, women routinely drop out of school or the labor force or pass up opportunities for advancement; poor women are kept poor; women are disenfranchised from job opportunities and benefits.

Child Care and Equal Opportunity for Women reviews three dimensions of federal child care activity: programs and policies designed to assist families with child care (Title XX, AFDC, Head Start, Tax Credit); provisions for child care included in major federal employment, training, and educational programs (CETA, WIN, Adult Education, Vocational Education, Higher Education); and provisions for child care made by the federal government in its equal opportunity laws and in its role as an employer.

Drawing for the most part on published journal articles and research reports, government documents, and interviews with government officals and other specialists, the report does not present extensive new data. However, it organized existing information into a framework that sheds new light on the limitations of government policies.

Among the reports findings are:

— Federal programs in direct support of child care—such as Title XX of the Social Security Act and Aid to Families with Dependent Children—remove incentives for women for progress at work by cutting off child care subsidies when their families reach marginal income levels; such programs undermine equal opportunity by linking eligibility to the maintenance of low income rather than to maintenance of employment or the need to work.

— Federal child care programs—and the provisions for child care within employment and job training progrms—favor the employment of male family heads and discourage the employment of women.

— During the 1980's the need for child care will increase substantially.

In effect, conclude the Wellesley researchers, "Our national employment and education policy carries a double message for women. On the one hand, the laws against sex discrimination... say that women have a legal right to equality of opportunity. On the other hand, the failure to use those laws to strike down practices that are sex discriminatory because they interfere with raising children places equality of opportunity out of reach."

According to project director James A. Levine, "We finished this report well before the new administration took office. Things looked bad then, and they look worse now."

Specific policy recommendations presented to the commission by the Wellesley College Center for Research on Women were not included in the final published report. Among these are:

— Systematic and ongoing research by the federal government into how the lack of child care, or inadequate child care, affects women's educational and employment opportunities. The definition of opportunity should not be restricted to educational enrollment or labor force participation, but should include completion of education, continuity on the job, and ability to take on advanced training or responsibility.

— Identifying and encouraging currently authorized federal programs that are particularly effective in advancing women's educational and employment opportunities.

— Legislation to protect and increase the current availability of child care—for instance, establishing a maintenance of effort clause for Title XX and appropriating additional Title XX funds earmarked for day care.

— Legislation to link eligibility to income-enabling employment, rather than to maintenance of low income, as is the case with most federally supported child care programs.

— Elimination of measures that give preference to employment of male family heads in federal job training and employment programs.

— Making child care an affirmative action issue in federal equal opportunity policy by, for example, elaborating the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission position on child care leave and giving it the status of a formal regulation.

Copies of Child Care and Equal Opportunity for Women are available free from the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Publications Warehouse, 621 North Payne, Alexandria, VA 22314, Attn: Ken Harriston.

Information about the continuing research program at the Wellesley College Center for Research on Women can be obtained by writing to: Wellesley College, Center for Research Women, Wellesley, MA 02181; telephone (617) 235-0320.

Recreation Department has children's classes in arts, music and dance

NEWTON — Registrations are now being accepted for morning and afternoon music, art and creative movement classes for children ages 3 through 6 being offered by the Newton Recreation Department's Arts in the Parks program.

With the academic year divided into three sessions, first session classes meet the week of Sept. 21 through the week of Dec. 7.

Phyllis Bernstein, an actress with 16 years experience in modern dance, ballet, jazz and yoga, offers a Tuesday and Thursday morning creative movement and visual arts course with Brookline artist Wendy Hoo. Meeting from 9:30 a.m. - noon, registration is $120 per session.

Creative movement classes are on Tuesdays and Thursdays, for 3 through 6 year olds. Registration per session is $30.

Keren Milner a specialist in the Orff Schulwerk and Kodaly methods of music education offers a course where music is introduced through imagination and voice accompaniment. Learning to read music is a natural outgrowth of this musical exploration. A morning of music, for 3 and 4 year olds meets Mondays from 9:30 a.m. - noon at the Burr Park Fieldhouse where the emphasis will be on instruments, rhymes, rhythms and songs. Registraation fee for the 1st session is $48.00.

Keren's afternoon pathways to music classes for ages 3 through 6 meet Monday and Wednesday afternoons also at the Burr Park Fieldhouse. Registration is $36.

For further information and details about these programs, contact the Newton Recreation Department for a copy of the Fall Arts in the Parks brochure. It is also available at Newton City Hall and at local libraries. Call 552-7120.

Claire Arafe

"That is the worst of those dear people who have charm; they are so terrible to do without, when once you have got accustomed to them and all their ways." –George DuMaurier.

By Cynthia Black
Staff Writer

Claire Arafe

Claire Arafe was one of the more singular players of the game of life. I think she was the one in charge of the surprises. She was certainly the one in charge of appropriate hats for all occasions.

A visit by Mrs. Arafe to the Newton Graphic office was a whirlwind of sentence fragments and humorous observations with a few thoughtful touches thrown in on the side.

It was Claire, bursting with energy and words, marching in in one hat or another, always about ready to tackle another of her many causes.

As her three-year battle with the city Water Department over her bill was coming to a close, she went right over to City Hall to apply for a job, reasoning that if she couldn't fight them, she would join them.

There was Claire in her hardhat watching the construction of a house on Brierfield Road; Claire in her postman's cap picketing the Newton Highlands Post Office after they said she couldn't work there because there was no women's bathroom.

Claire at candidates' nights, public hearings, School Committee meetings. Claire in Auburndale on election day as a poll worker for the Newton Election Commission.

She remarked in a Newton Graphic story done in 1978 that four of her children had finally made it all the way through the Newton school system, and added that she thought she deserved a medal for surviving the whole procedure.

While she didn't get a medal, she did get a letter with four gold stars from Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, a man with a sense of humor, after the article appeared.

A couple months ago she also won the battle over the water bill.

The game just won't be the same without Claire.

Claire Altman Arafe, 48, of 28 Brierfield Rd., Newton Highlands, died Monday, Sept. 7, in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.

Funeral services were held for her Wednesday, Sept. 8, in Temple Israel, Boston.

A resident of Newton for many years, Mrs. Arafe was a partner in the Arafe Mat Co., her husband's firm. She was a native of Boston and a graduate of Mount Ida Junior College.

Mrs. Arafe is survived by her husband, Robert H. Arafe; three daughters, Penny of Columbia, Mo., and Cindy and Tammy of Newton Highlands, her son, Bruce of Brookline; her father, Simon Altman of Brighton; her twin sister, Gail Norris of Newton; and one granddaughter. She was also the mother of the late Kenneth Arafe.

Contributions may be made in her memory to: Fernald League for Retarded Children, Box 85, Waverly, Mass.; or Aid to Cancer Research, 519 Washington St., Brookline.

Claire Arafe thanks Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink for a letter and four gold stars she received after putting four children through the Newton schools. (File photo)

Janice Pierson

A memorial service was held Wednesday, Sept. 9, in Eliot United Church of Christ, Newton, for Janice Whitmore Pierson.

Mrs. Pierson, 77, formerly of Newton, died Saturday, Sept. 5, in Massachusetts General Hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Pierson was a graduate of St. Margaret School for Girls in Waterbury, Conn., and of Briarcliff Manor in New York.

She was a member of Eliot Church and of the Community Center, New Haven, Conn., and the Junior League of Waterbury, Conn. She was also active in the Red Cross in Naugatuck, Conn.

Burial is in Grove Cemetery, Naugatuck.

Lice infestations a common problem for school children

NEWTON — As September and the beginning of the school year approaches, parents/guardians should again be on the look-out for head lice.

Head lice are tiny insects which frequently make their home in children's hair, and over the past five years have become a very common problem in pre-school and school age children.

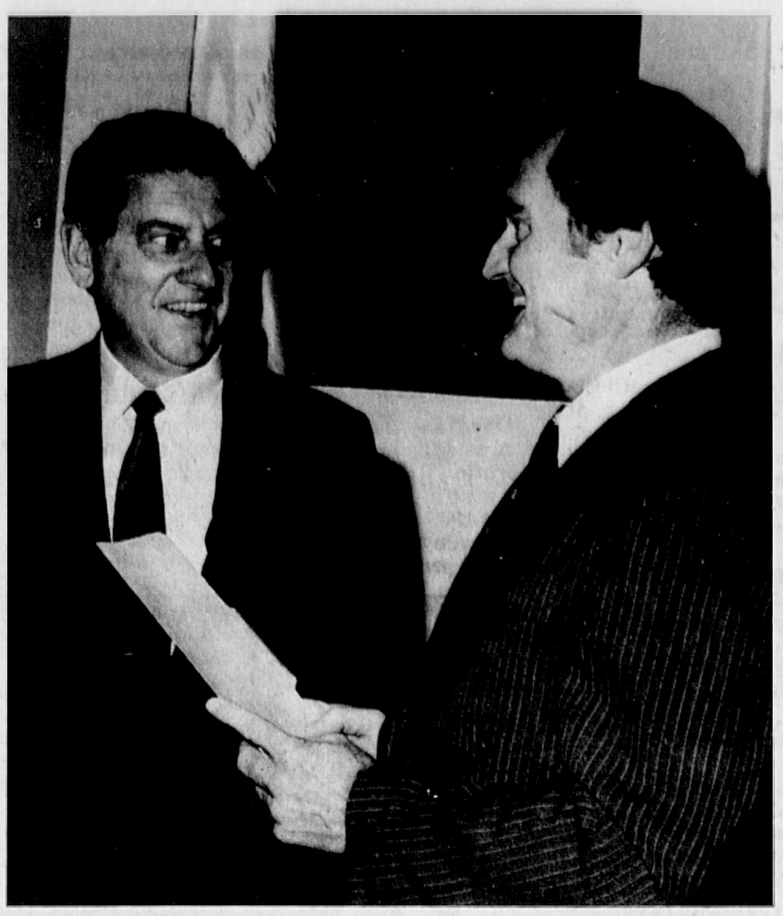

Head lice can spread easily from one person to another. Your child can become infested by coming into contact with another individual who has head lice or by coming in contact with infested combs, brushes, towels, bedding, or furniture.

If your child has attended a summer camp program (whether overnight or day camp) or has participated in any program involving groups of children you should be especially vigilant about examining your children's hair. Contact with groups of children will increase your child's chances of acquiring this problem.

When you examine your child's hair you will be looking for either live lice or eggs (nits). The eggs are easier to see however and look like small white oval objects attached to the hair shaft. Usually they are found behind the ears and around the nape of the neck.

Unlike dandrutt, nits adhere tightly to the hair and cannot be moved. If your child has been exposed to someone with head lice and you are not confident in your ability to identify the lice or eggs the health department staff will answer any questions you have, and, will examine your child's hair and show you exactly what the lice and eggs look like. This will avoid unnecessary treatment.

During September, in those elementary schools where volunteer parent/guardian groups are organized, the health department will be instituting a program to examine every student for the presence of lice. If you would like to see this program put into effect at your school, volunteer for training by contacting Joan York, coordinator at 552-7058.

Governor Edward King swears in Stanton Kurzman (left) as chairman of the Governor's Task Force on International Travel Development. He is the president of Garden City Travel.

Texas rabbi joins temple

NEWTON — Rabbi David A. Whiman has been called to Temple Shalom of Newton to serve as assistant to Rabbi Murray I. Rothman.

Rabbi Whiman, a Phi Beta Kappa member, graduated Magna Cum Laude from the College of William & Mary where he majored and received special honors in anthropology.

After graduation, Rabbi Whiman was commissioned Lieutenant J.G. in the U.S. Navy. He served three years in Greece as National Deputy Chaplain for the Jewish War Veterans.

He received his master of Hebrew Letters from Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, Ohio, and upon graduation and ordination in 1979 was awarded the Cora Kahn prize for sermonic excellence.

Rabbi Whiman served for two years as assistant rabbi at Congregation Beth Israel, Houston, Texas, before being called to Temple Shalom.

Recreation Notes

AUBURNDALE — The Newton Recreation Department offers varied programs at Newton North High School from Oct. 5 through May of next year. The programs are held after school hours, Monday through Friday, and Saturdays and Sundays.

Programs offered include indoor tennis, jogging, co-ed volleyball, free swimming, swimming lessons, weightlifting, exercise classes and special events.

Due to Proposition 2 ½, this year a user fee has been instituted. The cost for the full season will be $35 for a family, $15 for an adult and $10 for children 6 to 18 years of age. Residents who do not wish to purchase a season pass will be required to pay on a daily basis. The fee is $2 for adults; $1 for children and $4 for non-residents.

Resident photo recreation identification cards are still required and may be obtained on the following dates at Newton North High: Tuesday, Sept. 29; Thursday, Oct. 1; Wednesday, Oct. 7; Wednesday, Oct. 14; Tuesday, Oct. 20; Thursday, Oct. 22 and Wednesday, Oct. 28. Additional dates will be scheduled throughout the season.

Registration for session 1 swim lessons at the North High Pool will be held at the Charles Brown (formerly Meadowbrook) Junior High School on Thursday, Oct. 15 from 7 to 9 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 17 from 10 a.m. to noon. Session 1 swim lessons are scheduled to begin on Monday, Oct. 19.

Recreation commissioner Russell J. Halloran reminds swimmers that the department's outdoor swimming facilities are closed for the season. The Gath Pool has been drained and no swimming is allowed at Crystal Lake. He urges those who may be tempted should there be any extremely warm weather that unsupervised swimming is very dangerous.

Special Needs Program

Special Needs Director Gary Hofstetter announces that the Newton Recreation Department will offer expanded programs for the city's special needs children and adults this coming season.

There will be swimming instruction, horseback riding, cross-country skiing and physical education. Other special programs will include a drop-in center at the Newton Centre Hut the first Saturday of each month, ice skating at the Fessenden School rink, adult education classes, school vacation programs, socials, dances, bowling club, weekend camping trips, travel programs and more.

Judo Classes

Judo Classes will be held at the Newton Centre Hut on Tyler Ter., Newton Centre on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from September through May. For further information call Sol Sidman at 332-2272.

Senior Adult Brochure

Judy Dore, director of senior adult activities for the Newton Recreation Department, announces that anyone who has not yet received a brochure describing Senior Adult Programs may obtain a copy by sending their name and an 18 cent stamp to her at the Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, Mass. 02166.

Farmer's Market Continues

The popular Farmers' Market will continue at the War Memorial Circle at the rear of City Hall each Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 7 p.m.

Each week the number of local residents availing themselves of this opportunity to buy fresh fruits, vegetables, eggs, flowers and other farm produce from the Farmers is increasing.

Each week there is a free drawing for a basket of farm products. Simply fill out the coupon. Last week's winner was Charlotte Kadis of 107 Arnold Rd., Newton Centre.

NewTones Invite New Members

The NewTones, the choral group comprised of Newton Seniors who like to sing, invites interested residents to join them at the Horace Mann Recreation Hall any Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The group directed by Barbara Brilliant and Diana Levine at the piano has scheduled ten performances this season. A $60 users fee is being charged this year.

Service news

WEIGHT THERAPY PROGRAM

DO YOU HAVE A WEIGHT PROBLEM THAT WON'T GO AWAY?

Do you spend time worrying about your weight and what you eat? Have you tried many diets, with limited or no success at keeping weight off?

RIVER BRIDGE ASSOCIATES, A PSYCHOLOGICAL GROUP PRACTICE,

announces its Fall 1981 Weight Therapy Program. The program is designed for people who understand that losing weight and keeping it off takes more than good wishes and another new diet.

THE PROGRAM CONTAINS THREE IMPORTANT PARTS:

(1) A Behavior Modification Seminar, to help you improve and control your eating patterns,
(2) A Weight Therapy Group, to help you understand how your emotions and life style relate to eating problems,
(3) Therapeutic Movement Instruction to renew your pride in yourself and your appearance.

This combined approach is designed to support your determination and help you reach and maintain your goal.

If you are serious about losing weight, call to arrange an evaluation.

Arrows to run, have 3 vet backs

If Coach Bob Souza gets his wish, the St. Sebastian's football team could be boring, but they also could be successful.

Souza has three running backs and four offensive linemen returning and it doesn't take a lot of football knowledge to figure out what Souza plans to do offensively.

"We hope to be able to run with the football," said Souza, who is in his fourth year of coaching at St. Sebastian's. "Ideally, we would like to employ a ball control offense. I know with the people we have it can be done."

Souza, who opened practice just last week, has one major worry that could ruin the team's season.

"Injuries," Souza added, "are what we have to avoid this season. If we can stay healthy, we should be able to hold our own. We haven't got much depth and injuries to a few key people could be damaging."

The Arrows open the season on Saturday, Oct. 3, against Governor Dummer. Souza has four srimmages set. St. Sebastian's meets Middlesex on Wednesday and then plays Portsmouth Abbey, Buckingham Browne & Nichols and Belmont Hill.

Souza admits that he doesn't have a breakaway threat in his backfield, but he does have three solid, experienced backs that can get the job done. Capt. Chris Kennedy is back at his fullback spot to be a major cog of the running attack.

Kennedy is a good blocker and tough inside runner.

Schoolboys kickoff season

By Ernie Jones
Sports Correspondent

The more things change, the more they stay the same.

Area high school football teams will open their season this weekend despite the passage and implementation of Proposition 2½. Less than a year ago many coaches feared that their programs might be dropped altogether. Most schools suffered some financial cuts but they all managed to field varsity teams.

The traditional color and pomp of the opening game ceremonies will be followed with the crash of pads and the collision of bodies. Every team starts the season with aspirations of capturing the league championship. This weekend the dreams will disipate into the cold reality of the scoreboard, some will finish on top, and others will might have to wait before breaking into the win column.

NEWTON NORTH

When given a choice Tiger coach Norm Walker usually chooses to run. Newton North travels to Framingham North in a non-league contest on Saturday there will be a lot of churning turf under the cleats of fullback Al Fortune.

Fortune is an awesome runner who is very difficult to bring down when he's built up some steam. Beefing up the Tiger running game will be John Corsi, Mike Abbruzzsse. Halfback Adam McKee will provide Newton North with speed around the ends.

The Tigers finished 6-3-1 last season and with a good nucleus of veterans, Newton North is looking to be in the thick of the fighting of the Suburban League crown.

Walker described the phisical conditioning of his team as the best he's seen in a few years. With the tough, basic, physical brand of football that Walker prefers, Framingham North might be nursing their bruises at the conclusion of Saturday's contest.

WATERTOWN

The big power backs and strong line of last year's Red Raider team have all graduated. It would make most coaches fret, but Watertown coach John Barbaiti is not despondent since almost every other team in the Middlesex League is in the same predicament. The big names have graduated and the League crown is open game.

The Red Raiders are young and fast. Barbati might keep his hopefulls battling for starting positions until they turn the lights on at Victory Field for the home opener against Dedham on Friday night.

Watertown is a mass of question marks. Although Barbati won't have the power for the slow grinding running game that was the team's style last season, Watertown will be faster around the ends and as tenacious as ever.

NEWTON SOUTH

Last season was a frustrating experience for Lion coach Art Kojoyian. Newton South was its own worst enemy. The Lions fumbled away three victories and a few injuries added to their woes.

This season, life should be a little easier. The Lions have two veteran quaterbacks, Joe Spagnulo and Jon Greenburg. Kojoyian may use both of these signal-callers in a much improved passing attack. The outside speed of running back Chris Kiah will be a test for any opposition defenses.

Newton South will host Littleton on Saturday. With a few less fumbles the future could be bright for Newton South.

NEWTON CATHOLIC

The Lancers like to run. When St. Clement's comes to visit on Sunday at Dickinson Stadium Newton Catholic runningbacks John Gionnone, Marc Hung and Mike Walsh will lead the attack.

With two young quarterbacks, Lancer Coach Tom Raeke will probably keep the backs pounding the line and going around end. Last year, a last minute TD pass gave St. Clement's the edge. The Lancers will be more experienced while St. Clement's has lost some of its top players. The Somerville team cannot be taken lightly however with an experienced quarterback returning with 10 TD passes last season.

While Newton Catholic will have a tough time facing larger schools like St. Columbus and Arlington Catholic, the Lancers' fate should improve in this year's Catholic Suburban League battles.

ST. PATRICK'S

Coach Bob McIntyre will probably use his veteran line to wear down Hudson Catholic in the Sunday opener at Victory Field. The Knight's have looked good in preseason and with a bigger and experienced line the future looks bright.

The line will consist of Bill Lederman, Mike Reilly, Tony Gulla and , Jim Petito. McIntyre will probably go with the run and use his team's depth to overpower its Catholic Suburban opponent.

Hudson has had a weak program last year but it has improved and always pulls a few surprises. One advanatge the Knights have is in Asst. Coach Bob Currier. He coached Don Bosco for 11 years and will give St. patrick's another pair of experienced eyes to spot weakeness in the Hudson Catholic defense.

Mazzola finds Tigers have same tradition

By Steve Tiberi
Sports Correspondent

Emilio Mazzola is in his first year as head coach of soccer at Newton High School and he has spotted a few changes since he played for the Tigers 11 years ago, but he also noticed one thing hasn't changed – the winning tradition.

Mazzola was a three-year starter for the Tigers at the halfback position playing on two state tourney teams. After he graduated in 1970 from North, he went on to play halfback for three years at Providence College.

Mazzola was an assistant coach at Newton South in 1976 and 1977. The Watertown resident hasn't coached since then and the Newton North job is his first head coaching assignment.

"It was pleasant to hear the job was open," said Mazzola, who plays soccer for the Newton Club in the Massachusetts United Soccer League. "Coaching at Newton North brings back a lot of memories. I feel like I'm back in high school playing with my old buddies.

"We made the state tournament each of the last two years (1969-1970) I played," Mazzola added. "That is the one thing that hasn't changed here is winning. The team has been strong ever year since I was here and we would like to continue."

Mazzola, who is a teacher at F.A. Day Junior High School, was not too familiar with his 50 candidates when he opened practice on Monday, Aug. 31, but he has got to know the players and is impressed by what he sees.

"There definitely is a lot of talent on this team," said Mazzola. "We have a lot of players with skill and experience. The key to winning soccer is a simple passing game. I plan to stress eliminating as much dribbling as possible and make the ball do the work for us.

"The game itself is basic," Mazzola continued, "you have to be in excellent shape and your skills have to be above normal. Then you have to match the conditioning with the skill. We have a number of players that are ready."

The season started off on bit of a bad note for the Tigers. The team's best goal-scoring prospect, Isaac Berg, went down with a freak injury when he tore a muscle on his pelvis bone. The senior could be out for a number of weeks.

Joe Schleifer is back from last year and will be one of the team's leaders from his midfielder position. Schleifer can control the ball and is a good playmaker. He should fit in well with Mazzola's constant passing game.

John Stewart, also a returning senior, will be a midfielder and could pick up some of the scoring slack. Tim Feeney and Karl Mini will also play up front and are experienced players with a scoring touch.

David Notter will also be a solid performer from his midfielder spot.

Along the defensive backline, the Tigers look strong with three returners. Steve Yannoni is back and a solid defender. Robert Guillemin, J.B. Stern and Dan Schleifer are also working back there. Dan Hindman will see action along the defensive line.

The goaltending situation is up for grabs and two seniors are doing the grabbing. Steve Locke and Henry Huntington both saw some action last year and are battling for the job. Mazzola is happy with their performance and will wait for scrimmages to decide.

The Tigers first scrimmage is tomorrow at Wellesley. Then they open the season with a tough game against Waltham on Tuesday, Sept. 15.

"I'll know a lot more about this team after the first scrimmage," said Mazzola, "and I"ll really know about them after we play Waltham. I know with the right mental attitude we can beat anybody.

"I haven't been around the league (Suburban League) for awhile," Mazzola added, "so I'm really not sure who the strong teams are this year. I will approach every game with the same attitude. We can win."

Mazzola has had no problem adjusting to coaching and the players have responded well. "I really don't know about their characteristics off the field," said Mazzola. "But, on the field, they carry themselves like a great bunch of kids and they respond to every kind of direction. I'm also learning from them."

Tiger Candidates

Conference to tackle school athletic funding problems

In response to the problem resulting from cutbacks in school athletic budgets, a major New England conference to address the school sports funding crisis has been scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 20, at Brandeis University's Spingold Theater.

The conference, sponsored by the American Sports Education Institute, is designed to provide guidelines and assistance to New England school administrators, athletic directorsm coaches, booster club officials and others vitally concerned with the survival of school sports.

"Our goal," says Richard W. Kazmaier Jr., former Heisman Trophy winner and chairman of the conference, "is to reach as many people as we can to provide them with fund-raising information and organizational support so they can work effectively to maintain school sports."

The conference will be composed of two parts: a panel discussion on the funding process, and a discussion of proven methods of re-allocating present resources and funding alternatives.

Speakers at the conference will include keynoter Howard Burns, president of the American Sports Education Institute; Bill Palmer, executive director of the Boosters Clubs of America; Larry McHugh, "designated fund-raiser" for two Middletown, Conn. parochial schools; last year he raised $150,000 to support athletic programs.

Also speaking will be Phil Eskew, past president of the Indiana Interscholastic Athletic Association; Tom Byrnes, commissioner of the California Interscholastic Federation, and Jim Hopper, sales corodinator for NASCO, a professional fund-raising organization. Hopper is past president of the National High School Coaches Association.

Already in support of the conference are a host of athletes, coaches and teams, including Joan Benoit, UNH's Gail Bigglestone, Patti and Joe Catalano, Julie Doherty (president of the Massachusetts Association of Coaches), Terry Driscoll, Mike Eruzione, John Havlicek, Ken Hudson, Bobby Orr, Bill RodgersM "Satch" Sanders, the Boston Celtics, the Boston Red Sox and the New England Patriots.

Also lending their support to the conference are the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents, the Massachusetts Association of School Committees and the Massachusetts Association of Coaches and Athletic Directors.

"Athletic programs in New England are on the verge of becoming an endangered species," says Kazmaier. "We believe that school athletic programs and physical education are basic and essential elements of a school's curriculum. Funding and staff for these programs should not be cut haphazardly in the wake of Proposition 2½ or similar legislation in other New England states."

Kazmaier added, "The major problem caused by the budget cuts is that fewer young people will be able to participate in organized sports at the secondary, middle or junior high school level. Fewer sports will be offered at these levels. The schools may be playing football, but there will be no junior varsity or freshman temas."

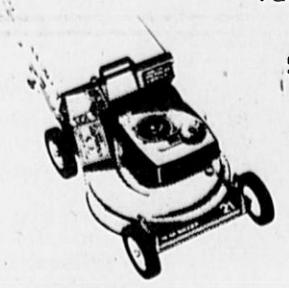

For more information on the Save School Sports Conference, contact Phil Gloudemans at Newsome & Company, Boston, Ma., 426-4300.

Named top players

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Wisconsin-Eau Claire tailback Roger Vann and West Virginia Tech defensive end Rick Divita were named National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics players of the week, the NAIA announced Monday.

Sampson spurs Devil Dogs

Rich Sampson ran for two touchdowns to power the Waltham Devil Dogs to a 27-0 opening-day victory over the Newton NAA Lions Sunday in a Pop Warner Football Conference contest at Newton Highlands Field.

The Devil Dogs burst out to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter by scoring on their first two possessions. Waltham got the only score it would need on the first drive of the game.

Frank Tiano slashed around end for a 40-yard touchdown run to put Waltham ahead, 6-0. The extra point attempt failed. The drive covered 57 yards and took just five plays. Sampson then scored his first touchdown on the next Waltham offensive series.

Sampson's touchdown run spanned 41 yards and Mark Caruso's kick gave the Devil Dogs the lead. Newton got a chance to score in the second peiod, but fumbled the ball away on Waltham's eight yard line and tackle Chris Sullivan recovered.

That would be the closest Newton would get to score as the Waltham defense led by Ray LeBlanc at linebacker and cornerback Jim Falzone shut the Lions attack down.

Waltham iced the contest with a pair of scores. Quarterback Mike Iannuzo snuck it over from the two in the second period and in the fourth period Sampson broke lose for a 70-yard jaunt to close the lid.

President Reagan is treated to exhibition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan was treated to a tennis lesson from members of the Davis Cup and Wightman Cup teams Monday and told his guests he thought about taking up the game once until he was told "I couldn't get the horse on the court."

The president and first lady Nancy Reagan watched a tennis exhibition between Davis Cup members Stan Smith and Marty Riessen. Riessen eventually won the match, 4-1.

The president, in remarks to a gathering of administration officials and tennis celebrities, including U.S. Open champions John McEnroe and Tracy Austin, praised tennis as a game for the whole family — one that has become a national sport.

He said he would probably be a pretty good tennis player, too.

Chiropractic for Health

by Dr. David G. Rutman, Chiropractor

Complete chiropractic treatment often includes the re-testing of problem areas. In making an original diagnosis, a chiropractor will use a combination of physical, neurological and orthopedic tests. These same tests might be used periodically through the course of the treatment to see how you are progressing. At the end of treatment, you may well be tested again, even with the use of additional x-ray. It is important to insure that the treatment has been successful in correcting causes rather than just having surface symptoms alleviated.

Your chiropractor seeks to eliminate symptoms by finding and correcting the underlying cause of those symptoms. The doctor of chiropractic knows that if yours is a chiropractic condition nothing else is likely to help you. The doctor of chiropractic is the only member of the health care profession who has had specialized training in recognizing and analyzing body imbalances, muscle tensions and spinal misalignments and these factors cause more problems than most of us realize. DR. DAVID G. RUTMAN, CHIROPRACTOR, 4593 Washington Street, Roslindale, 323-5022 by appointment. Open three nights a week.

CHIRO TIP:
Bedrooms should have good ventilation for sleeping.

North girls ready for the best

How much confidence does Coach Barry Howland have in his Newton North High School girls' soccer team?

Howland is confident enough to schedule such heavyweights as Westwood, Foxboro, Concord-Carlisle and Needham for pre-season scrimmages and Wellesley and Bridgewater-Raynham during the regular season.

"I have the team this year," said Howland, "and I want everybody to know it. We are going to play the best and be prepared for anyone this season. I'm very fortunate to have players that can do it all. The team really isn't weak at any position."

Howland, who opened practices on Monday, Aug. 31, had 35 candidates come out for the varsity. The lineup was no problem for Howland as all he had to do was look at last season's sheet. The Tigers have returning players with state tournament experience at every position except one.

"That will be one of our biggest assets," said Howland. "We have a lot of experience. Almost every person in the starting lineup has played in the state tournament and during the regular season. We went to the quarter-finals last year so they all know how to win."

The Tigers have won the Suburban League for the past six seasons and finished with an 18-3 record last year. The trend is likely to continue this season even though the league has gotten tougher.

"There will be a lot more competition in the league this season," said Howland. "Our goal is to defend our championship and then worry about the tournament. This should be the toughest year in the league and we will have to play well all season long."

The Tigers have been sharpening their skills against some of Eastern Massachusetts best squads. They have already faced Foxboro and Concord. Thursday they played Westwood and today will go against Needham. On Saturday, Bridgewater-Raynham will be the opponent. The season opens against Waltham on Tuesday, Sept. 15, at Newton North.

The Tigers will be lead by returning All-Scholastic Debbie Quinn. The senior stopper back will have a free range of the field. She will be allowed to go anywhere and to bolster the North team.

Tri-Captain Lori Goldenberg, who was the second leading scorer in the league a year ago, will be restricted to the front line. Stephanie Stoinoff and Andrea Farina will also be up front and both are back from last year. Renee Jones, Freddi Pittman, Jackie Dillon will be the reserves.

The experienced crew of midfielders include; Joanne Rossetti, Diane Casey and Sandy Troy. Rossetti has great endurance and Troy is a good defensive player. Mona Calderone, Tina McCabe and Dee O'Conner will also see action at midfield.

Denise Richards will return to lead a strong defensive line. The only player that will start this season that didn't last season is sophomore Kathy Maguire. She had an outstanding year at Warren Junior High and earned a spot on the starting roster.

Karen Simonetti, Karen Erbafina and Tina Gentile will also play on the defense. The returning goalie is Carole Summers. The senior netminder played all of last year and is solid in the nets.

SENIORS

JUNIORS

SOPHOMORES
Kathy Maguire.

Sophs key to South girls' soccer

The mettle of a team can only be discovered under fire.

Last year Newton South girls' soccer coach Charlie Hurwitz had the most talented team since the soccer program began four years earlier. But the talent wasn't enough and for the first time the Lions failed to break the .500 in the win-loss columns.

Newton South lost 12 seniors to graduation but Hurwitz is optimistic.

"Our hopes rest with the sophomores," Hurwitz said.

The Lion coach may start three or four sophomores and use them in critical positions. "They've been a pleasant surprise," Hurwitz added.

The three stalwarts of the team are the senior tri-captains. Patrice Galvin is an offensive leader at right wing, Patty Sullivan anchors the defense at fullback and Linda Martin is at center halfback.

"The three captains have improved. There were active in the off season and it shows, Hurwitz said.

The competition has been fierce for starting positions and Hurwitz has not yet chosen the first 11.

Barbara Scheiffer and Chiqui Wales are fighting out for goaltender.

On defense, Hurwitz is concerned with his depth. "The defense is solid but injuries could hurt us," the Newton Coach said.

The Lions have had a top-notch defense for the past two seasons. Cecila Wilcox, Bettina Chiaravelotti, Nancy DeMichele and Elaine Presley are competing for fullback slots along with freshman Julie Ketterer.

Hurwitz said, "We have some good shooters this year and we should have a lot stonger offense."

Recreation notes

Mini Bike Tracks Open

The Mini Bike Facility operated by the Recreation Department at the site of the former city on Winchester St., Newton Highlands, has reopened for the fall season. Newton residents who own mini bikes may use this three-track area from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday. The operation is directed by recreation staffers Steve and Al Mazzola who place emphasis on safety.

Riders must wear helmets and hard-toed shoes. Bikes must be equipped with spark arresters, mufflers, brakes and safe tires.

There is a $5 fee for each mini bike and a $1 fee for each additional rider of that bike.

Supervised Tennis

Supervised Tennis Courts at Newton North and Newton South Highs and Burr Park and the Newton Centre Playground will continue through the evening of Sunday, Sept. 20.

The many other hard-topped courts maintained throughout the city will remain open on a first-come, first-serve basis as long as the weather cooperates.

Arts in the Parks

Arts in the Parks of the Newton Recreation Department has scheduled many fall classes, workshops and trips, including both adult and children's classes. Included are children's creative movement, needlepoint, stained glass, yoga, quiltmaking and decorative tiles.

Also scheduled are a walking tour of Cambridge and a special opportunity to visit the Worcester Art Museum.

Once again there will be Friday afternoons at the Boston Symphony preceded by lectures at the All-Newton Music School. Classes are scheduled to start the week of Sept. 21.

For a brochure send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ARTS in the Parks, Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, Mass. 02166.

Harvest Fair

Arts in the Parks Director Linda Plaut says that there are still some booths available for Newton's Annual Harvest Fair to be held on the Newton Centre Green Sunday, Oct. 4. Interested groups should call her at 552-7120.

Overnight Trips

Seniors interested in taking overnight trips this season should leave their names and addresses at the Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale.

Senior Bus Trips

Registration will open on Friday, Oct. 2 for the bus trip to view the foliage in New Hampshire. The trip will include luncheon at the Hanover House in Manchester followed by a tour of the Anheuser-Busch Brewery and the opportunity to see the world-famous Clydesdale Team.

The choice of entree for the lunch is thin-sliced roast beef, or broiled Boston schrod. Cost for the lunch and trip is $10.

Bus no. 1 and 2 leaves the recreation department on Thursday, Oct. 22, at 10 a.m.

Police news

NEWTON — Seven IBM Selectric typewriters, which sell for approximately $1000 or more each, were reported stolen from two businesses at 2000 Commonwealth Avenue early Friday, police said.

Police said a door to the office building which houses several businesses was knocked off its hinges to gain entrance.

A Temple Street resident reported the theft of a diamond ring, six other rings and a silver ring tree Saturday morning, police said.

Also reported this weekend was a break-in on Kenrick Terrace which left the resident unsure what was missing at the time of the report.

Police said a bedroom window was broken to gain entrance and that the house was ransacked.

An Ashmont Avenue woman surprised a boy in her bedroom Friday morning and her scream sent him scrambling out a kitchen door, according to police.

But she quickly discovered her pocketbook on the floor of the bedroom with the $500 to $600 that had been in it missing. Police said they are searching for a black male, approximately 15 years of age, 5 feet 6, thin with short, black curly hair, in connection with the theft.

At the time the woman saw the suspect, about 10:15 a.m. Friday, she described him as wearing a gray tee shirt.

Principal William Jesdale of Charles Brown Junior High (formerly called Meadowbrook) reported Friday morning that a set of weights, gym shorts and other items had been stolen from the school, police said.

The gym shorts were stolen from the teacher's locker room and the weights were stolen from a gym room. Police said the thefts occured in the last few weeks.

A Gail Road resident awoke around 4 a.m. last Wednesday after he heard noises coming from the vicinity of his house. He observed a person carrying items out of his garage and called the police.

When police arrived, they were unable to find the suspect. Reported missing was a silver 10-speed bicycle, assorted tools and four Firestone snow tires.

LEGAL NOTICES

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
PROBATE COURT
Middlesex, ss.
No. 59971

NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of Mary G. Barber, late of Newton, in said County:

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R.Civ.P. Rule 72 that the first & final trustee's account of Virgil C. Brink (deceased 5/28/76 as rendered by James A. Brink, successor trustee) and the first through third accounts of James A. Brink as successor trustee (fiduciary) under the will of said deceased for the benefit of Ruth Barber Heminway and Eleanor Barber Dow (being the twentieth through twenty-second accounts of the trust) have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said accounts, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge on or before the twenty-third day of September, 1981, the return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R.Civ.P. Rule 5.

Witness, Sheila E. McGovern, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of August, 1981.

Lecturer will discuss gifted student program

NEWTON CORNER — Newton's P.A.C.E. (Parent's Association for Challenging Education) will present Helaine Sweet, coordinator for mentor programs, Springfield School Volunteers.

She will discuss "A Mentor Program - Possibilities Unlimited" on Wednesday, Sept. 23, 7:45 p.m. at Bigelow Junior High School Library, Newton Corner.

Mrs. Sweet will discuss her program in the Springfield Public Schools which utilizes the expertise of many community experts or "mentors" as a resource for gifted and talented students in the public schools. Newton parents will be exploring the possibilities of a program similar to this for children in Newton.

The Springfield program has matched students of high interest and ability with such community members as museum curators, writers, artists, doctors, scientists, and computer analysts.

Mrs. Sweet has spoken before many groups about her program and was the highlight of a state conference on mentor programs for the gifted and talented. She will share her thinking on learning patterns and interests of children, her method of seeking appropriate mentors and the activities that are possible using community resources.

The public is welcome to attend.

THUR., SEPT. 17

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) JENNIFER: A WOMAN'S STORY. Elizabeth Montgomery as a woman married to the head of a successful boat-building firm whose life is changed when he dies unexpectedly.

FRI., SEPT. 18

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) EMBRYO. A new beginning this-when a research scientist injects a fetus in the womb with a growth hormone and 10 days later the "baby" is born as a full grown woman complete with skills and experience.

SAT., SEPT. 19

THE SHOOTIST
JOHN WAYNE
JAMES STEWART
LAUREN BACALL
RON HOWARD

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain) THE SHOOTIST. "Duke's" final on-screen hurrah and a dandy. Assembled for the farewell are Lauren Bacall, Ron Howard, James Stewart, Richard Boone, Hugh O'Brian and assorted other ole pros.

SUN., SEPT. 20

7-8PM ABC (6 Central/Mountain) PLEASE DON'T HIT ME, MOM. A story smack out of today's headlines: Child Abuse! Academy Award winner Patty Duke Astin as a troubled parent and her young son Sean making his TV debut as a battered child. A sensitive, heartbreaking and thought-provoking drama.

8-9:30PM ABC (7 Central/Mountain) CODE RED. Danger and suspense surround the firefighters of Station 49 as they battle a series of mysterious blazes. Lorne Greene stars.

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) THE COACH OF THE YEAR. Robert Conrad as Jim Brandon, a former star with the Chicago Bears badly injured in the Vietnam War. Now, years later, he tries to put his life back together and succeeds in one big way by working with problem kids.

9:30-11PM ABC (8:30 Cent./Mt.) OUR FAMILY BUSINESS. The second-in-command in L.A.'s organized crime returns from prison determined to find out who set him up. His determination sets off a chain of events that threatens the guilty and innocent alike. Ray Milland stars.

MON., SEPT. 21

8-9PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain) EVERY STRAY DOG-AND KID. Maureen Anderman and Bruce (Hill Street Blues) Weitz in a comedy-drama about a female ex-con struggling to write a book about life behind bars while making a home for some street-wise juvenile offenders placed under her supervision. Hunt and peck and problems.

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) AND BABY MAKES SIX. Colleen Dewhurst and Warren Oates as a middle-aged couple, with three grown children, facing parenthood again.

TUES., SEPT. 22

8-11PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain) SALEM'S LOT. Horror on the rocks as vampirism runs wild in modern day New England. David Soul, James Mason, Lance Kerwin, Bonnie Bedelia and the always charming Reggie Nalder. Chilling!

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)

Oh, God!

OH, GOD! Good heavens, it's back again with, of course, George Burns as Him and John Denver slipping into the shoes of a supermarket manager chosen by the Almighty to be His messenger. Down to earth comedy.

WED., SEPT. 23

haywire

8-11PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain) HAYWIRE. Based on the best-seller of the same title by Brooke Hayward, daughter of super star of the '30's and '40's Margaret Sullavan and famed theatrical agent-producer Leland Hayward. An account of the glittering 'n' glamorous worlds of Hollywood and Broadway and the emotional upheaval of family members. Lee Remick and Jason Robards with Deborah Raffin as author Brooke. Good times and grief.

FRI., SEPT. 25

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) BETTER LATE THEN NEVER. A fun filled film about senior citizens in a stodgy retirement home who band together and kick up their heels and steal a train to have a last glorious fling at life.

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain) GOLDEN GATE. Drama. Perry King.

SAT., SEPT. 26

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain) MATILDA. Zaniness with Elliott Gould as a fast-talking, warm-hearted booking agent who hypes the career of a prize-fighting kangaroo toward a title bout with the heavyweight champ of the world. Right!

SUN., SEPT. 27

7-8PM ABC (6 Central/Mountain) STONED. An award-winning drama about a shy boy's retreat into the world of marijuana. Scott Baio stars.

8-10:30PM ABC (7 Central/Mountain) INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS. Donald Sutherland, Brooke Adams, Leonard Nimoy and a bunch of big vegetable pods.

MON., SEPT. 28

TUES., SEPT. 29

8-10PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain) HIGH NOON, PART II: THE RETURN OF WILL KANE. This picks up where the '51 classic left off, about a year after the climatic gunfight between Marshall Kane and the Frank Miller gang. Pernell Roberts, David Carradine and Lee Majors taking over the role that won Gary Cooper his second Oscar.

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) THE SOPHISTICATED GENTS. Part 1. The Gents are Bernie Casey, Rosey Grier, Robert Hooks, Ron O'Neal, Thalmus Rasulala, Raymond St. Jacques, Melvin Van Peebles, Dick Anthony and Paul Winfield. They all arrive at a reunion with great anticipation and begin to rekindle memories and friendships... but, before the celebration is over, they learn that one of their number is wanted for murder.

10-11PM CBS (9 Central/Mountain) UNIT 4. Action adventure involving a small anti-terrorist strike force attempting to rescue a high-level U.S. Government official and his family from the clutches of revolutionaries high in the snowy Colorado Rockies.

WED., SEPT. 30

8-9PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain) A BOY NAMED CHARLIE BROWN. A special treat with C.B. and all the rest of the spunky little *Peanuts*landers. "Ole blockhead" runs the gamut from trauma to triumph and it's a touching tale.

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain) YOUNG LOVE, FIRST LOVE. A drama of conflicting teen-age values. Valerie Bertinelli and Timothy Hutton.

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain) THE MANIONS OF AMERICA. (1). A romantic drama filmed entirely in Ireland, about the tempestuous lives of an Irish immigrant family that created an American family dynasty. Kathleen Beller, Pierce Brosnan, Simon MacCorkindale, Anthony Quayle, Kate Mulgrew and David Soul. Part 2 concludes tomorrow at the same time.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

CREATIVE HOME FINANCING

If you're in the market for a home of your own, you're probably in the market for a home loan, too. A conventional mortgage is usually the first kind that comes to mind, but other alternatives do exist.

These include • privately insured loans • GI-insured loans • FHA/HUD-insured loans • Farmers Home Administration loans • urban "homestead" loans • "house-to-house" loans • variable interest rate loans • graduated payment mortgages and • HUD's subsidized homeownership program.

To learn about these possibilities, talk to a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® before you start looking. REALTORS® are real estate professionals, and forms of financing are part of their expertise. They can tell you what's available in your community, and how you can qualify.

- Toyota quality.
- Install new spark plugs and, if necessary, new points and condenser.
- Check timing and ignition system.
- Adjust carburetor.

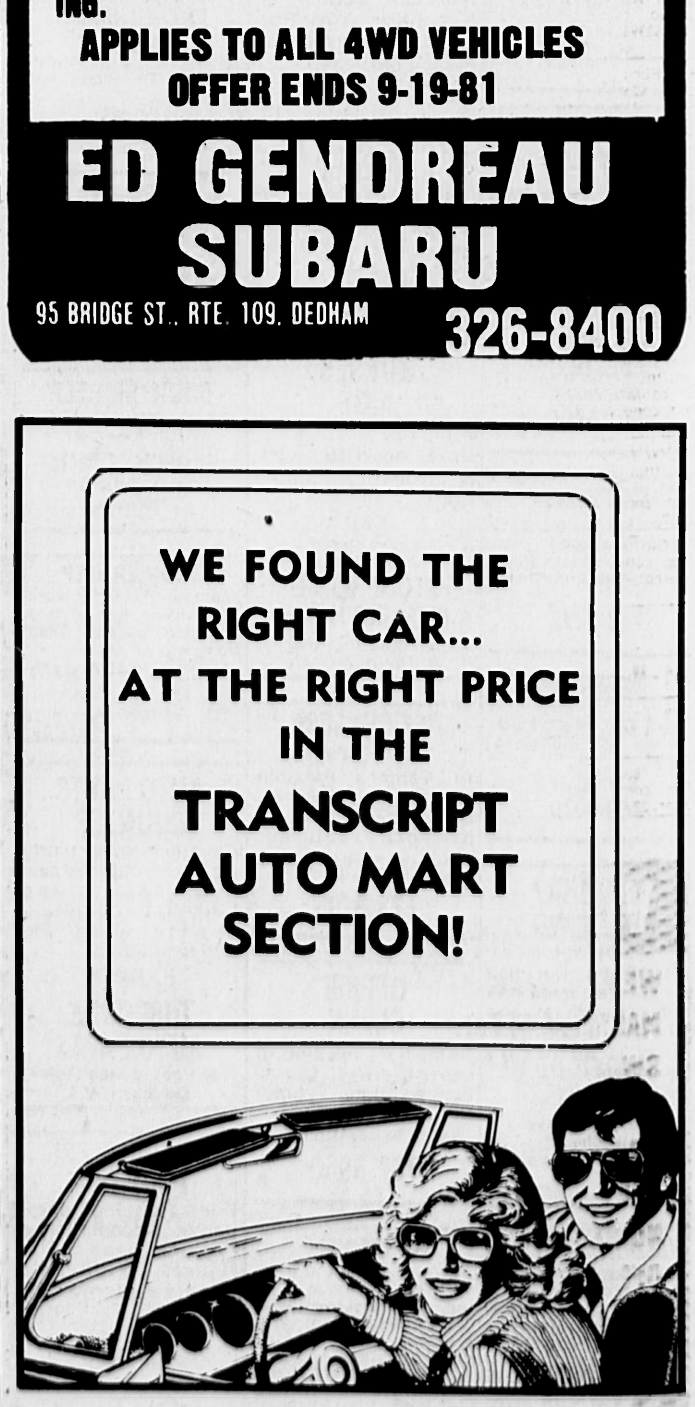

Now at your Toyota dealer, your Toyota is cheaper to keep than before. We've lowered prices on many of the parts and services you need most. Perk up your Toyota's performance and keep it operating efficiently with a tune-up. The price above is for any four-cylinder Toyota. Six-cylinder models slightly higher. For Toyota trained technicians and Genuine Toyota Parts, plus new everyday low prices, bring your Toyota to the people who know Toyotas best.

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

Estate of Marjory Collins, late of Newton, in the County of Middlesex:

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that a certain instrument purporting to be the last will of said deceased may be proved and allowed and that Norman E. Whitney of Newton, in the County of Middlesex, be appointed executor thereof, without giving surety on his bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge on or before September 28, 1981.

Witness, Sheila E. McGovern, Esquire, First Judge of said Court at Cambridge, the 17th day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and eighty-one.

To Louis Mastromattei of Newton and City of Newton, in the County of Middlesex, and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Eleuterio L. Mastromattei of Newton, in the County of Middlesex, representing that he holds as tenants in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton, in said County, and briefly described as follows:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Newton, Middlesex County, Massachusetts and being Lot #11 on a plan of real estate in Newtonville formerly owned by Marcus T. Heywood, surveyed by Marshall S. Rice, dated September 15, 1870, and recorded with Middlesex South Deeds, Plan Book 17, Plan 72, bounded and described as follows:

NORTHWESTERLY by Churchill Street, One hundred fifty and one-half (150½) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY by Lot #12 as shown on said plan, Seventy (70) feet;

SOUTHEASTERLY by Lot #10 as shown on said plan and land now or late of Wentworth, One hundred thirty-six and one-half (136½) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by Crafts Street, Seventy-two (72) feet;

Containing 10,116 square feet of land, more or less.

Excepting such portion as has been made a part of Crafts Street. Subject to and with the benefits of restrictions and easements of record insofar as the same are now in force and applicable.

Subject to mortgage of record recorded with Middlesex South Registry of Deeds.

Reserving unto the said Grantor, Mary Mastromattei, a life estate in and to the said premises.

For Grantor's title see deed recorded with Middlesex South Registry of Deeds, Book 8363, Page 417.

and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the sixth day of October, 1981, the return day of this citation.

Mann, Marquis top mayoral ballot

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — There was a red, white and blue cash barometer posted on the ballroom wall of the Nonantum Post 440 Tuesday night that read "Boost Bruce Marquis for Mayor of Newton."

Looking at yesterday's preliminary election results, Marquis, who edged Mark White for the right to do battle with Mayor Theodore Mann, the Waban businessman will need quite a boost to oust the incumbent.

"Let our political future rest with the record," said Mann at a subdued victory party at Sidney Hill Country Club. Those who have observed the 59-year-old Mann over his 20 years as a political fixture apparently felt the same.

Mann upstaged the most optimistic of predictions out of his camp by capturing an overwhelming 60 percent (7,323) of the 12,461 votes cast. A total of 25 percent of Newton voters cast ballots. The three-term mayor took 27 of the city's 32 precincts while Marquis won four and tied a fifth.

Marquis, finishing a distant second, claimed 22 percent or 2,790 votes while White polled 19 percent of the electorate with 2,346 tallies.

Collectively, the challengers still fell far short of Mann, totaling just 41 percent of the electorate.

"This administration has done well for the City of Newton and the voters said so," said Mann. "They have to decide whether they want to entrust their finances and property values with an unproven quality."

"The important thing," he added, "is the support we received throughout the city today."

Yet, Marquis, who is no longer a political unknown in the city, is keeping his eyes focused on November with upset in mind. For the 37-year-old insurance salesman who is promoting a "back to basics" campaign, there is a new battle to wage.

Speaking at City Hall, Marquis said he believed two-thirds of the White vote would come over to his campaign in the final election. It is this anti-Mann faction, par-

Richmond over Katz in 8

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Marcy Richmond, an attorney who garnered the support of many local public officials, topped incumbent Robert Katz in the preliminary election for the Ward 8 alderman seat Tuesday.

Richmond, who will face Katz in November, finished with 322 more votes than the freshman alderman.

Deborah Rubin Barnhart finished a distant third with 68 votes. Richmond received 1,150 votes or 56 percent of the vote while Katz received 828 votes or 40 percent of the vote.

Richmond, who spent $1,500 in the preliminary, celebrated the strong showing at her Christina Street home with about 30 supporters. "It feels good," she said. "I am very pleased."

Surrounded by well wishers and campaign workers enjoying refreshments, Richmond, an at-

Gentile, Brant win

By Sarah Clayton

NEWTON — School Committee candidate Leonard Gentile whalloped opponents Jonathan Brant and David Wilbourn in Tuesday's Ward 1 preliminary by receiving about 46 percent of the vote.

The north side of the city, which includes the Warren Junior High district and other areas affected by school consolidation decisions, was especially supportive with Gentile capturing a combined total of 2877 votes from Wards 1-4 compared with 915 cast for Brant and 1178 for Wilbourn.

Jonathan Brant came in second and will face Gentile Nov. 3 in one of the two contested School Committee races.

City-wide, Brant narrowly defeated Wilbourn by a margin of 391 votes, with Brant getting 2,980 votes and Wilbourn receiving steady support throughout the wards for a total of 2,589. Gentile's stunning victory totaled 4,648 votes.

Brant picked up the extra votes to defeat Wilbourn on the south side of the city, especially in Wards 6-8.

Although Brant's strongest support was from the south side, Gentile controlled Ward 5 and made a strong showing in both Ward 6 and Ward 8.

In Ward 6 Gentile won in precinct three with 164 votes compared with 159 for Brant and 116 for Wilbourn.

The totals for Ward 6 showed Brant with 500, Gentile a close 443 and Wilbourn getting 383 votes.

In Ward 8, Gentile won in precincts one, three and four. In precinct two, Brant received 221 votes compared with 68 cast for Gentile. The totals for Ward 8 showed Brant ahead with 624, Gentile with 535 and Wilbourn with 358.

Wilbourn was the favorite by a fair margin in Ward 1, precinct two, and precincts two and four in Ward 2. Wilbourn also captured precinct two in Wards 3,6 and 7.

Gentile's only precinct losses on the north side were to Wilbourn. Gentile's strongest showings were in Ward 1, which includes Nonantum, and Ward 3.

At celebrations both at his home on Emerald Street and at the American Legion Post 440 on California St., Gentile expressed gratitude to his supporters which he said consisted largely of "family and friends."

"I'm very, very pleased," Gentile said of his strong victory. "We felt it was going to be a close three-way race."

"The thing I enjoyed most about it was that there was no animosity among the candidates," Gentile, an administrative aide to Rep. Joseph DeNucci, continued. "We all worked pretty hard."

"We won by a decent amount, but we're going to have our hands full in November," the Newton native added.

Looking forward to continuing his campaign, Gentile said he felt the differences between Brant and himself were "much clearer" than between Wilbourn and Gentile. Of Wilbourn, Gentile said, "I have nothing but the utmost respect for him. I just know he's extremely concerned about education in Newton."

"I hope that I can convince a lot of his (Wilbourn's) strong supporters that I'm the right man for the job now because I do feel that we have a lot in common," Gentile, a teacher for five years in Maine and the Newton schools, stressed.

Jonathan Brant, reached at his home on Maple Lane after the results were final, was also elated to win a spot in the November face-off.

"I look forward to the race ahead," Brant, a Ward 1 resident for 8 years said.

"We're going to run very hard city-wide," he added. "We are now one-on-one and the issues between us will be more clearly focused and I think we can win."

When asked about the lackk of interest in the one preliminary School Committee race, Brant, a practicing attorney and associate professor of law at New England School of Law, commented, "It has been difficult to develop exposure for this race, but now that the preliminary is over and fall is here, people will concentrate on that race."

Wilbourn, co-president of the Cabot PTA this past year with his wife, Joyce, was disappointed by his defeat and said he was unsure if he would run again.

However, Wilbourn stressed, "I really enjoyed it (the campaign)."

Political neophyte bests DePasquale by 1 vote

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — John McDermott, a 21-year old Boston College student, edged incumbent Joseph DePasquale by one vote to top the ballot in the preliminary election for the ward 1 alderman seat Tuesday.

Gabriel Crognale, an environmental engineer for the state, was eliminated from the November election. Crognale received 102 votes- 448 behind McDermott.

McDermott, who received 550 votes, said he will continue to campaign hard in an attempt to also win the November contest against the incumbent. Both McDermott and DePasquale finished with 45 percent of the vote.

McDermott, a political neophyte, was at City Hall when Election Commissioner Alan Licarie announced the final tally. "I feel great," said the ecstatic student who works part-time at Edward's Supermarket in Watertown. "I'm just going to keep plugging away; that is what got us this far."

Flanked by a group of students who worked in his campaign, the Newton North graduate said the final tally was far better than he expected. If elected, McDermott would become the youngest person to be elected alderman in the city's history.

McDermott attacked DePasquale consistently in the campaign. He charged that the incumbent is "inaccessible and unresponsive." McDermott said the vote was message that a strong portion of the ward is dissatisfied with the incumbent.

DePasquale, who admitted that he was "surprised" by McDermott's impressive showing, said: "The key for him was that he got the votes he is going to get. The low turnout was to his advantage."

The incumbent, who works at DePasquale's Grocery on Adams St., predicted that his supporters will be out in force for the final.

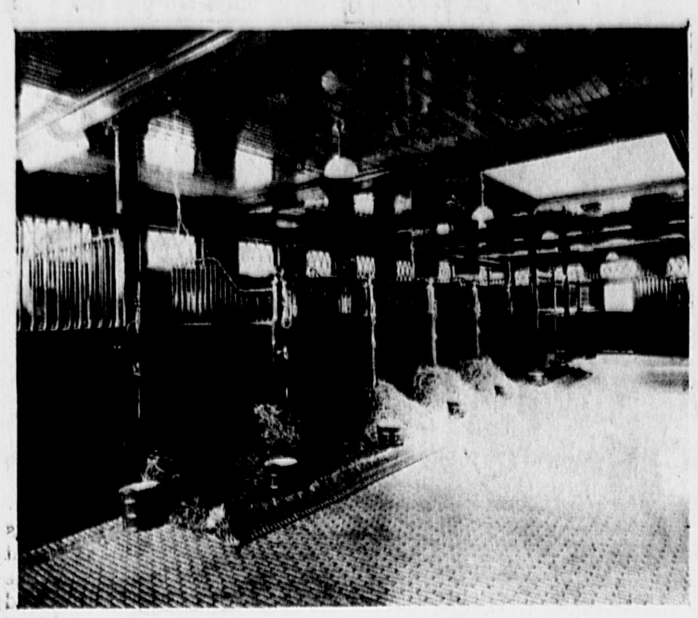

"A lot of my supporters just did not get out and vote," said DePasquale. "The higher turnout will definitely help me...He (McDermott) identified his vote, went after it, and took all he will take."

In his home precinct (1), McDermott defeated the incumbent by 36 votes. In precinct two, DePasquale topped McDermott by 52 votes.

In his home precinct, DePasquale walloped McDermott by 100 votes. In precinct three, McDermott nipped DePasquale by a slim 13 votes.

Crognale said he has not decided if he will endorse either candidate. However, he noted: "I don't think either of them (DePasquale or McDermott) will do good for this community."

The 27-year old Northeastern University graduate vowed to run for the seat again in 1983.

Carroll Center open house Sunday

NEWTON CORNER — The Carroll Center for the Blind in Newton is celebrating the grand opening of its new training facility for blinded adults at an open house and special ribbon cutting ceremony on Sunday, Sept. 27 from 1 to 6 p.m.

The Carroll Center began in 1954 as the fulfillment of the dream of the Rev. Thomas J. Carroll, who, after working with blinded war veterans in the Veterans Administration programs during the post World War II era, wished to establish the same opportunities for civilians who became blind.

Father Carroll's dream became a reality when he established the first residential rehabilitation program for the civilian blind at the Catholic Guild for the Blind, which was later to become a model for others to follow.

The program involved intensive rehabilitation training over a 16-week period for those who were recently blinded and still continues today as Father Carroll developed it, in order to teach the skills necessary for independence and self-sufficiency in daily activities.

Father Carroll developed the concept that blindness is a multiple handicap. When a person loses vision, activities become extremely difficult, unless he has learned the adaptive techniques necessary.

He also maintained that, among all of the losses experienced by the newly blinded person, the most traumatic is the loss of self-esteem.

Father Carroll died very suddenly in 1971 at the height of his career, but not before he had made significant contributions to the field of blindness, one of which was to take the image of the blind person from one of pity and custodial care to one of rehabilitation and independence.

The Catholic Guild for the Blind developed a worldwide reputation as a leader in the field of blindness through the relentless efforts of Father Carroll.

The guild in 1972 chose to change its name to the Carroll Center for the Blind in honor of the man who made his dream a reality, a reality in which many blind individuals have shared in becoming productive members of society.

The Carroll Center today continues to serve the blinded adult in developing independence through rehabilitation in the tradition of Father Carroll, and it is most fitting indeed that the center is opening its new training facility in commemoration of the 10th anniversary of his death.

The new facility evolved as a result of a need to consolidate the center's programs into one building in order to curb inflating operating costs and to comply with the federal mandates of a barrier-free environment for the handicapped.

Once an elegant 19th century style carriage house accented by polished brass, imported stone and artifacts of a bygone era, the character and charm have been preserved by architects, Graham Gund Associates. Originally a two-story building, the designers have installed a third floor for additional offices. The entire period of construction took approximately one year.

The sounds of horses and stable boys that once echoed here will now be replaced by the sounds of people learning and building a new way of life as a blind person. Sensory training, mobility and personal management are but a few of the adaptive skills that play a role in the personal adjustment to blindness. Daily activities, such as eating, grooming, traveling, etc. are done quite easily with vision but are extremely difficult without it.

The Carroll Center's rehabilitation training program teaches methods and techniques for doing these everyday tasks with impaired vision. By preparing the blind adult to achieve as much independence as possible, the blind person will start to feel good about himself and his new-found abilities. Self-image and self-esteem will improve through achievement and soon the blind adult begins to take those important steps forward in participating in life, once again.

Blindness affects people from all walks of life. The 21-year-old auto mechanic, the 40-year-old lawyer and the 60-year-old engineer who become blind must learn to adjust in their own personal and individual ways to their vision loss, but they all must become actively involved in the rehabilitation process and thus in life itself.

Rehabilitation training at the Carroll Center provides the basic tools for achievement for the blinded individual enabling each person to achieve his own level of independence.

Independence is the principle upon which this country was built, but for the thousands of adults who become blind each year, independence in their daily activities does not come easy. It requires a lot of hard work and the will to succeed. The Carroll Center is there to provide the tools necessary to achieve independence for the newly blinded adult, and more than anything else, to help the newly blinded person to help themselves.

The center's philosophy of encouraging independence in each blind individual can be summarized by the statement: "Catch me a fish and I eat for a day. Teach me to fish and I eat for a lifetime."

Roof repair contract let

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — A Weymouth firm has been awarded a $742,000 contract to repair 13 school and municipal roofs.

MacDonald Sprague Company won the contract with a bid that will allow the city to repair more city roofs than originally anticipated. Said Building Commissioner Allan Fraser: "Considering today's market, the contract represents an excellent price for the work to be done and exceeded our expectations."

Bids from four other companies ranged from a Bay State offer of $842,000 upwards to $1,135,000 from Morello Brothers.

Mayor Theodore Mann said work is expected to begin within three weeks and should be completed on the six schools before winter. Work on all the roofs should be completed in seven to nine months.

The monies will be appropriated from nearly $4 million the city has in its coffer from combined surplus and additional local aid dollars.

On July 13, aldermen unanimously approved an allocation of $610,000 for the repair of the Meadowbrook (now the Charles Brown School), Bowen, Pierce, Newton North and City Hall roofs. More than $200,000 will be spent on Meadowbrook while repairs on Newton North will cost $137,000, Zervas, $74,000, and Peirce, $70,000.

The repairs, which will provide for easier and better maintenance as well as additional insulation against heat loss, are based on an infra-red demography study conducted by the city.

According to Assistant Building Commissioner James Cameron, the procedure will include stripping all the old roofs down to their metal or concrete decks, adding additional insulation, placing a PVC membrane atop the insulation and finally a ballast (crushed rock) over the membrane to hold it in place.

Mann initially planned to request a $2 million bond authorization from aldermen for the roof repairs but instead targeted available cash for the improvements rather than risk the AAA bond rating enjoyed by the city.

Other buildings undergoing repairs are the Angier School, City Hall, Crafts Street Garage, Fire Station 7, Water Department Garage, Elliot Street Garage, Police Garage and Recreation Department Headquarters.

Nuclear petitions at supermarkets

NEWTON — Petitions to the Massachusetts Con .gressional delegation, District 4, urging a halt to the nuclear weapons race will be available for signatures in public areas in Newton in the next few weeks, primarily at supermarkets on Saturday, Sept. 26.

The Newton Interfaith Peace Coalition, composed mainly of members of Newton religious congregations, will be sponsoring the signature drive.

The petition, already endorsed by the Newton Board of Aldermen, urges a mutual nuclear weapons freeze upon the governments of the United States and the Soviet Union.

The two nations are urged to adopt a mutual freeze on the testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons and of missiles and new aircraft designed primarily to deliver nuclear weapons.

The Nuclear Weapons Freeze is part of a nationwide movement already active in 17 states. Eleven congressional representatives have endorsed it and two senators, Mark Hatfield (R., Oregon) and Patrick Leahy (D., Vermont) have publicly supported it. The Freeze Campaign is being coordinated locally by the Council for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze in Cambridge.

Candidates report finances

NEWTON — Bruce Marquis spent nearly $15,000, more than either Mayor Theodore Mann or Alderman Mark White, in the mayoral campaign.

Marquis, a virtual political unknown six months ago, spent close to $5,000 more than Mann and about $8,000 more than White.

Marquis raised $15,792 from campaign contributions, according to a campaign finance report for the period from March 13 to Sept. 4.

Mann, mayor since 1972, raised more than either Marquis or White, but had only spent $10,225 as of Sept. 4, according to a campaign report. Mann had $16,106 left in the "war chest" for the final contest as of Sept. 4.

White, an alderman for the last eight years, has spent $4,589 in his bid for the city's highest elected office. White raised less than both Mann and Marquis with a sum of $6,118 as of Sept. 4.

Probable cause found in case of school fire

By Donna Lombardi
Staff Writer

Officer James McGuire

WEST NEWTON—Probable cause was found Monday in the case of three people charged with setting the Aug. 15 fire at Meadowbrook Junior High School in Newton Centre.

Judge Monte Basbas found probable cause following a lengthy hearing at Newton District Court. Eric Krasnigor, of 90 Clearwater Road, Newton; Michael Masterson, of 209 Park Street, West Roxbury and Leslie Alberts, of 96 Levbert Road, Newton, are charged with breaking and entering in the night and arson.

District Attorney Neal Haganstab presented nine witnesses at the hearing. Police officers testified that both Alberts and Masterson gave statements whereby the two admitted to breaking into the school and setting the fires.

According to a statement given to police officer Joseph Fitzsimmons by Masterson, Fitzsimmons testified Masterson said he broke into the school through a window. In the statement, Fitzsimmons testified, Masterson also said that he had cut his hand when he broke the glass and went searching through the school for a nurses' station. He also admitted to setting the fires.

Michael Masterson

Leslie Alberts

Eric Krasnigor

A statement by Alberts also admits to breaking into the school and helping to set the fire. Alberts also states that she went to the school gymnasium to pull the fire alarm, but added that the alarm would not sound. According to the statement, when Albert's realized the severity of the fire, she called police.

No statement was made by Krasnigor.

Evidence that the fire was deliberately set was presented by John Amberagne, a detective from the State Police Fire Marshall's department, who said that when he arrived on the scene, "I found numerous, separate, unrelated fires."

Amberagne also testified that he found two separate fires in the science laboratory of the school. One had been set under a wood table and another was set in a corner about 20 feet from the table.

In addition, Ambergagne found a metal wastepaper basket, half full of paper, that was smoldering.

"In the library," said Amberagne, as he was cross-examined by Krasnigor's attorney Richard Steinburg,"the damage was so extensive that the roof collapsed."

In the science office, file drawers from metal cabinets had been removed and the contents were set on fire, according to the detective.

Photographs of the file drawers were presented and accepted by the court as evidence. Amberagne further stated that several more fires resulted from the fires in the file drawers.

Alberts, when she was questioned by police officers shortly after she made the phone call about the fire, said she was not involved in the crime, according to police officer James Maguire, who was patroling the Newton Centre area when he received a call from dispatchers at the police station.

After arriving on the scene and examining the building, he was ordered by a supervisor, John Norcross, to go to Alberts' home to question her. Alberts told Maguire that she had been with three males earlier that night who had broken into the school with the intent to commit arson. She also told Maguire that she was not involved.

However, Norcross and Maguire returned to Alberts' home after Norcross realized there was a discrepancy as to whether there was a third male with them that night. Statements by Alberts and Masterson revealed that there was not a fourth participant in the crime.

Norcross identified Krasnigor and Masterson during the hearing as the two men who were returned to the scene of the fire, after the two were spotted by Norcross at the intersection of Route 9 and Parker Street in Newton Centre.

According to testimony by both Narcross and police officer Joseph Doherty, wooden matches were found on both Krasnigor and Masterson. Masterson said in his statement that the matches were used to start the fire.

Police officer David Dues testified that he found evidence in his partrol car, which took both Masterson and Krasnigor back to the police station and into custody.

Dues testified that he regularly checks his vehicle before and after shifts. He stated that night he found a glass bottle under the seat where Krasnigor had been seated.

Attorney Steinburg argued that, "There is no evidence in this case that Eric (Krasnigor) is a probable cause." He further stated that during the hearing, none of the witnesses gave testimony on the cuts that Masterson should have had on his hand as a result of breaking the window. "A box of matches on him is the only evidence."

Steinburg also noted that Krasnigor and Masterson were walking, not running, he stressed,when they were seen at the Parker Street and Route 9 intersection. "There is no evidence that Michael (Masterson) was sweaty or smelled of smoke."

He also disputed evidence given by officer Maguire, who testified that when he was examining the school, he noticed a broken window. Steinburg said Maguire did not know if the window was broken from the inside or outside, and that Maguire had not examined the premises the day before the crime was commited.

Alberts' attorney, Richard Homans said that there was probable cause for Alberts in the charge of breaking and entering, "by her own statement, but not arson."

Ester Stevens, representing Masterson, said that she did not think it was proven during the proceedinqs that Masterson did understand his rights. "There has to be something more than someone saying,'Yes, he understood his rights"

Basbas found probable cause for all three suspects. The case will continue at Superior Court, pending an indictment by the Grand Jury.

Hyde stays open

By Sarah Clayton
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Hyde School's future has been decided, at least for now. The School Committee this week unanimously voted against closing the school or redistricting Hyde students and instead voted to rebuild space lost in the April fire.

With declining enrollment, Hyde's principal, Arthur Laughland and school officials have determined that approximately 5100 square feet for three classrooms, a learning center, and art and music rooms need to be rebuilt either through an addition or repair of the burned building for the school to properly function in both the long and short term.

The vote also appeared to be a decision not to close any other elementary schools in the near future.

Emphasizing a position taken by several committee members, Susan Silbey said, "If we vote to rebuild, to my mind it is with the understanding that this is the end of school consolidation."

"To me it would be absolutely irresponsible to rebuild and then in two years close another school," Silbey stressed.

Although there was no vote on this position, Chairman Ann Berwick reiterated that the vote to rebuild was "pretty much a vote not to close other elementary schools in the future."

"There is clearly not a crying, an obvious elementary school to close now, although I voted to close a second elementary school last year," Berwick added.

Referring to the disruption a Hyde closing would cause (10 of Newton's 17 elementary schools would need to be redistricted in addition to Hyde) Berwick said, "Forget about the political implications, I just don't think we could weather that storm."

Nancy Mann said she was "struggling greatly" with the question of rebuilding or reducing the Hyde district, an option which "appealed to me at first."

"But, in fact, there isn't that much room in the system anymore," Mann commented. "The problem that haunts me and will continue to haunt me is that the Hyde building is not a good building from the point of accessibility to the handicapped."

Revaluation on schedule

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The first "major" phase of the city's accelerated revaluation project — data collection for residential, commercial and industrial properties — has been completed.

The revaluation, which some aldermen contend is impossible to complete before the Jan. 1 deadline, is on schedule, according to City Assessor Robert Palmer. The data collection phase, which required seven data collectors to inspect and review homes and parcels, is the most time consuming aspect of the revaluation process.

The revaluation will bring all real estate to 100 percent "full and fair" cash value as required by law. Finnegan Associates of Acton is conducting the revaluation. Finnegan was the only company willing to take on the project because of its awesome magnitude.

Some aldermen feel the revaluation process will be inaccurate and result in a public uproar. Palmer disagreed.

"I think the work that has been completed both by the city and Finnegan is good," he said. "We've had a good rate of collection."

If the revaluation is not certified by the Department of Revenue, the city would face an additional $11 million cut from this year's budget. The cut could force the layoff of an additional 500 municipal workers.

City assessors contend that Newton's property tax base is $2.94 billion. The Revenue Department, however, has ordered the city to base this year's tax levy on a total property value of $2.23 billion.

The city battled the state agency all the way to the state Supreme Judicial Court to dispute the tax base, but lost. As a result, the city is short $11 million in funds already budgeted unless the accelerated revaluation is completed on time.

Alderman approved $25,000 for the law suits and nearly $1 million to hire Finnegan to complete the accelerated revaluation.

Under a bill approved by state lawmakers, the city has been given the green light to send out estimated tax bills. As a result, the first tax bill residents receive will be no more than last year's.

After revaluation is completed, however, many residents will see a sharp increase in their second tax bill which will not come out until after the November election.

In fact, city assessors contend that the value on the average home will jump from 700 to 800 percent. The skyrocket in property values will, however, be accompanied by a drop in the tax rate. According to Chief Assessor Harold Brady the tax rate is expected to drop from $171 (per $1,000 of assessed value) to between $20 - $30.

The Revenue Department will review the city's revaluation progress beginning on Dec. 1. Finnegan employees are presently keypuching the data collected. The data, which includes all sales in the last three years, will be used to set the values of residential and commercial properties.

Duke and Nixon

That's been a pretty good controversy at Duke University.

The argument has been whether or not to locate former President Richard Nixon's presidential archives and library on land donated by the university and to some extent supervised by university personnel. The proposal was made by Duke University President Terry Sanford, former North Carolina governor. The university trustee's executive board has approved further negotiations on the project by a 9-2 vote.

It would appear that making those presidential papers and other materials readily available to scholars at Duke would be desired. The fact that President Nixon resigned rather than face the possibility of impeachment and that to many people he disgraced the high office he held should have no bearing upon the need to safeguard the presidential papers. In fact the villains of history, from Cardinal Richielieu through Hitler, often make the best subjects for study and their papers are invaluable.

For instance, Duke University could do well to compare that alleged stack of tapes Nixon displayed on television in one of his last desperate attempts to justify everything to the American people with the tapes actually given to the public by the White House.

The problem that apparently concerned Duke faculty, however, is that the Nixon Library would become some sort of monument — as has happened in other cases.

Currently there are seven presidential libraries containing many of the presidential papers and other memorabilia of former Presidents Herbert Hoover, Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Gerald Ford. Except for the last named chief executive, the libraries also carry highlights of the careers of the men they are in effect glamorizing. Conflicts and controversies in which the presidents did not come out as heroes are seldom mentioned and certainly not emphasized. The value to scholarly research is also in doubt. Last year almost two million people visited the presidential libraries; less than 2,000 were interested in research. The misinterpretation of history for the casual observers is all too obvious.

The Duke proposal is that the $25 million building, to be run by the National Archives and Records Service and owned by the U.S. government, will be paid for almost entirely by private donations. Like those which just remodeled the White House, they will be from friendly contributors. They are not likely to demand library sections spelling out in detail how it happened to be that Nixon became the first U. S. president in history to resign.

Duke University has tried to ignore its ties with Nixon in the past, bearing out a complaint by Pulitzer Prize winning Novelist William Styron that "to establish any connection...with the works of a man who brought disgrace to his high office would be a smear on the image of the institution." It denied Nixon an honorary degree in 1954 and Nixon snubbed the honor in 1961. Nixon is not likely to offer title to his documents now owned (by act of Congress in 1974) by the U.S. government even if the needed other act of Congress gives them back to him.

Perspectives

My Turn

It's been real

By Cynthia Black

A newspaper office is an exciting place to work. It can be tense and testy when the deadiine is approaching; it can be wildly funny at other times because reporters, in general, are great wits.

It is part of the power structure of the community. Its people have the responsibility of telling the readers what's going on in their city, and that is a responsibility that must always be taken seriously.

I love newspapers and the challenges they present, and when I leave the Newton Graphic Friday for the last time, I will take with me many fond memories.

Here are just a few:

It was November 1973, and we had just moved into our new news office on Walnut Street in the Highlands.

It was election night, or, more properly, the day after the election. The sun was rising and Lenny Bateman, Liz McKinnon and I were finishing up our election edition.

We realized the night had taken its toll when we noticed it was requiring three of us to sharpen a pencil—two to hold the pencil sharpener and one in charge of the pencil itself.

When it takes three people to sharpen a pencil, you know it's time to go home.

Then there were the "leqendary" Newton Graphic Christmas parties.

The idea started simply enough. Liz McKinnon and I decided one day that it would be nice to have a Christmas open house at our office for some of the department heads, aldermen, attorneys, etc., we bother all year long for information.

After we'd discussed it a little more, we decided that while that would be nice, we would really like to invite only the people we REALLY wanted to have at a party.

To achieve this end, we made a list of the people we wanted, called them all, invited them to the party, and said we were only inviting a few people. We asked them not to make the information general knowledge.

The parties, I think there were six or seven, quite unwittingly became a status symbol. If you were "in," you were privately invited to the Graphic Christmas party. If you were "out," you were not.

While I can't remember exactly who was at each party, I will now reveal the bulk of the never before disclosed Christmas party guest list: Sid Small, Alan Barkin, Howard Levine, Eliot Cohen, Jason Rosenberg, Mike Antonellis, Charlie Thomas, Gene Larson, Joe McDonnell, e-oan Saklad, Russ Halloran, Jane Pitt, Ethel Sheehan, Carol Ann Shea, Cindy Creem, Tom Concannon, Ed English, Grace Lennon, Aaron Fink, Alan Licarie, Al Mandell, and assorted reporters.

Through the years, we have received some of the most startling press releases and photographs ever devised. Some proved to be too precious to throw away, so we saved them in what we called the "funny file."

Here are excerpts from the "funny file."

--A memo from Chief Quinn, dated October 1977, detailing what to do if an airliner crashes in Newton.

—"Drinking a glass of water is an event or occurrence that is taken as a reflexive, relaxing exercise. As the water is calm, in the glass, so the person..." This was the opening paragraph of a press release dated Sept. 1, 1979, from Alvin Joseph Jacobson, candidate for president of the United States.

—"Christmas spirit at Docktor Pet Centers throughout the country reached a crescendo last week as Docktor Pet's corporate offices played 'Santa Paws.'" Cutesy pie.

—"My mind is a battlefield where reason and judgment are waging a war against the questions concerning failure and misdirection..." excerpt from a speech given by Mayor Mann on Memorial Day, 1975.

—"There is a difference between men and women, Elaine Holmstrom, told the members and guests at...." I assume they were rocked by the revelation.

Newton is an interesting place to cover because of its diversity, its level of intelligence and education and its willingness to pioneer. The only drawback I've ever seen to Newton is its lack of a sense of "community."

I sometimes think it's a shame people can't generate the feelings they hold for Newton Highlands, or Waban, or West Newton, or Nonantum, for the city as a whole.

A city that can get an 80-90 percent turnout for a presidential election can barely muster half its registered voters for a city election. Preliminary turnout is so dismal I hate to even think about it.

I wonder if some of the people we have in office now would be there if more people took the time to study the actions of our "city fathers."

All in all, it has been a pleasure. I'll be seeing you.

Cynthia Black, editor of the Newton Graphic since October 1972, will become executive editor of Suburban World Newspapers, Needham, on Oct. 1.

Year round budget battle

By Linda Werfelman

BOSTON (UPI) — The battle of the budget is becoming a year-round war for Massachusetts lawmakers.

Under ideal circumstances, the budget process should take less than six months. The process calls for the governor to file his annual spending recommendations late in January and for the Legislature to review and alter those recommendations and return its finished product to the governor's desk before July 1.

This year, the circumstances were considerably less than ideal.

Gov. Edward J. King initiated the process on time last January, when he made his budget address to the Massachusetts Legislature.

The Massachusetts House Ways and Means Committee promptly began its deliberations.

But then a change in the chairmanship of the committee and the fiscal pressures of Proposition 2 ½, the voter-mandated order to limit property taxes, moved in to complicate the situation.

Revisions of the budget, extended debate and conflicts between the House and Senate Ways and Means Committees left the state without a budget from June 30, when the past fiscal year ended, until July 21, three weeks after the start of the new fiscal year.

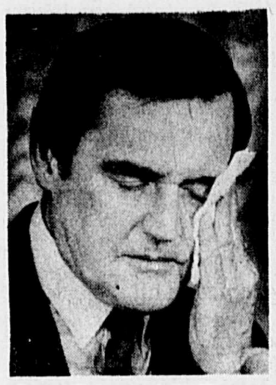

Normally, once the budget has been signed into law by the governor, all controversy surrounding the spending plan fades into the past.

But not this year.

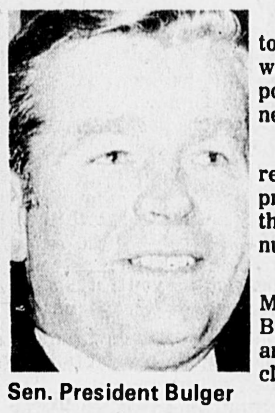

The controversy continues in both the Legislature and the courts. It centers on King's budget vetoes and his somewhat unusual action in altering the Legislature's wording of six budget items — an action that made substantial changes in policy set by the lawmakers.

The Legislature has yet to act on nearly 70 individual budget items vetoed by King.

The House had questioned whether King even had the authority to order those vetoes — all of which involved so-called "outside sections" of the budget. Those outside sections are generally used to set policy, not to appropriate state funds for specific government projects.

Gov. Edward J. King

Sen. President Bulger

The bill, filed by House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, D-Lynn, and Senate President William Bulger, D-Boston, would bar both the governor and legislators from using the budget as a vehicle for major changes in state policy.

The state Supreme Court resolved that question, ruling that the governor's powers allow him to veto both outside sections and individual line items included in the budget.

Now, the court is being asked to decide whether the governor may insert new language into the body of the budget — an action King took in an effort to preserve funds for several state operations while rescinding other policy changes directed by the Legislature.

The House asked the high court only last week to help resolve that issue, and several more weeks are likely to pass before the justices respond and the lawmakers take whatever action is necessary in light of that response.

At least a portion of the problem is likely to be remedied next year if the Legislature adopts a proposal designed to cut back substantially on the number of outside sections attached to annual budget proposals.

The bill, filed by House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, D-Lynn, and Senate President William Bulger, D-Boston, would bar both the governor and legislators from using the budget as a vehicle for major changes in state policy.

This year, one of the changes prescribed through outside sections — but vetoed by King — called for a revamping of the state's budgetary process.

Last year, another outside section — this one signed into law by the governor — reorganized the state's public higher education system by abolishing the Cabinet-level Office of Education and replacing it with the new Board of Regents.

Normally, such changes would be subject to separate legislative hearings and extensive debate. But because they were included in the budget, they zipped through the Legislature without the scrutiny they otherwise would have received.

Under the McGee-Bulger proposal, no outside section could be attached to the budget unless it had a definite link to a specific budgetary appropriation.

Used properly, the proposed legislation would turn the budget back into what it is intended to be: an annual spending plan for the state — not a catch-all to force basic changes in government policy.

And the year-round public budget war might shrink back into a simple six-month battle.

High cost of Pentagon dining

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If President Reagan is willing to supplant his symbolic gestures toward reducing wasteful military spending with a serious budget-cutting campaign, he'll discover hundreds of opportunities to save money.

Even the Republican chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico, has rejected as inadequate the president's virtually meaningless initial proposal to trim $13 billion from the Defense Department budget during the next three fiscal years.

Reagan's own Office of Management and Budget, the Congressional Budget Office, the General Accounting Office, scores of members of Congress and a host of other authorities can identify for the president areas where countless billions of dollars' worth of additional reductions can be made.

From the airport at Keflavik, Iceland, to the Pentagon's executive dining room, the Defense Department's far-flung operations are replete with examples of ill-conceived, ineffective, overpriced and unjustified programs.

One of this city's most outspoken proponents of a strong military establishment, Benjamin F. Schemmer, editor of the Armed Forces Journal, recounts the sorry story of the Icelandic airport in a recent issue of that magazine.

Shortly after Jimmy Carter was sworn in as president, he rejected a Defense Department request to build, at a cost of $6.5 million, a new civilian air terminal at Keflavik so Icelandic Airlines' passengers would no longer have to use the U.S. Navy's small and somewhat dingy terminal building.

The average price paid by diners is $2.87 per lunch — but the dining room is so heavily overstaffed and inefficiently operated that each meal must be subsidized with $12.06 in public funds, according to Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

If Iceland wanted a new terminal for its airline, Carter reasoned, that country was certainly free to construct such a facility. If not, what was good enough for the U.S. Navy ought to be good enough for the airline's passengers.

Less than a year later, Defense Secretary Harold Brown renewed the request — but the cost had almost doubled, to $11.5 million. Again, Carter turned down the proposal.

A third request, carrying a price tag of $23 million, also was rejected by the White House. But in the final months of his presidency, Carter succumbed to Pentagon harassment and approved the scheme — at a price of almost $40 million.

The cost of operating the Pentagon's dining room represents a very trivial portion of the Defense Department's budget — but it typifies the military establishment's penchant for extravagant spending.

The average price paid by diners is $2.87 per lunch — but the dining room is so heavily overstaffed and inefficiently operated that each meal must be subsidized with $12.06 in public funds, according to Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

In other words, the average lunch costs $14.93 but those who consume the food pay less than 20 percent while the taxpayers pick up the tab for more than 80 percent.

In the fiscal year about to begin, the Defense Department is expected to purchase more than $100 billion worth of goods and services from individuals and companies outside the government under a cumbersome, outdated procurement program that discourages competition and encourages waste.

The department's various components have compiled more than 30,000 pages of procurement regulations that, according to the Congressional Budget Office, "add 20 percent to 100 percent to the cost of goods for little or no gain in effectiveness."

Major weapons systems continue to produce massive cost overruns. The General Accounting Office notes, for example, that the Army's M-1 tank was estimated to cost slightly more than $500,000 in 1972 but now is priced at $2.8 million.

Although those serving on active duty in the armed forces remain generally underpaid, military pension programs have become a national scandal. The 1.2 million men and women who retired after serving at least 20 years on active duty will receive about $13 billion worth of pensions this year.

Reagan could perform a major public service by applying to the military budget the same standards of ruthless economizing he displayed when dealing with domestic social programs — but he apparently is unwilling to do so.

Tax bill questions

To the Editor:

Judging from the letters and phone calls we receive, there is a great deal of confusion about the fall property tax bills—a confusion we expect to increase dramatically when those bills are actually mailed.

This is an explanation of how Proposition Proposition 2 ½ and revaluation are meant to work together. I realize it is a complicated explanation, but there is no more concise analysis available, or, I suspect, possible.

Last year, property taxes in Massachusetts averaged 3.5 percent of full and fair cash value. Proposition 2 ½ cuts this to 2.5 percent.

Proposition 2 ½ was drafted in response to a 1974 court decision that all property must be taxed at its full cash value, ideally estimated at the amount it would sell for on the market.

Communities were given time to revalue, but eventually, every home and business was to be taxed at a percentage of what it was actually worth, that percentage being the real local tax rate.

Again, the average tax rate after revaluation would have been 3.5 percent; the average in the rest of country is 1.9 percent.

With Proposition 2 ½, we intended that the Massachusetts rate drop to 2.5 percent by cuts of 15 percent per year.

After a community is at 2.5 percent, it can raise taxes no more that 2.5 percent per year, regardless of the increase in property values, unless the local voters choose to raise the limit.

Most communities are already at 2.5 percent, based upon recent revaluation, so the property taxpayers in those communities could see an increase in their taxes of 2.5 percent over last year. It is important to compare this increase with what could be expected if Prop. 2 ½ had not passed (overall, property taxes in the state increased 11 percent in thep this past year).

In a community which has just revalued, all individuals' taxes could go up more that than 2.5 percent this first year, as the levy limit adjusts to the new, more accurate property values.

Some homeowners who have been underassessed will receive increases, and others who have been overassessed could get a reduction, but the total community tax levy cannot increase more than 2.5 percent over last year's levy.

An example: Mike Taxpayer, whose home is worth $50,000 but has been assessed at 25 percent of its value, or $12,500, and his neighbor Joe Voter, in a newer but smaller home assessed at 75 percent of its value of $50,000, or $37,500. The tax rate in their city is 50 per $1000 of assessed value.

Mike Taxpayer has been paying $625 per year in taxes and Joe Voter has paid $1875. This was not fair.

With revaluation, the tax rate drops to $25 per $1000 of assessed valuation, and because their houses are of equal value, both will pay taxes of $1250.

Proposition 2 ½ is a neat little package that makes sense; but we had to set it down in the midst of revaluation, which has been chaotic since 1974. This makes Prop. 2 ½ look as if it is causing the problem, when it is, in fact, the solution. Barbara Anderson,

Message from Florida

To the Editor:

Newton is very fortunate to have Lois Pines as a resident. For many years, Mrs. Pines has worked very hard for all of Massachusetts and in particular for her fellow citizens in Newton.

Lois is an attorney and her specialty before she entered politics was taxation. She decided to use her abilities where she could help the greatest number of people by becoming an elected public official. cPD First, she became an alderman in Newton and then went on to the become a state representative. She initiated many outstanding bills in the legislature.

I moved to Florida last year and know from first-hand experience about the type of government that exists here— apathetic for one thing. I had cause to write my congressman and senator and I have not received answers months later.

No one cares, for instance, about the dangers of overcrowding here on school buses. My son got off the bus and walked home a few hours distance because he refused to ride a bus that had four kids to a seat instead of two and aisles jammed with kids.

When he arrived home, he said, "We should have Lois Pines here to get a law passed on school bus safety." When I called the superintendent's office about this, they said that probably a bus didn't show up and so the children got on the bus that was available.

One big thing I've noticed here is that there is really no community spirit such as you have in Newton, and the elected officials take the same attitude.

Lois Pines was involved in most of the consumer issues while she was a state representative, which benefitted our children and our senior citizens. Because of her determination she accomplished a lot. Whatever her task, she performed it with great zeal, right down to her last position as head of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mrs. Pines has decided to run for the position of lieutenant governor, and you who live in Newton are lucky, because with Lois in office, the interests of Newton will always be uppermost.

Lois Pines can use your support in this bid. I hope you will all do what you can to help her in this undertaking because if she wins, you all win.

Brenda Ascher,
Hollywood Hills, Fla.

Mental Health
Balance

By Marvin Snider

Many people face the problem of getting too involved in certain activities, and paying too little attention to others.

This may get expressed in excessive eating, drinking, drug taking or working, while too little attention is paid to health, family or setting life goals. As a result, there is an increase in physical and emotional problems stemming from an imbalance in lifestyle.

The concept of balance implies that we are clear about various things that need to be balanced. Among the major dimensions to be considered are diet, exercise, work, play, family, concern for self, concern for others, past, present, future, thinking, feeling, and being. Space does not permit a detailed discussion of each of these items, but I will illustrate the principle and leave the reader to fill in the specifics as they apply.

The challenge that we face is to find the combination of each of the above dimensions that fits our reality and that of the people with whom we live. In order to do this, we make choices and decisions, and ultimately, set priorities. This happens whether we do it by choice or by accident. Complicating this process is the lack of guidelines in these areas as to how much is enough; there is no "right" answer. The solution is unique to each individual and to be determined by him, with or without adequate information.

The challenge in diet is to become educated to your nutritional needs. It is important to be aware of excesses that can be troublesome, such as too much sugar and fat. It is important to not use food as an outlet for dealing with problems in other areas, such as eating because of frustration.

Regular exercise appropriate to your physical health is hardly a new idea. What is commonly lacking is the discipline needed to make this an integral part of daily routine.

Work and play go together; both are necessary. Play is not a frivolous activity. It is important in helping to discharge tension and to recharge one's emotional batteries. A person who develops a good balance between these two activities is likely to be more proficient in his work and to enjoy it more.

There is an irony in the parents who work hard to provide properly for their family, and who, in so doing, lose sight of giving the emotional energy and time that a family needs to be healthy. The adage, "Man cannot live by bread alone," is important to remember.

Balance is also important between the concern an individual gives to his own needs and the concern he has for others, be it spouse, family or community. Either extreme will be a problem.

Time orientation can be a critical factor. Focusing on the past is useful only if it helps in relating to the present and the future.

One definition of maturity is the ability to define each of these dimensions for oneself and to integrate them with the kind of balance that leads to emotional and physical health.

Pomroy condo unit to be dedicated

By Donna Lombardi
Staff Writer

NEWTON CORNER—In Newton Corner, a historic Grecian style home, once an exclusive mens' club, and most recently, a day care center, is being transformed into a 5-unit condominium complex.

With the help of the Newton Corner Neighborhood Association; architect Charles Nelson and developer Mel Lipson have turned the 3-story Pomroy House, on the corner of Eldridge and Church Streets, into a complex with modern living facilities, while maintaining the structures' historic value and elegant beauty more/

According to Lipson, the units will be ready for occupancy between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15. However major portions of the renovations have been completed, including one unit which is being offered to the City of Newton as elderly housing. That unit is scheduled to be dedicated this Saturday by Mayor Theodore Mann.

Built in 1898 by Freelan and Francis Stanley, inventors of the Stanley Steamer, the house was used by the Hunnewell Club, a mens' club linited to men living in Newton Corner. Members used the house to read, playcards, billiards or bowl and other recreation events. Freelan Stanley sold the property to the Hunnewell Club in 1929, when membership was high, and Stanley himself was an active member.

However when the Depression set in, the club lost its original popularity and membership declined. Much of the spacious structure ceased to be used. As World War II began, older members had died, and younger members were not as interested in the club. When cost of maintaining the building became too high, members were forced to put the building up for sale.

In 1954, the Eliot Church burned down, and the congregation took over the Pomroy House mortgage. Until 1959, it was a tenporary home for the church, as well as a bowling alley for remaining members of the Hunnewell Club.

The Eliot Church moved out in 1959, and the club again resumed the mortage. But when membership continued to decline, the club was again forced to sell the property.

It was sold to the Pomroy Foundation in 1967, which merged with the Newton Community Service Centers in 1968. Since then, the Ponroy House has been used as a day care center and community recreational facility.

This year, the City of Newton made the Davis School in West Newton available to the service center, so again the structure went on the market.

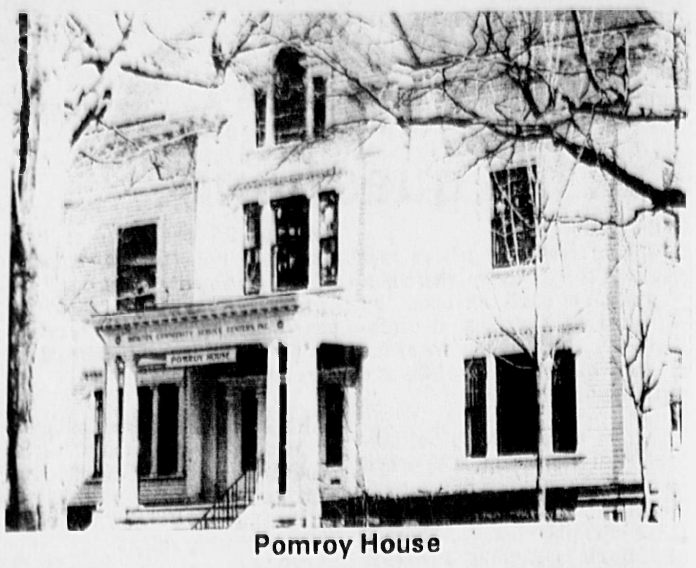

According to Lipson, a Weston resident who was raised in Newton, the house was a tax burden, so the NCSC stipulated in the sale that the Pomroy House be sold as taxable property. Thus the house could not be sold to a non-profit organization.

In addition, area residents were concerned that the house retain its historic value and beauty; as well as keeping the surrounding landscape open.

In April, the NCSC accepted Lipson's and Nelson's bid, whose plans included restoration of the outside portion, as well as the addition of five units and one caretaker unit located in the basement. Some 97 residents, calling themselves "Fr8iends of Pomroy," favored the plans and signed petitions to be presented to the Board of Aldermen, who approved the plan.

One unit, located on the third floor, features two master bedrooms, each with private baths and showers, walk-in closets, two skylighted sleeping lofts, a third bath, livingroom, diningroom with a fireplace and a roof deck, approximately 4600 square feet of living space.

Although the project is not yet completed, the public will be able to view the renovations that are now underway. Nelson, a Newton Corner resident who designed the complex, will provide tours.

Trash Talk

Paper recycling

By Betsy Lewenberg

Is it true that paper recycling is mandatory in Newton?

Yes. According to an ordinance enacted by the Board of Aldermen on December 15, 1980, "Clean and uncontaminated newspaper shall be kept separate from and not mixed or included with refuse to be collected by the Department of Public Works..." You may save your paper for use in wood stoves, art projects, etc.; however, you may not throw it away with other refuse.

Why is paper recycling mandatory?

Primarily to save money. It costs almost $20 per ton to dispose Newton's trash. By recycling, we avoid paying this disposal cost. We also receive $15 for each ton of paper we recycle — a net savings of $35. And since mandatory recycling programs have greater rates of participation than voluntary programs (Newton's tonnage has increased almost 70 percent since the ordinance was enacted), higher tonnages mean greater profit. There are environmental benefits to recycling as well. Paper recycling saves energy, conserves natural resources and saves dump space.

What kinds of paper can I recycle?

Only newspaper, phone books and the grocery bags that are used to hold the newspaper. It must be "clean and uncontaminated," i.e., has not been exposed to foreign substance or substances, or conditions rendering it unusable for recycling. Other kinds of paper, including magazines and junk mail, are not recycled in Newton because they have a low market value. Combining them with newspaper would lower the value of the paper and would hurt the economics of recyclinq.

How do I recycle my paper?

— Separate clean and uncontaminated newspapers from other refuse (newspapers that have been used to wrap garbage, train animals or have been soiled by other uses should not be recycled).

— Tie the newspapers in bundles no larger than 2 feet high or place in double brown grocery bags.

— Place newspapers at your curb 3 to 4 feet to either side of other refuse on your regular trash collection day.

Condo regulations pass

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Regulations for the new law protecting renters from short- term notice condominium conversion were approved by the Board of Aldermen this week.

The 24-member legislative body approved the regulations, which outline procedures a developer must follow before converting rental units, by a 17 to 3 vote.

The ordinance regulating condominium conversion, which went into effect Aug. 28, gives tenants a two-year notice before they can be evicted. The law is currently being challenged in court, but is in effect.

In addition, tenants granted "hardship status" by a special committee are given an additional three years before they can be evicted because of a conversion. Under the law, developers must apply for a separate $50 permit from the board for each rental unit they seek to convert.

A Hardship Committee, made up of the Director of the Department of Human Services, Commissioner of Health, and Director of Veterans Services or designees will make recommendations to the board on a tenant's application for hardship status. The regulations require that the board make determinations on hardship status based on age, income, and wealth.

The new law requires tenants be provided relocation assistance which could include lump sum payments, payment of moving expenses, and choice of comparable housing.

The law also provides that tenants be given the first opportunity to purchase their rental unit. Under the regulations, if a tenant declines to purchase the unit, he or she must specify in writing to the city clerk within 90-days a choice between:

•the protection of the existing lease

•a two-year grace period from the date of the granting of the permit or five years where hardship status has been granted.

•the benefits of the tenant relocation plan.

Middlesex Superior Court Judge Elizabeth Dolan recently denied a motion for a preliminary injunction to prevent the city from enacting the law. A hearing testing the legality of the law has yet to be scheduled.

The firm converting 422 units at Chestnut Hill Gardens (the twin-towers apartment complex on 250 Hammond Pond Parkway) into condominiums is battling the law in court.

A small group of the Chestnut Hill Gardens tenants attended the City Hall meeting in a show of support for the regulations.

torney for the state Department of Elder Affairs, said she will continue to stress her experience in federal and state government in the campaign.

Jerry Wise, Richmond's campaign manager and former candidate for alderman, said: "I would say that one reason the numbers were so successful for us is because we took the time to talk to voters and communicate in the best way we know how."

Katz said he was "not surprised" by Richmond's showing. "She got everybody out," he noted. "I didn't." Katz, who spent $300 in the preliminary race, claimed the difference was the money spent by Richmond.

Katz said that he will attempt to raise more money and campaign extensively to overcome the Richmond margin in the next six weeks. "I'll be damned if I am going to let this election be bought," he snapped. "People have got to realize they are electing an alderman, not a person in a beauty contest."

Katz added: "It is far from over...far from over."

Richmond, former legislative assistant to Congressman Michael Harrington, had the support of Rep. Susan Schur (D-Newton), Rep. David Cohen (D-Newton) and former Newton state Rep. Lois Pines.

Richmond defeated Katz in all four precincts, including Katz's home precinct (4) by 137 votes. In her home precinct (3), Richmond lashed Katz by 123 votes.

Rubin-Barnhart, who raised no funds for the campaign, said she expected to finish third. She said she has not made a decision on whether to endorse either of her opponents. She noted, however, that she will probably remain "neutral" and not endorse.

ticularly in the North side of the city (which Mann also won), and the additional 10-12,000 voters that will turn-out in November that Marquis will gear his effort towards.

However, Mann's base of support on the south side of the city by witness of yesterday's tabulations is solid. The mayor registered 4,714 votes here compared to 2,136 for Marquis and White. On the north side of Newton, Mann again won big with 2,609 votes. Yet Marquis with 1,781 votes treaded above water here and White, with just 1,219 supporters, fell out of the picture.

There are some political observers that say Marquis - in several precincts - rode in on the coattails of School Committee candidate Leonard Gentile. Gentile, who was a clear winner in his race for the vacancy left by Howard Spergel, has received the enthusiastic endorsement of State Rep. Joseph DeNucci.

Although DeNucci did not publically support any of the three mayoral candidates, the representative, who has a strong backing in the Italian community, had a well-publicized flare-up with White in the spring. A closer look at the four precincts which Gentile won big (Ward 1, precincts 1 and 4 and Ward 3, precincts 1 and 4) indicates that Marquis took three of his four precinct victories here.

Marquis, who was raised on the north side of the city and whose wife is Italian, said his emphasis on "more traditional values appeals to the people of these communities," when asked why he fared well in Wards 1 and 3.

"Now people know my name, I have to inform them what I stand for," continued Marquis, noting that his campaign will be geared toward presenting himself as a viable candidate rather than attacking the incumbent. He added that the cornerstones of his platform will be limited taxation, the maintenance of village life and a quality school system and disclosure of personal finances.

"Taxes have to be limited," stressed Marquis. "This administration has acted as though Proposition 2½ never came into being - specifically with the implementation of user fees and a sewer use charge."

White said he would not publically support either Mann or Marquis at this time although both candidates acknowledged they would graciously accept an endorsement. Marquis, who did not have the public support of any incumbent aldermen, said several board members would endorse him over the next few days.

"Of course it's a victory," said Marquis downplaying his opponent's resounding triumph. "No one had ever heard of me before March 16."

Marquis, however, took care of the problem by blitzing the city with more than $15,000 worth of promotional work. Comparatively, Mann spent $10,225 as of Sept. 4 and White just $4,589.

Mann, by virtue of his 10-year hold on office and his high recognition factor did not need to match Marquis' spending. White, who thought he enjoyed wider visibility than shown in the election because of his eight-year tenure on the board, targeted votes over the phone rather than go the costly route that Marquis chose.

White, appearing at a rather somber campaign party at Capuccino's Restaurant, called "apathy the big winner" of the contest noting that his "votes stayed home."

"It was a combination of things," said White, 32, of his poor showing, particularly on the south side of the city. "People said Teddy is unbeatable and that I would make it through the primary."

What neither White, nor anyone else could explain was the terrible showing he had in Ward 7 which he represents as an alderman-at-large.

Mann outpolled the four-term alderman 1,037 to 298 with Marquis picking up 186 votes.

"I got caught in the cross-fire," added White. "The people in the south side like me but feel the mayor is doing his job while the people on the north side went for the more conservative DeNucci type candidate."

Ward 4 incumbents face Sofman, Golden

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Incumbent Richard McGrath easily topped the ballot followed by Incumbent Donald Budge, and challengers Lane Sofman and Mark Golden in the preliminary contest Tuesday for the two ward 4 alderman at large seats. The four candidates will face off in November.

Robert McMillen, a local businessman, was eliminated from the final after finishing a slim 71 votes behind Golden and 192 votes behind Sofman.

McGrath, who did little campaigning and spent literaly no money, received 5,109 votes or an impressive 30 percent of the vote.

Budge, who could have trouble in the final, received 3,278 votes or 19 percent of the vote - only 306 votes ahead of Sofman.

In his first run for public office, Sofman, a dentist, received 2,972 votes or 17 percent. Golden, a member of the Newton Auxillary Fire Department, captured 2,851 votes or 16 percent.

McGrath, who was concerned about the outcome because of his lack of campaigning, said he was "happily surprised" by his showing. "I cut across all kinds of lines to get that vote," noted the eight year veteran alderman.

A former state representative, McGrath added: "With the margin of victory here, I should be safe." McGrath swept every ward, but ward 8 where he finished third behind Golden and Sofman.

McMillen, who spent $1,500 and campaigned extensively, finished second in wards 1,2,3, and 4 and third in 5. The 24-year old Newton North graduate lost the contest in wards 7 and 8 where he was walloped by both Sofman and Golden. Early in the evening, McMillen seemed to have an indication of the loss. A disappointed McMillen, who left City Hall quickly after receiving the results, could not be reached for comment.

Sofman, who finished particularly strong in ward 8, scored big on the south side (wards 5-8) of the city. "It was about what I expected," said the Temple University graduate.

Sofman said he will court McMillen's support and "tighten up his organization" in an attempt to defeat Budge in the final. "I think I have a good chance," he speculated.

Golden, who campaigned for "more and better police protection," said he will continue to run "a campaign based on concrete ideas and positive ideas." Furthermore, the the Nichols College graduate said he will attempt to put together a stronger organization in an attempt to win one of the two seats in the final.

Budge, who appeared at City Hall for the early results, said he would campaign for the final. "I did no campaigning at all," he said. Budge finished strong in ward 5 where he finished second.

Nuke group wants weapons freeze

NEEDHAM — There is no compromise when it comes to nuclear weapons.

The only solution to the proliferation problem is a joint treaty between the United States and Soviet Union to ban the development, testing and deployment of nuclear arms. That's the message George Sommarippa, the co-founder of the Cambridge chapter of the Council for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze, brought to more than 20 anti-nuclear weapons advocates at the Stephen Palmer Center last week.

"Nuclear weapons are a gigantic tool of massacre," Sommarippa told the group. "Every time we've made a move forward in the nuclear weapons world, it has made a shock on the Soviet side. And when they have countered with a move, it has made a shock on our side (but) we have continued racing ahead. It's a race of disastar."

Police report

NEWTON — A 26-year-old Newton man was arrested early Monday on charges of marijuana possession in West Newton Square and arraigned before Judge Monte Basbas in Newton District Court.

A policeman on duty in West Newton Square around 1:30 a.m. Monday arrested Steven M. Frutkin of Worth Circle after he saw Frutkin and another person inside a parked car and investigated.

The officer said the suspect was holding a plastic bag which appeared to be marijuana.

A Langley Road man needed treatment at Newton-Wellesley Hospital early Friday after he got into a tussle with a man who reportedly had broken into the resident's car, police said.

The resident was in his house when he saw a man trying to break into his car. He went outside and confronted the suspect, who by that point had broken into the car.

When the resident tried to pull the suspect from his car, the suspect kicked him in the chest and bit him in the are. The Langley Road man also suffered a cut foot during the altercation.

The suspect broke away and ran to a red pick-up truck, jumped in the passenger's side and the truck sped off, according to police. A search of the area at the time of the incident, shortly before midnight, proved futile.

The suspect was described as white, about 18 years old and 5 feet 7 with black hair and wearing jeans, a dark jacket and sneakers.

An Ontario resident reported at 11 a.m. Friday that more than $3800 in belongings had been stolen from his car parked at Susse Chalet, 160 Boylston St., police said. The stolen items included a cassette tape deck valued at $1700 and a $1200 stereo receiver.

Seven sewing machines valued at $420 were reported stolen Saturday from the Charles E. Brown Junior High School, police said. Police added that there was no sign of forced entry to the school at 125 Meadowbrook Rd.

A Beechcroft Rd. resident reported at 3:45 p.m. Friday that a diamond ring, a $350 watch and possibly other items had been stolen from his home during a break-in. Police said the thief pried open a screen door and smashed an inner door to enter the house.

Three Oriental rugs – one of them room-sized – were reported stolen from a Kensington Ave. home at 11:52 p.m. Friday, police said. The rugs were described as a 12-by-14-foot yellow and gold Oriental rug with white fringe and two maroon and white Oriental rugs measuring 4-by-5 and 3-by-4-feet.

Police received a report around 9:30 a.m. Monday of a car theft from a parking area on Farwell Street near the Waltham line. Stolen was a white 1970 Ford Maverick.

Other housebreaks reported last week were on Woodchester Drive on Thursday and on Beacon Street in Waban on Wednesday. A Commonwealth Ave. home in West Newton was reportedly broken into Sunday.

Hospice proposed for Claflin

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — A last-minute proposal by a local hospice group to use the former Claflin Elementary School has sent the Joint Planning Advisory Group back to the drawing board.

The group recommended to the aldermanic Administration and Planning Committee last week four proposals for the possible reuse of the 30-year-old school.

However, because the hospice plan was just unveiled shortly before the meeting, Advisory Group Chairman Laura Salwen asked the committee to hold the item so that the group could meet with representatives of the Hospice of the Good Shepherd. The committee in turn voted unanimously to hold the item until the next meeting of Administration and Planning.

The 10-member advisory group, jointly appointed by the mayor and the Board of Aldermen, is responsible, under city ordinance, for identifying and recommending alternatives for the future use of the surplus property.

"We're going to review our basic priorities and see if there is a match and at the same time invite any new hunches," said Salwen of the hospice proposal. "We're going to have to see if it incorporates two of the alternatives."

The recommendations in order of preference were a conversion to no more than 25 market value residential condominums with 10 percent of the dwelling units reserved for low income occupancy; a private school; subsidized elderly housing; and a nursing home.

The Planning and Development recommended that the school be adapted for the condominium proposal.

Advisory Group member Tom Reynolds was not as optimistic as Salwen on the intrusion of the hospice proposal on the list of priorities. "Too much time and effort (the group met four times) has been put in it," said Reynolds of the group's report. "I don't foresee a change in the priorities."

As explained by Executive Director Linda Kilburn, the three-year-old Hospice of Good Shepherd is a comprehensive non-profit home care program serving residents of Newton and Wellesley. It has recently formed a coalition with six of the west suburban hospice home care programs encompasing a 26-town area.

Kilburn said the plan would incorporate the creation of a 15-bed hospice inpatient unit; the housing of a 12-person hospice home care team; the housing of a hospice community education and training program; and 10-15 cooperative elderly housing units.

Ward Alderman Elaine Gentile, who liked the idea, said, "If we can work out all the funding and details, I feel it is something that can go through the board very quickly." Yet she cautioned: "If we get involved in this, we have to be assured the funding is going to be there."

The Claflin School, located on Lowell Avenue, was closed at the end of the 1980-81 school year due to declining enrollment. Situated on five acres, the school contains a total building area of 31,424 sqaure feet including 14 classrooms, gymnasium, and 300 seat auditorium.

The facility is currently used by the Community Schools Department for an expansive pre-school, children, teen, adult and senior adult program. The Recreation Department also uses the building but only on rainy days during the summer months.

In its report, the advisory group determined that the future use of the Claflin school must be compatible with neighborhood characteristics. These included low intensity requirements for both vehicular and pedestrian traffic as well as no on-street parking.

The group also assumed that each of the four alternatives recommended would not require an alteration in the exterior physical plant of the building. They also placed restrictions on the future use which included that the Lowell Avenue frontage be preserved as open space and be maintained with increased lanscaping; the parking area be improved; and that Cragie Terrace not be used as a second means of egress.

Ann Keohan

Newton resident buys Photoworks

NEWTON — A Newton graphics designer with a strong personal and professional interest in photography has become the owner of a Boston custom photo laboratory and gallery.

Ann Keohan recently purchased Photoworks from its founder Dan Coven of Newtonville. Photoworks specializes in custom black and white film processing and black and white and Cibachrome print-making. It also operates a fine art photo gallery. Both the lab and gallery are located in Boston's Back Bay.

Keohan says she bought the seven-year-old business because she wanted to go into business for herself and because she felt it offered significant professional growth opportunities.

"The timing was right," recalls Keohan. "I had been working out of my Newton Centre home for several years as a freelance graphics designer and I simply decided it was time to expand the services I was offering my clients."

Apart from her professional interest in photography (Keohan studied film-making and photography at the graduate level at Florida State University), the mother of two feels strongly that photography as an art form has not received the public acceptance it should.

As a result, Photoworks' gallery will receive special attention from her.

Photoworks will host group shows or the work of individuals on a monthly basis. The first show is scheduled for Sept. 22, and features the work for Starr Ockenga, director of the Creative Photography Center at M.I.T.

Concert band seeks musicians of all ages

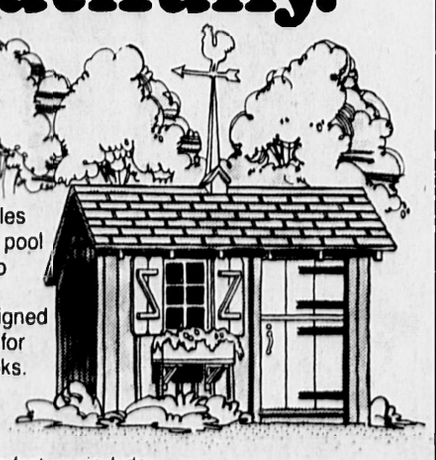

AUBURNDALE — The Newton Community Concert Band begins its third season on Tuesday evening, Oct. 6 beginning at 7:30 p.m. and invites woodwind, brass and percussion players of all ages and abilities to participate. The group emphasizes the traditional concert band repertoire.

Originally a dream of Newton resident Dr. Alan Posner who believed many Newton and area people looked for opportunities for ensemble playing, the Arts in the Parks program of the Newton Recreation Department applied for, and received a seed grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities to help launch the band. The group has become such a success that in the summer months though not everyone is in town, a switch to jazz and the big band sound is made.

Rehearsals are held Tuesday evenings, beginning Oct. 6 in the music room at Newton South High School. The music fee is $10.

To register send a check made payable to Arts in the Parks. Send it to Arts in the Parks, Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent Street, Newton, Mass. 02166.

Retirees Program

Judy Dore, Director of Senior Adult activities for the Newton Recreation Department, says that the new Retirees Athletic Program is designed to bring people together to participate in athletic programs. Those who would like to play golf at the Newton Commonwealth Golf Coure at discount rates Monday through Friday should call RAP between 9 and 10 a.m. or 4 and 5 p.m.

North Indoor Schedule

The Newton Recreation Department offers activities at Newton North High School after school. Indoor programs will continue through May 1982.

This season's activities include: indoor tennis, jogging, coed volleyball, swimming, swimming lessons, weightlifting, exercise classes and special programs.

This year, for the first time, and due to Proposition 2 ½, there is a user fee. The fee schedule is family, $35; adult, $)5 and children 6 to 18, $10. Residents who do not wish to purchase the season pass must pay on a daily basis each time they participate in the programs. These fees are adults, $2; children, $1, and non-residents, $4.50.

Recreation I.D. Cards

Photo identification cards must be obtained by residents who use the North High programs sponsored by the Recreation Department. These may be obtained at North High on the following schedule: Tuesday, Sept. 29; Thursday, Oct. 1; Wednesday, Oct. 7; Wednesday, Oct. 14; Tuesday, Oct. 20; Thursday, Oct. 22 and Wednesday, Oct. 28. Applicants should bring proof of residency.

There will be other dates for obtaining these cards during the season.

Swim Registration

Session 1 of swim lessons offered at the North pool by the Newton Recreation Department have been scheduled at the Charles E. Brown Junior High School (formerly the Meadowbrook Junior High). Registration will be held on Thursday, Oct. 15, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 17, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Hamilton Center

The Newton Recreation Department operates and staffs an open gym and drop-in program Monday through Friday at the Hamilton Community Center on Grove St., Newton Lower Falls.

The schedule is as follows:

Monday: Junior and senior high school age young people, 2 to 5 p.m.

Tuesday: Elementary school age, 1 to 4 p.m. and all ages, 7 to 9 p.m.

Wednesday: Junior and senior high, 2 to 5 p.m. and all ages, 7 to 9 p.m.

Thursday: Elementary school age, 1 to 5 p.m.

Friday: All ages, 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Swimming Out

Recreation officials remind all concerned that the swimming season has concluded for this year and that no one is allowed to swim in Crystal Lake in Newton Highlands.

It is not only against the law, but unsupervised swimming is dangerous and could be fatal.

In the interests of safety trespassers will be dealt with firmly.

Dance Exercise Class

Instruction will focus on the total body fitness with emphasis on the correct body alignment, proper muscle tone, stretch and awareness and general physical strength and endurance. Exercises are based on the principles of ballet and modern dance techniques. Registration for Session 1, which will run from Oct. 15 to Dec. 17, will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 7 from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Newton Centre Hut. Residents may sign up for the Tuesday class which will run from 10:30 a.m. to noon or the Thursday class, which will run from 9:30 to 11 a.m., at a cost of $25 per class day. If openings allow, residents may take both classes for Session 1 at a cost of $50 for the 10-week session.

Are microwaves a health hazard?

(UPI) The New York State Worker's Compensation Board ruled this year that Samuel Yannon died seven years ago from a disease caused by chronic exposure to microwave transmissions from atop the Empire State Building.

It is the first documented case of a man killed by microwave radiation, a form of non-ionizing radiation.

Everyone is exposed to some degree of non-ionizing radiation, much of it generated naturally by the sun. But some people are exposed to greater levels than others — especially with the increase of manmade sources since the invention of radio and the recent proliferation of microwave communications.

People who work on radar and communications transmitters, live near transmitters, operate citizens band radios, use microwave ovens and operate radio frequency heat sealers — devices used in plywood and plastics manufacturing — all are exposed to higher degrees of non-ionizing radiation than the general population.

Recent research indicates non-ionizing radiation levels lower than 10 milliwatts per square centimeter — the voluntary exposure limit suggested by the American National Standards Institute — have biological effects.

But the unanswered question is: Are these effects health hazards?

The levels of non-ionizing radiation to which Samuel Yannon was exposed are unknown, but his employer, New York Telephone, said Yannon was never exposed to more than 10 milliwatts per square centimeter.

The disease that killed Yannon, who for 15 years worked on the Empire State Building transmitters, was believed to be Alzheimer's disease, a rapidly advancing form of senility.

"He was deteriorated," said Yannon's widow, Antoinette, from her Staten Island home. "He was cooked from the inside out. Even his brain was cooked."

First Unitarian Society reopens religious school

WEST NEWTON — The First Unitarian Society in Newton announces that its Religious Education Program for pre-schoolers through 11th graders will resume on Sunday, Sept. 27 at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 1326 Washington St. in West Newton Square.

The program meets from 10:30 to 11:45, at the same time that the Sunday morning church service meets under the leadership of the Rev. Dr. Gerald R. Krick.

A nursery is provided for infants through 3 year olds from 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. every Sunday throughout the year.

The fall curriculum includes: "Growing Times" for 3,4, 5 year olds; "Celebrating Our Roots and Branches" for first and second graders; "The Adventures of God's Folk" for third and fourth graders; "Making Decisions" for fifth and sixth graders; "How Can I Know What to Believe?" for seventh and eighth graders; and "Life Choices" for ninth, tenth and eleventh graders.

More information is available at the church at 527-3203, or in the evening call Noreen Kimball, 244-3258 or Barbara Buell, 964-7125, co-chairmen of the Religious Education Committee. The church will open at 9:30 a.m. on Sept. 27 for those interested in registering.

High holiday services set

WEST NEWTON — The Congregation for Humanistic Judaism will hold High Holiday services at the Unitarian Church in West Newton.

Services will be held Tuesday, Sept. 29, at 6:30 p.m. for families and 8 p.m. for adults. Admission is $10 and $15 respectively.

Rabbi Jeffrey Silberman will preside. Call 969-9039 for further information.

Sisterhood will present award to Judge Fine

CHESTNUT Hill HILL—Temple Emeth Sisterhood will present its 9th annual "Woman of the Year" award to Judge Edith W. Fine, associate justice of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, on Wednesday, Oct. 23 at 9:30 a.m. in the vestry of Temple Emeth, South and Grove Streets, Chestnut Hill.

The award is given to a prominent Jewish woman who has achieved distinction in her professional field in American life. Judge Fine, a Brookline resident, is a graduate of Harvard Law School and the mother of three children. She will respond briefly to the presentation.

Rita Gluzband, president of the Sisterhood, and Elaine Ross, chairman of the day, invite members and friends to attend the meeting and the petite brunch following the program.

On Oct. 4, John Snell of Energyworks will discuss "Energy Options for Old Houses" and respond to individual problems of workshop participants. George Stephen, architect and author ("How to Remodel Your Old House without Destroying its Character") will present a slide show on Nov. 1, illustrating "Preservation Triunphs and Tragedies."

"When is a Porch a Portico?" is a lecture series to be given on the first four Monday evenings in November by Kathlyn Hatch, architectural historian. Ms. Hatch will name the various architectural elements of old houses and illustrate them with slides.

Bus tours of Newton's historic houses will be run by the Friends on Oct. 16 at 1 p.m. and Oct. 17 at 10 a.m., as well as an All Saints' Day Tour of the Newton Burying Ground at Cotton Street.

The traditional fall Open House will he opening of a new ezhibit, "The k View from the Parlor." This Nov. 15 event will show an Edwardian interior, with china, glass, furnishings, costumed mannequins and other period furnishings which have never before been on public display. "House Keeping" also includes an old-fashioned tree-trimming party for children on Dec. 6, St. Nicholas Day. They will learn to make traditional tree decorations and enjoy Christmas refreshments. The January lecture will be "The Lives of a House," given by Maximilian Ferro, architect and preservationist, who will use the proposed renovation of the Jackson Homestead as a case study of preservation problems and possibilities.

All events except the open house require advance registration. Fees for the different events vary. Call 552-7238 for program brochures, and sign up early.

Sumiko fashion show Nov. 4 will benefit Kidney Foundation

BOSTON — A fashion show by the international fashion designer Sumiko Dudek-Sherwood, will be presented Nov. 4 by the Women's Committee of the National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts at the annual membership luncheon. The event will be held at the Sidney Hill Country Club, Chestnut Hill, beginning at 10:30 a.m. and also featuring boutiques and a raffle.

Sumiko, who came to the United States 20 years ago from her native Taiwan, now lives in Sudbury and heads Sumiko's of Framingham.

The National Kidney Foundation is the major health agency seeking the prevention, treatment and cure of kidney disease. Its multi-faceted programs bring help to millions of people suffering from kidney and urinary tract diseases, through research, patient and community services, professional education and public information.

Members and non-members are invited to the benefit, and an $18 per person tax deductible contribution is requested. For information and reservations call the Kidney Foundation at 426-3366.

Temple Emanuel registers youth, adults, for programs

NEWTON CENTRE—Dr. Eric Ungar, chairman of the Youth and Adult Activities Committee of Temple Emanuel of Newton, announces that registration is now in progress for all programs. More than 1500 people participated last year in the program, which is one of the most extensive in the country.

Boys and girls of the 3rd to 5th grades are offered a varied program of recreation and culture. The Temple also sponsors a Cub Pack and a Boy Scout Troop. There will be a Kadima Club for 6th graders, separate Junior USY groups for 7th and 8th graders and separate Senior USY groups for 9th and 1oth-12th grades. The Athletic program for the Sr. USY will begin Monday evening, Oct. 25.

There are three separate single groups: Club 385 for those who are 22-33 years of age, a group for those of 33-45 years and another for those 38 and older.

A Senior Citizen group meets each Tuesday. The Golden Age program includes community service projects, a hobby workshop, discusssion, musical programs, a lounge program and trips including the annual Catskill Mt. trip.

The Youth House is open Monday-Thursday afternoons for informal recreation, including , ping pong bumper pool and table games.

Chester A. Rubin, ACSW, MSW, is director of Youth and Adult Activities under the supervision of Rabbi Samuel Chiel and the Youth and Adult Activities Committee.

N-W Hospital plans new visiting policy

NEWTON LOWER FALLS — Brothers, sisters and grandparents of babies born at Newton-Wellesley Hospital will soon be allowed to visit the baby in the mother's room every morning. This privilege has until now been granted only to the newborn's father.

Beginning Oct. 5, grandparents and siblings may visit from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. daily. "The new visiting policy upholds the philosophy of family-centered nursing," explains Lee Bailey, R.N., NWH Maternal and Child Health Coordinator."The family unit is not restricted to the baby and the parents — siblings and grandparents count, too."

"We hope that the revised policy will break down some of the emotional barriers between the new baby and the existing family unit, as well as breaking down the physical barriers."

General hours will continue to be from / visiting/ 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. General maternity visiting hours from 3 to 4 p.m. will be discontinued.

Children and adults with colds or other infectious disorders are asked not to visit the new baby.

A record number of babies was born at Newton-Wellesley Hospital last month, continuing a year-long trend that has brought the number of births at the hospital to 1,425 for the fiscal year that began in October. Hospital officials expect the number of births may increase to as many as 2,000 when the renovated and expanded maternity service is completed next year. more /

NWH will then be able to offer more comfort, convenience and more maternity options to obstetrical patients. Private labor rooms, a high-risk labor room, an infant viewing area, a sibling playroom, a special care nursery and four birthing rooms to accommodate home-like deliveries within the safe confines of the hospital, are all included in the plans.

Jessica Savitch will address NE Villages benefit luncheon

PEMBROKE—Jessica Savitch, award winning Washington correspondent for NBC Television, will be the guest speaker at the Eleventh Anniversary Luncheon of the New England Villages' Women's Committee. The benefit will be held on Thursday, Oct. 22, at noon in the Independence Ballroom of the Sheraton Boston Hotel.

Jessica Savitch

Janet Langhart, Boston media personality, will share the dais as honorary chairman of the luncheon with Jean Safon of Needham and Beverly Lesnick of Brookline, co-chairmen.

New England Villages, Inc., of Pembroke is a non-profit, nonsectarian residential and working community for retarded adults. More than 1,000 women of the Greater Boston area are expected at the benefit luncheon.

For tickets call 244-4668.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Brightman

Randi Kosowsky is bride of Stuart M. Brightman

Randi Sue Kosowsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kosowsky of Sharon, became the bride of Stuart Michael Brightman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Brightman of Newton Centre, on Aug.16. The wedding was performed at Temple Shalom of Newton.

Beth Kosowsky was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Laudon of Lakeville, Geralyn Orlovitz of Greenwich, Conn., Ivey Lowenfeld of North Woodmere, N.Y., and Leslie Posnock of Linden, N.J.

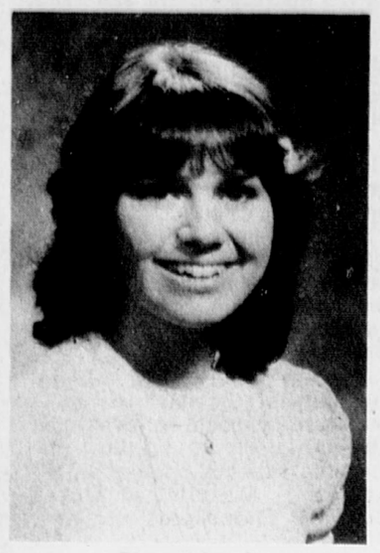

James Brightman served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Lex Kosowsky, brother of the bride, Mark Bernfeld of Westwood, Saul Brightman of Wayland and Robinson Eells of Natick.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Alex Kosowsky of Monsey, N.Y. The groom is the grandson of Mrs. Isadore Fleischer and Mrs. Herman Brightman, both of Brookline.

After a trip to St. Thomas, the couple will live in Philadelphia, where the groom is studying for a master's degree in business administration at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Brightman, a 1981 graduate of the University of Pennsylvania School of Allied Medical Professions, will begin an affiliation in physical therapy at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.

Engagements

Levitt-Schwartz

Sheryl Levitt

Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Levitt of Newton Centre announce the engagement of their daughter, Sheryl Ann, to Joseph H. Schwartz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schwartz of West Covina, Cal.

Miss Levitt received a B.A. degree in early childhood education from Simmons College and a Bachelor of Jewish Education degree from Hebrew College in Brookline. She has been studying at Longy School of Music in Cambridge for several years. She is currently a teacher at the Solomon Schecter Day School of Newton and the Temple Emeth Hebrew School of South Brookline. A professional singer in the Boston area, she is a past member and soloist for the Zamir Chorale of Boston.

Her fiance is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Stanford University and is now a fourth year student at Harvard Medical School.

A November wedding is planned.

Rosenthal-Fay

Mrs. Gershon Rosenthal of Newton Centre announces the engagement of her daughter, Amy Rachel, to David Jeffrey Fay, son of Mr. and Mrs. David O. Fay of Greenfield.

Miss Rosenthal is a graduate of the School of Hotel, Restaurant, Travel and Tourism Administration at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and is an area bank representative in Boston for the Air Transport Association of Washington, D.C.

Mr. Fay is a graduate of the School of Business Administration at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and is employed by General Telephone and Electronics in Mountainview, Cal.

Danca-Thompson

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Danca of Newton announce the engagement of their daughter, Janice Marie of Brookline, to Charles Edward Thompson, also of Brookline.

Mr. Thompson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Aldrich of Lynnfield. He is a graduate of Bowdoin College and has recently earned his MSW at Boston University.

Miss Danca, a teacher of special education, earned her degree at Boston State.

An Oct. 4 wedding is planned.

First aid class begins Oct. 7

NEWTON—A class in "First Aid and Safety, Birth through Twelve Years" will be offered on Wednesday, Oct. 7, at Usen Auditorium of Newton-Wellesley Hospital from 1 to 3 p.m.

Second Church plans bicentennial festivities

WEST NEWTON — The year was 1781. The date was Oct. 21. The 12 patriots who gathered to formally covenant and establish Second Church in Newton did not know that, just two days before, Lord Cornwallis had surrendered to General Washington at Yorktown.

These men had begun the gathering and built the meetinghouse as subject of a king. They began the Second Church of Newton as free Americans. Their pledge said, in part: "Every person making a public confession of religion and dedication to God...may come...without making any other profession of his faith and belief."

Now the year is 1981. With the coming of October, members of Second Church in Newton will gather for a month-long celebration: honoring the past, rejoicing in the present, looking to the future.

Sunday, Oct. 4 at 8:45 a.m., a procession, with music and banners flying, will wind from Second Church to the River Street Cemetery. Heralding the beginning of the 200th year celebration and the beginnings of the church, members and friends will pause at the gravesite of Rev. William Greenough, the first minister of Second Church, for a brief memorial service.

Back at the Church for the regular 10 a.m. worship service, led by Rev. Ned Martin, the anniversary quilt will be dedicated and the congregation will sing, for the first time, the new anniversary hymn. Both projects are original year-long undertakings by the members of the congregation.

Weather permitting, coffee will be served on the lawn to the accompaniment of a brass ensemble.

Sunday, Oct. 11, the 10 a.m. worship service will focus on the rich heritage 200 years has bestowed upon Second Church.

Saturday evening, Oct. 17, a whole-church family, old- and new-comers alike dinner with music and laughter and fun and games will fill the Fellowship Hall beginning at 7:15.

Sunday, Oct. 18, the official bicentennial Sunday, a spectacular all-church, all everyone, birthday party will follow the morning worship celebration led by Rev. Martin, Minister Emeritus Ross Canon and Rev. Dick Bauer.

At 3 p.m., the Second Church Choir will present a special bicentennial musical celebration under the direction of David Carrier.

Wednesday, Oct. 21, the birthday arrives and Second Church joins with neighbors and friends and the community-at-large in an 8 p.m. service of praise.

All those interested are invited to participate in any or all of the bicentennial celebrations. Newcomers to the Newton area are especially invited to partake of this special occasion. Child care is available at all morning worship services.

For further information, contact the church office at 244-2690. Second Church in Newton is a member of the United Church of Christ and is located at 60 Highland St. in West Newton, just over the bridge from Rte. 16.

Open season indoors

Completing plans for the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's two-day fall show, "Yankee Gardening: The New Indoor Season," are (from left): Diane Dalton of Brookline, Betty Ferris of Wellesley and Anne Barker of Newton Highlands. The exhibit is Sept. 25-26 at Horticultural Hall.

Mann honors CETA youth

NEWTON — On behalf of Newton Area CETA, Mayor Theodore D. Mann presented awards to eight young people in a ceremony held Sept. 2 at the Commonwealth Center in Wellesley.

The awards were designed to recognize the achievements of participants in the CETA Summer Youth Employment Program, which provided work experience in non-profit settings for 600 young people within the Newton Area CETA consortium.

Mayor Mann named the workers at the West Newton Charles River Infant Toddler Center as the Outstanding Crew of the Summer. Under the supervision of Alan B. Dewey, Robert J. Connerney, James Smith, Phillip Bemis, Michael Barry, Tom Davis, Alfred Pennington, and William Higgins worked together to renovate an old house and make it usable as a day care center. The crew painted, scraped wallpaper, and built children's furniture and toys.

The second award went to Ken Rubin, as Outstanding Participant, for his work in the supply room of Newton Wellesley Hospital. The choice was based upon work performance, attitude, growth, and attendance.

Engraved plaques were presented to Ken Rubin and to the West Newton crew. In addition, over 100 certificates of merit were awarded to participants whose work deserved special recognition.

Inspection extension sought

BOSTON — Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci (D. Newton-Waltham) has co-sponsored legislation to extend the 1981 fall automobile inspection period for two weeks.

DeNucci said the bill, if passed, will help automobile owners and inspection station operators through the current confusion that requires a court decision to determine whether the 1981 fall inspection fee is $2 or $4.

"Many people wanted to have their car inspected, but are waiting for the courts to decide what the fee is. This delay will put pressure on stations to handle more cars, and possibly create long lines of waiting motorists," DeNucci said.

"It seems logical," DeNucci added, "for the state to extend the inspection period from Oct. 15 to Oct. 31. This will alleviate any chaos which may result from the turmoil."

Abbruzzesse scores 3 TDs

Big-play offense carries Tiger rally

By Bob Duca
Staff Writer

It was hardly a vintage victory, considering the fact that it came against a club which has mustered only one small win in the last two years. But thanks to three very big plays, Newton North, expected to be one of the powers this year in the Suburban League, was able to avoid a disastrous opening day upset Saturday as the Tigers slipped past surprisingly strong Framingham North, 23-14, at Bowditch Field, Framingham.

Coach Norm Walker spoke optimistically moments after the Tiger escape, but in truth he had to be wondering why Framingham was able to dominate his club, especially the right side of the defensive line, for nearly three quarters.

"Something was definitely wrong there," admitted Walker. "I'll have to look at the films before I can figure why they were able to run so often in the same spot with so much success. But hey, this was a strong football team we played. You shouldn't be deceived by their previous record. They scored 10 touchdowns in two scrimmages against some tough teams. Anyone who does that must have something."

Newton North can thank one Mike Abbruzzesse, who's name is a sportswriter's nightmare. After Saturday's effort, the opposition may begin to feel the same way. Abbruzzesse rushed for 90 yards in 16 carries including a 95-yard kickoff return starting the second half and a 59-yard burst off-tackle which sealed the victory in the fourth.

Al Fortune, a workhorse throughout, also picked up 63 crucial yards in 15 carries as Newton rallied from a 14-7 halftime deficit.

Framingham North, working under new coach Owen Kilcoyne, dominated the contest early. The Spartans are much-improved behind Kilcoyne this year and they proved it immediately, taking the opening kickoff and driving from their 20 to the Newton 40. The Tigers stopped them their, but then, gambling on fourth and one, fumbled the ball away on a messed-up snap to give Framingham the ball at the 39.

This time the Spartans took advantage of the opportunity. Marc Carey (117 yards in 22 carries) gained two yards and quarterback Bob Wilson hit Chris Kilbridge for three to set up a third and five. Wilson then made the big play, finding Billy Brooks cutting across the middle for a 33-yard reception which placed the ball at the one. Carey went over three plays later and Framingham was ahead, 7-0.

The Tigers finally responded late in the second quarter, putting together an eight-play, 63-yard drive in the final two and a half minutes.

Walker had been shuffling quarterbacks all game long, alternating between Rich Marchioni, Fred Dalicandro and Tim Brandon, but it was Brandon who finally settled into the position and led the drive. "We were just looking for the right combination," said Norm later. "It certainly wasn't by design."

For now, Brandon seems to have won the job. He provided the big play in the march with a 15-yard strike to Billy Drew. Another 15 yards was tacked onto the play for a late hit so Newton had the ball at the five. Abbruzzesse finished it off with a scamper around left end.

But the Tigers scored a little too quickly. They left 1:13 on the clock and that was all Framingham needed to take a 14-7 edge into halftime. The Spartans took the ball over at the 35, and after a roughing penalty against Newton, a 13-yard pass to Jim Sullivan, and a nine-yarder to Brooks, they found themselves with the ball at the Newton 25 and just two seconds left on the clock.

Inexplicably, the Tigers didn't lay back and protect the end zone and Wilson hit Brooks past the defense in the right corner for a score.

Such a play might have completely deflated most teams, but Newton responded in spectacular fashion as Abbruzzesse grabbed the opening kickoff of the second half, darted straight through the middle and cut to the outside at the 50 for a 95-yard TD. The extra-point was missed so the Tigers still trailed, 14-13.

Newton was beginning to take control now. The defense held Framingham on four downs on the next possession, and then the offense quickly marched into Spartan territory as Brandon found Drew for 27 yards. But Fortune fumbled at the Framingham 43, and the Spartans rallied.

Carey and Ron Burton ripped off consecutive first downs and Dave Luz picked up 23 more with a nice reception to bring the ball to the 21. Five yards by Carey, four from Burton and a face-mask penalty gave Framingham a first and goal at the six with a chance to put the game away.

"If we had scored then I don't think they could have come back," said Kilcoyne. "That was a big opportunity to let slip by."

Framingham got to the four, but Newton rose up to stop Carey twice in a row with no gain and then pressured Wilson so much on a fourth-down option play that he threw the ball wildly away, allowing Newton's Leo Butera to fall on it at the 17.

Two possessions later, Newton mounted the winning drive. On first down at the 31, Brandon drilled a strike to Tim Mulvey cutting right to left and Mulvey brought the ball all the way to the 10 before being tackled from behind by Brooks. The march stalled, but Peter Munsat gave the Tigers the lead for the first time all day, 16-14, with a 25-yard field goal.

Just over one minute later, Abbruzzesse capped scoring with a brilliant 59-yard run which started off right tackle and saw him weave his way all the way across the field and down the left sideline.

Newton North stickmen learn under new coach

The Newton North field hockey team learned some lessons last year and first-year Coach Celeste Meyers believes those lessons will add up to victories this season.

Meyers is the new coach, but a familiar face to the Tigers' players. She was assistant coach last season and is a graduate of Boston University where she played club field hockey. Meyers also played field hockey at her high school in White Plains, New York.

The Tigers are a good bet to improve on last year's 1-12 record and Meyers will be the first to tell you so.

"They look very good," said Meyers. "They learned a lot last season and some of the players went to camp. They have returned with a better knowledge of the game and more confidence in their ability. I wouldn't be surprised if we upset a few teams this year."

The Tigers, after two rain outs, will try to open the season today against the defending State Champion Weston and Meyers will have a tough test for her team.

"We'll be ready to play," said Meyers. "Weston has a solid team as usual and beating them will require a top quality effort."

The Tigers have an experienced sqaud with only one player in the lineup that hasn't played on the varsity. Goaltender Patty Hunt played on the jayvee last season and is the number netminder. She went to camp and has played well in the inter-squad's scrimmages.

Returning at the centerforward slot for the Tigers is senior Patricia Thomas. Other forwards that are back include Carrie Smith, Carol Martin, Linda Davis and Sheila O'Brien. These are all experienced players that can be alternated.

Meyers is hoping to get some scoring punch from Martin and Thomas. "Those two have performed well in practice," said Meyers. "They went to camp over the summer and have returned better stickhandlers and with more confidence in their shots. They have benefited from last season's learning experience."

The defense is solid with veterans filling the positions. Anies Vitug and Maryann Fay will see action at the fullback spot. Ann Larson and Joan Lynn are also strong defensive players returning to the lineup.

Katie Kidge and Elizabeth Mullen will backup the defensive corp. Tracy Thomas is a sophomore that could help the Tigers later in the season after she gains some experience.

How to earn federally tax free interest. Our new 12 month All Saver Certificate (available October 1) pays the highest allowable interest and lets you earn—for one time only—up to $2000 tax free interest ($1000 if you file individually). As the chart shows, the higher your income the more attractive the All Saver. In fact, at certain income levels, it would be tough to beat our yields of 20% or more. (By the way, if you're a 6 month certificate holder, you may be able to transfer that money into an All Saver without an interest penalty.)

How to save for retirement and save on taxes. Starting January 1,1982, you can take advantage of a tax break formerly available only to the self-employed and those not involved in a formal pension plan. So even if you now participate in a pension plan, you can still contribute up to $2000 into your own Individual Retirement Account (IRA), and really see a difference on your 1040. Because both your contributions and the interest earned are federally tax exempt until you begin withdrawals.

How to avoid confusion on the new tax breaks for savers. Not surprisingly, a flurry of often unbelievable promotions by institutions trying to get your money has accompanied the passage of these new laws. Frankly, we're interested in your money, too. But we're also interested in making sure you understand all the ramifications of these new laws before you invest a dime.

So if you're looking for a tax break, look past the fancy offers. Talk to the bank that just wants to give you the facts.

Together we'll get you started on an economic recovery act of your very own.

Newton South keeps poise, routs Littleton

It may be a young squad, but Art Kojoyian's Newton South football team displayed a great deal of poise in disposing of Littleton High by a 21-6 margin in its season opener Saturday at Newton South Field.

"I'm surprised," explained Kojoyian. It's a very, very green team. The kids showed a lot of heart and played a great game."

The Lions turned the game around in the third quarter when they stopped the Tigers on a fourth down and three yard situation at midfield. With a fine mist and a chilling breeze blowing through the open Newton South football complex, the Lions stopped Matt Pindora (27 carries for 166 yards) to take the ball away and to go on and march 50 yards for the score and a 12-6 lead at the time.

When asked about the standout play, coach Kojoyian agreed that it was a very important turning point and cited the inside defensive work of nose guard Ronnie Davis.

"Ronnie really played a solid game for us today," praised the Lion skipper. "Our whole defense was tough out there today."

Newton South displayed a potent offense that mixed a fine passing game (led by Joe Spagnuolo, 11 for 12, good for 87 yards) with a ground game that totaled 213 yards with five runners gaining over 20 yards apiece.

"I think the other teams will have to respect our passing game," said Kojoyian. "We can pass because we have the personal that can do it. The kids have worked hard for the last three weeks and I think it showed today."

After a scoreless first quarter (Newton South moved the ball well, recording four of its 13 first downs in the game) the Lions put their first six points on the board as the period was coming to a close and it earned them a 6-6 halftime tie.

Newton South took the ball over at the 45 yard line of Littleton and Spagnuolo wasted little time in hitting 6 foot four end Mike Antonellis for a 25-yard pass completion that brought the ball to the 20 yard line.

Spagnculo put the ball up again and forced the Littleton defenders to interfer with the open Lion receiver inside the ten-yard line in a desperation move. The ball was placed at the three yard line and junior Jim Hanelin bulled over for the touchdown. The Lions' point after attempt failed and the half ended.

The Newton South defense, which was forced to place extra emphasis on Pindora who was slashing and cutting up yardage all day, got the Lions' offense rolling in the fourth quarter.

After taking a 12-6 advantage in the third quarter on an Art Walton two-yard touchdown run, Jon Greenburg intercepted a pass at the Newton South 10 yard line that led to a Steve Mosca field goal 12 plays later and gave the Lions a 15-6 lead.

The final Newton South TD came when Murphy picked off an under-thrown pass, racing 50 yards for the score.

Lancers shock St. Clement's

Newton Catholic erupted for 16-fourth quarter points behind the strength of two 50 yard scoring drives and went on to upset top-ranked St. Clement's, 24-12, in a Catholic Suburban League clash at Dickinson Stadium Sunday.

The Lancers, who are operating with a center turned quaterback in Tom Donnelly, jumped out to a very quick 8-0 first-quarter advantage but then appeared to loose the edge they were displaying. Newton Catholic rolled 58 yards for a score on its first possession, but never mounted another serious scoring threat until the fourth quarter.

And in the fourth quarter the Lancers looked like a top-notched ball club. Trailing by a 12-8 margin entering the fourth quarter, Newton Catholic cruised 48 yards on four running plays (the longest being a 32 yard romp by Mark Hung) and scored when Donnelly muscled his way over the goal line from the two yard line. Donnelly hit one of his favorite targets of the day, Mike Walsh, for the conversion and the Lancers grabbed a 16-12 lead.

The Newton Catholic defense took its turn to show the large home town crowd its power by holding St. Clement's on three downs and blocking the punt on the fourth to take over possession at the 30 yard line of the visiting squad. The Lancers' offense was unable to move the ball and turned it back over, and once again the Newton Catholic defense was able to hold down the St. Clement's offense.

The two teams exchanged punts and with St. Clement's trying desperately to get back in the game, Paul Kling picked off an errant Jim Macaluso pass and raced 47 yards to put another six points on the Lancers' side of the scoreboard. Hung, the leading rusher in the game with 68 yards on 11 carries, crashed across the goal line to give Newton Catholic a 24-12 lead that would stand up.

Hung, who Lancer coach Tom Raeke described as "tough as nails" turned in an outstanding performance on defense and offense for the winners. Hung is listed as 5-5, 140 pounds, but doesn't appear to be that big. The performance by the youngster proved to be an inspiration for the rest of his teammates who also played a spirited game.

"The team really has a lot of individual character," said Raeke.

Coach looks at Big-10

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA coach Terry Donahue looks at the Big-10 and sees a different brand of football than was played in past years.

Gone are the days when a Pac-10 coach could count on a superior passing game to defeat the ground-happy midwesterners. Donahue believes a decade of Rose Bowl defeats has taught the Big-10 coaches to adapt or lose.

"They've opened up in the last couple of years with the influence of some new coaches — Haden Fry at Iowa, and Darryl Rogers at Michigan State," he said. "Now its to the point where there's a lot of similarity between the two conferences. We probably look more alike than most of the other conferences in the coutry."

UCLA's 31-13 romp over Wisconsin last week nevertheless served as a reminder to Donahue that the Big Ten teams are no longer the one-dimensional teams of past years.

"They've all opened up their offenses in the last few years," he said. "There's not a team in the Big Ten now that you could be confident of beating if you stopped their running game because they couldn't pass. They all throw the ball now," he said.

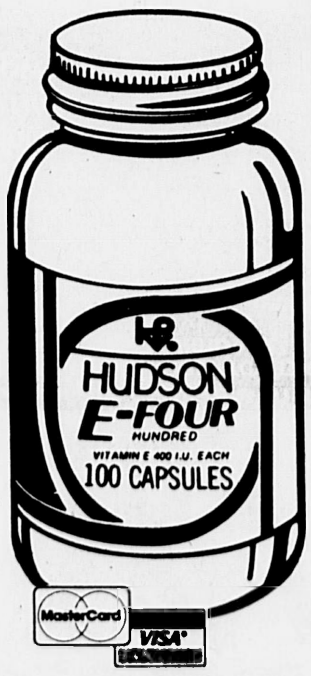

Iowa, the team next slated to meet the Bruins, is one of the pass-happiest teams in the country with Fry at the helm. The Hawkeyes (1-1) upset Nebraska 10-7 in their season-opener. Quarterback Peter Gales has already thrown 36 passes, completing 18 for 220 yards.

Donahue said Iowa is a tough team to figure out.

"Their team is difficult to judge," he said. "They were extremely impressive in beating Nebraska but they went out to Iowa State last week and didn't play anywhere near as well. Their players appeared sky-high for Nebraska but didn't appear to have that same intensity at Iowa State.

Running tips from an Olympian

It's not every day that the average runner can get training tips from an Olympic coach. But Bill Squires, a man who holds that distinction in addition to being coach for the New Balance Track Club, has offered some advice to help runners get in shape for Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Fit-as-a-Fiddle Road Race on Sunday, Oct.18.

Squires suggests that runners try to train about 30 miles per week for at least four weeks before the race. Drink about eight ounces of fluids one hour before the race and up to twice that amount 10 to 15 minutes before race time if the weather is humid. Start warming up – stretching and jogging – about 30 minutes before the race. In order to finish the race comfortably, you should be able to run six miles at nine to 11 minutes per mile.

Squires recommends the following training schedule: Day I—six miles; Day II—four miles; Day III—six miles; Day IV—four miles; and Day V—four miles; and Day VI—eight miles.

If you have chronic medical problems such as asthma, diabetes, hypertension or other cardiovascular ailments, check with your physician before entering the race. Wear a "Medic Alert" tag and identification.

Pay attention to the temperature. It can be a critical factor. Significant heat injury may occur at all temperatures from 65 degrees to 80. Novice runners should reduce their running pace by approximately one minute per mile in those temperatures. Wear only light, athletic clothing (shorts, T-shirt, tank top). Body temperature will normally rise to 102 to 103 degrees during a race due to exercise heat production. Further increases may occur due to radiant sun exposure, dehydration and decreased sweat rate.

Squires stresses that fluid replacement during the race is essential to restore sweat loss. Drink between six to eight ounces of fluids at each station. Stop to drink. Even then, you may replace only 50 percent of sweat loss.

What if you feel sick during a race?

You may experience cramps, joint pains, blisters and fatigue. But, according to Squires, heat symptoms such as headache, dizziness, disorientation, nausea, decrease in sweat rate and pale, cold skin are the most dangerous. Don't try to run through these symptoms. Stop, walk or rest and ask for help.

At the finish you may become dizzy or faint after coming to a stop due to a sudden drop in blood pressure. To prevent this, keep moving. But if symptoms continue, lie down, raise your legs, and ask for help.

Squires has one final word of caution: "Running is fun," he says, "but it can be stressful. Listen to your body. Walk when you're tired. There's always another race."

Squires will be available from 9 to 10 a.m. at a special Runners Symposium before the race to offer additional tips and answer questions.

Lancilotti scores twice to pace Newton Tigers

Scott Lancilotti rambled for two touchdowns and over 80 yards rushing to help the Newton Tigers to a 12-0 blanking of Watertown Saturday night in Pop Warner League Midget football at Albemarle Field.

Lancilotti powered what Coach Fred Dalicandro termed a "total team effort" with scoring runs of three and seven yards. His first TD in the second quarter capped a 45-yard scoring march.

In the fourth period, Lancilotti concluded a drive covering 65 yards with the seven-yard scamper. During both marches, Newton utilized its speed advantage to out-manuever the bigger and stronger Watertown team.

Also aiding the offensive surges were halfbacks Otto Marino and Tom Dalicandro.

Leading the defense, which was brilliant all day, were defensive tackles Matt Keegan and Eric Moscehella and Fran Yeradi.

Now 3-0, Newton travels to Chelsea next Sunday.

The Newton PeeWees also won, 18-6, over Watertown while the PeeWee B squad defeated Sudbury, 19-0. The Junior Midgets lost to Watertown, 6-0.

Costa scores 3 in Hawk win; Tigers also roll

Joe Costa continues to score goals at a rapid rate picking up three more tallies in Waltham High's 4-0 victory over Brockton on Friday in a Suburban League clash at Brockton.

Costa has scored five goals in Waltham's first two games. Waltham's only other goal scorer is sophomore Gino DeStefano. The Hawks grabbed a 1-0 lead on DeStefano's goal in the second period. Gino drilled a shot past the Brockton netminder that bounced in of the inside of the post.

Costa then started to get into the act. His first goal was a great individual effort. He stole the ball from the Brockton sweeper back and moved in alone on the goalie. With fullbacks charging in on him and the Brockton goalie charging out, Costa drilled a shot high into the net for the second Waltham goal.

The score that broke the Boxers spirit came with just three minutes left in the first half. Costa was at a difficult angle, but his crossing shot hooked and caught the far corner of the goal.

Steve LaForest assisted on the final Waltham score. He passed to Costa, who simply headed it into the net.

Charlie Pulselli and Paul Harris shared the shutout. Pulselli played the first three periods and Harris the final one. Waltham meets Quincy today.

Tim Feeney provided all the scoring to give Coach Emilo Mazzolla his first soccer victory at Newton North as the Tigers edged Quincy, 2-0, Friday at Quincy.

The Tigers are now 1-1 on the season.

Feeney tallied what turned out to be the game-winner early in the first quarter when he took a pass from Joe Schleifer, moved into to about 18 yards and drilled the ball past the left side of the Quincy goaltender.

Both teams stayed scoreless in the defensive contest until the fourth period when Feeney got the Tigers on the board once again. This time he jumped on a a loose ball in the crease after Colin Selig had fired the ball netward.

Henry Huntington notched the shutout in the nets, but he really wasn't all the busy. The Tigers put together an excellent defensive performance led by Rob Guillemin, Stephen Yannoni, Dan Hindman and Cam Sears.

"It was an outstanding team effort," said a pleased Mazzolla. "We had some great passing and we let the ball do the work. But in truth, we didn't finish off our plays as well as we should have. We were lucky in that we faced a team which was relatively young and inexperienced."

The Tigers will play again Wednesday at Weymouth South.

Volleyball champs

Patty Conneally, Julie Dore, Martha Saris, Helen Sifford. Back row: Pat Savage, Sue Cutler, Phyllis Savage, Elaine Rosetti, Judy Golden, Debbie Irwin.

Goldenberg pilots Tiger girls to 8-0 blanking

Lori Goldenberg scored twice in the first period to pilot the Newton North girls' soccer team to a convincing 8-0 victory over Quincy Friday in a Suburban League game at Quincy.

Goldenberg's first two goals were all the Tigers would need to improve their record to 2-0. Andrea Farina also scored in the first half for Newton North.

The Tigers scored four times in the third period to put the game away. Renee Jones scored first second half tally and Benie Link also scored. Darlene O'Conner and Jackie Dillan rounded out the third period scoring. The final Tiger goal came off the foot of Stephanie Stoyanoff in the final frame.

The Tigers will travel to Weymouth South on Wednesday.

Boxer comes from an unlikely family set up

TIVERTON, R.I. (UPI) — The incongruity didn't escape Chris McDonald, son of an accountant, product of a rural Rhode Island town and promising young heavyweight.

"I know, I know — what's a white, middle class kid doing in boxing instead of being a lawyer or a doctor?" McDonald said. "Blacks are in the sport because it's one of their few escapes. I have a God-given talent, and besides, it's something I like to do."

McDonald, 20, does it quite well, too. In his young pro career, the hard-punching heavyweight from Tiverton is 8-0-1.

All the wins were knockouts of five rounds or less. The draw came Aug. 23 in San Antonio, Texas, against Lou Benson. Not surprisingly, trainer Goody Petronelli thought his fighter, McDonald, took the bout.

Petronelli said, "We thought he won, so did Dr. Ferdie Pacheco." Pacheco is Muhammad Ali's former ring doctor and now a television color man.

"One thing we don't want to do is make excuses, but Chris had a respiratory problem a week before the fight," Petronelli said. "He just wasn't putting his punches together. He didn't perform like I wanted him to."

McDonald and Petronelli are looking forward to a rematch.

Petronelli, who added McDonald to his Brockton, Mass., stable this year, calls him a "potential world champion. He's a bona fide white hope. The kid can box — and he can think. He can hit and he can put 'em together. Give him another year, 18 months, and he'll be fighting those guys in the Top 10."

"Seasoning," Petronelli said, is what McDonald lacks now.

Anything else?

"I don't think he has any weaknesses — besides, I wouldn't tell you anyway," the trainer said.

Petronelli also likes what he sees within McDonald's rugged 6-foot-2 ¼-inch, 220-pound frame.

"He's thinking big — he's thinking championship," said Petronelli, who manages one world titleholder, middleweight Marvin Hagler. "McDonald's not from the ghetto but he's a hungry fighter."

Like manyy in the current crop of rising young heavyweights, McDonald got hooked on boxing while watching the U.S. Olympic team. For him, inspiration was the 1972 squad with heavyweight Duane Bobbick and middleweight Sugar Ray Seales.

Two years later, his father, William, took his 178-pound, 12-year-old son to the gym to shed some of that weight.

"When I went down there, they thought I was pretty good," recalled McDonald, one of five children.

His amateur record lived up to those early observations. In several weight divisions, McDonald compiled an amateur record of 78-3, all the losses on controversial decisions, he said. Two of those were to rising heavyweights James Broad and Marvis Frazier, the son of former champ Joe Frazier.

"I beat Broad," McDonald insists. He offered the same verdict on the close decision to Frazier, but conceded, "He's just a well-conditioned athlete, but I guess anyone would be if they had Joe Frazier for a father."

McDonald attacks his opponents from a crouch, so he appears shorter and stockier than he really is. The stance makes him a tougher target for opponents, and may explain why he's never been knocked out.

"I don't take that many punches," he said. "I like to consider myself a boxer-puncher. My idol was Joe Louis, and I'd like to be like him."

McDonald said since he joined the Petronelli Brothers' Gym this year, he's slowly gained the confidence a fighter needs just as dearly as a good combination of punches.

"Right now, I'm just trying to get ringwise, trying to build up experience so I can go the longer distances." With the exception of Benson, most of his opponents won't hang around for the end of class.

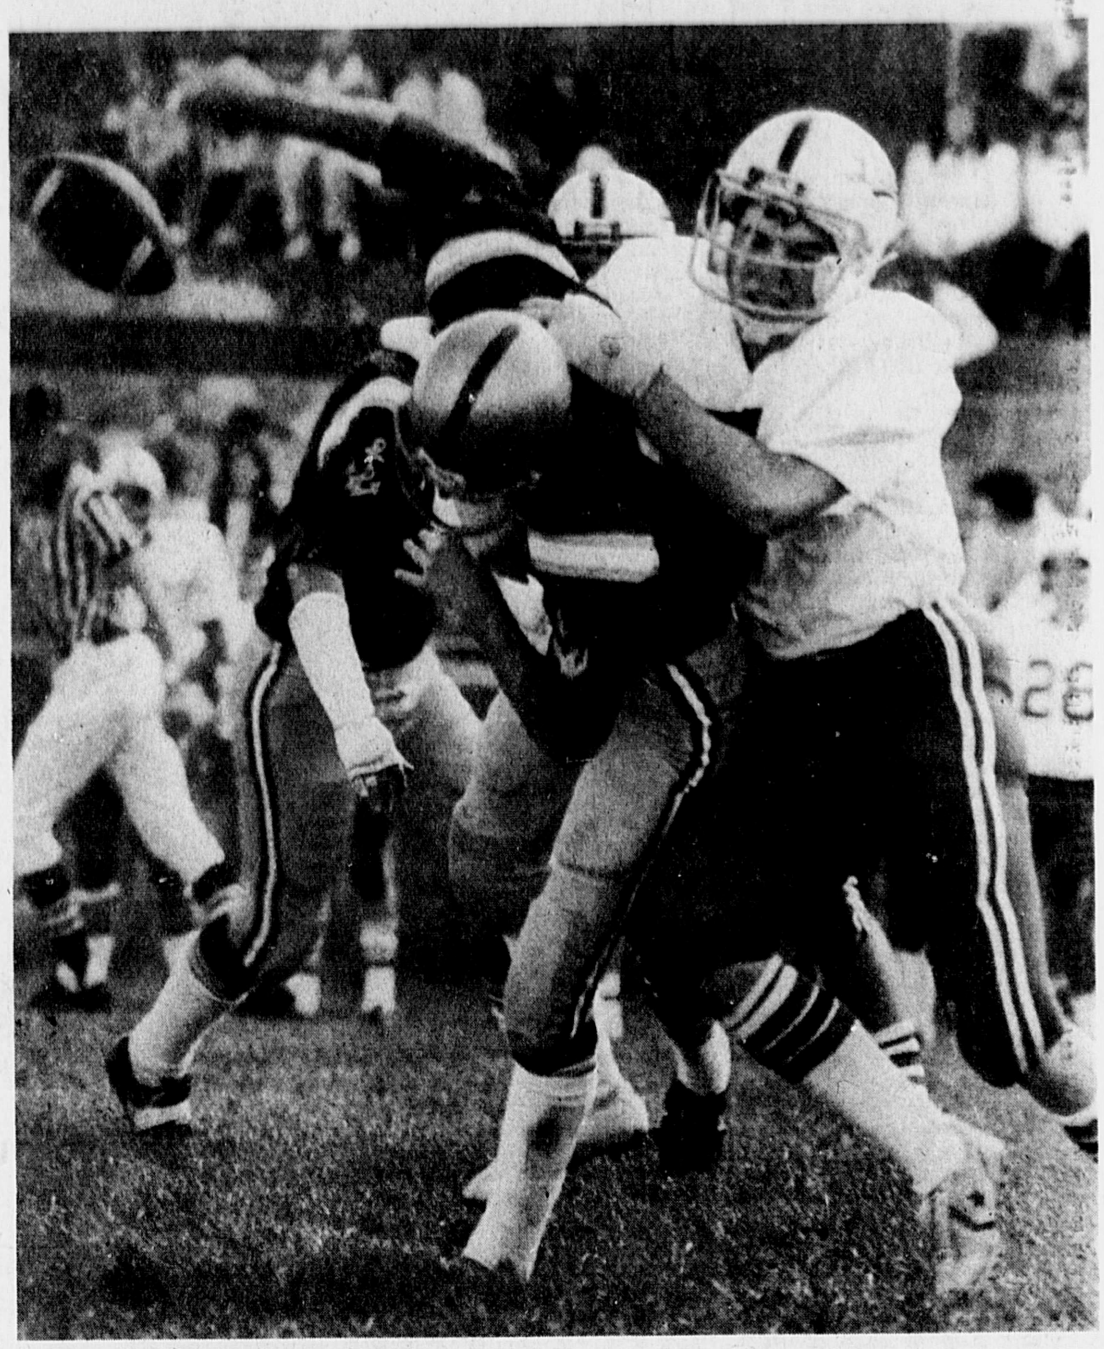

McDonald said he realizes one punch can turn a promising fighter into a has been, so he's going to junior college and studying engineering technology.

"The heavyweight division is a dangerous division. John Tate learned that. You have to have something to fall back on."

Meanwhile, Petronelli is looking forward to his dream card Oct. 3 in Chicago.

His "pride and joy," Hagler, defends his title against Mustafa Hamsho, and McDonald is on the same card, probably in a rematch with Benson.

"Won't that be beautiful," Petronelli sighed.

Lancer's Jim McLellan forces a fumble.

B. Littman paces Newton So. win

Barbara Littman scored on 17 serves to lead Newton South to an opening volleyball win over Lynnfield, 15-3, 15-8 in a non-league contest Wednesday at Newton South.

Littman notched 13 tallies in the first match and added four more in the second contest.Co-Capt. Laurie Spicer chipped in with three points in the first game and six in the second contest.

Co-Capt. Leslie Smith kept Lynnfield diving left and right trying to return her spikes.

The Lions dominated the contest and led throughout the match. Newton South is hoping to improve on its 6-9 record from a year ago.

Paula Mar turned in a strong game on defense in the winning effort.

The Lions have a strong serving game and looked good on setting up spikes. Defensively, Newton South played a fine team game and managed to return some testing shots from its Lynnfield opponent.

The Lions will pursue their second win when they host Arlington High on Friday afternoon.

Running Seminar at St. Elizabeth's

Runners, coaches and trainers and physicians, alike, will learn about the latest advances in the dynamics of running at St. Elizabeth's Hospital's Running Seminar, scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 26, 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Whether newcomer to the field or seasoned professional, the program provides specialized information that you can use.

Sponsored by the hospital's Sports Medicine Center and Runners' Clinic in conjunction with Converse, the comphrensive overview approaches running from the perspectives of a research scientist, coaches and medical professionals. The conference ranges in subject matter from the most effective training techniques to sports injuries and their prevention and reviews trends in running shows.

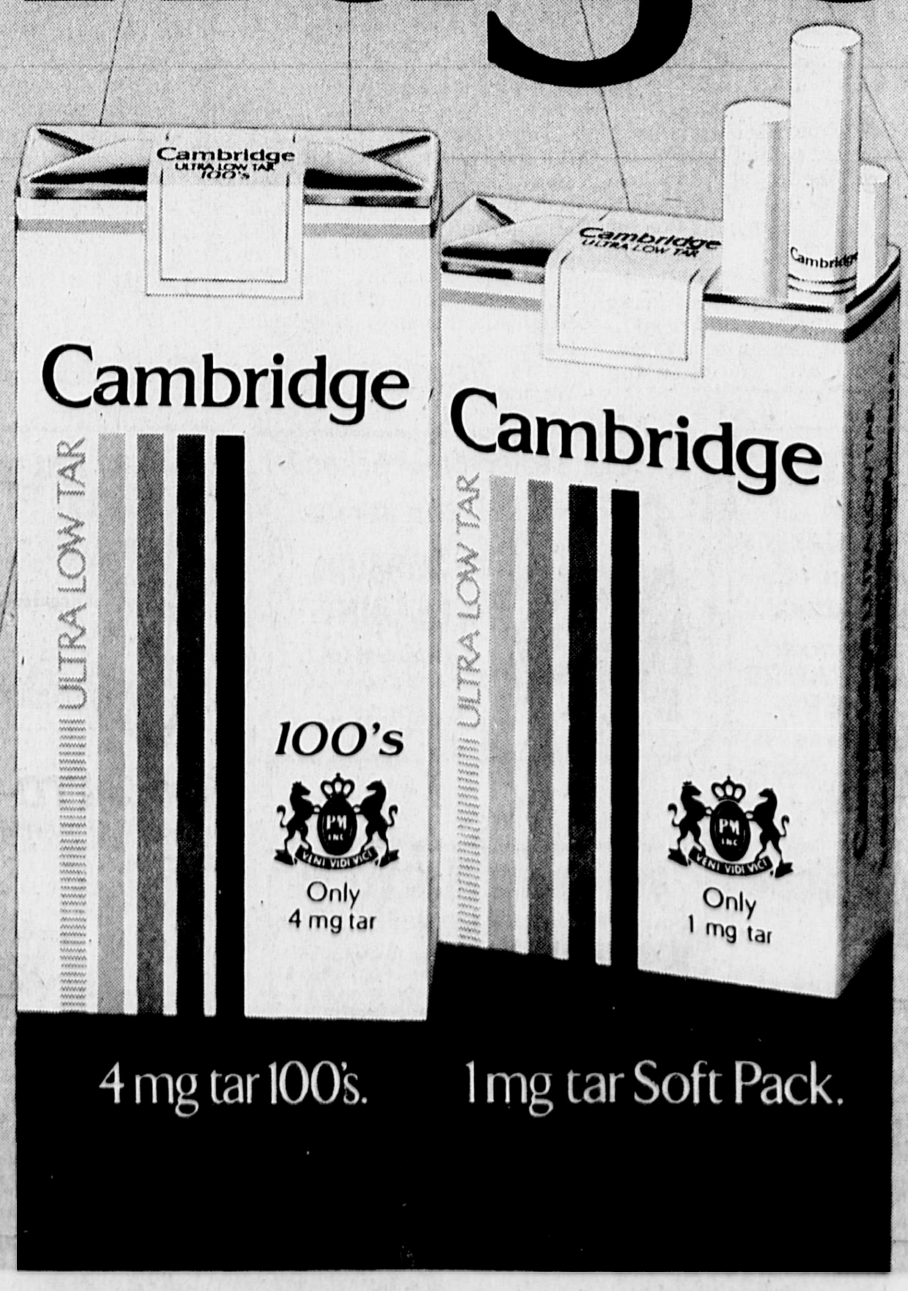

The Running Seminar is limited to 150 participants and applications are available by calling 782-7000, ext. 2625. A fee of $3 covers the program, parking and coffee.

In tandem with the seminar, St. Elizabeth's Runners' Clinic will host "10 Kilometers over Heartbreak Hill," a 6.2 mile road race, on Sunday, Sept. 27, at 3 p.m.

Proceeds from the weekend activities support medical research in prevention of sports injuries.

Mount Ida plans groundbreaking for library facility

NEWTON CENTRE — On Wednesday, Sept. 23 groundbreaking for the conversion of the present riding arena, to the new Learning Resources Center will take place at Mount Ida Junior College in Newton.

The center is scheduled for completion in 1983 and will take the place of the present library facility.

The chief objective of the learning resources program at the college is to integrate the library and media materials with college's instructional program and activities.

When completed, in addition to books, the center will house media production facilities for the production of slide and video sound presentations for instructional use, sound rooms for recording sound tapes and facilities for production for graphic arts.

A special room for the college's Art History slide collection with viewing facilities for instructors' use, a children's literature room, and a large viewing classroom with a seating capacity for 60 people specifically designed for film viewing will also be featured.

Initially there will be space for 50,000 books which is 20,000 more than the present capacity of the College's Hallden Library. The final plans for the center include the addition of a balcony which will bring the total capacity to 90,000 volumes.

The learning resources center will be a major addition to the academic complex of buildings at the college.

Participating in the groundbreaking ceremonies will be Dr. Bryan Carlson, president; Bernard A. Torri, vice-chairman, board of trustees; Ignacio Juaregui, college dean; Caroline Soule, learning resources center director; Frances Brigham, alumna and trustee; and Diane Passardi, president of the Mount Ida student senate.

Senior center moves to Waban

WABAN — The senior citizens drop-in center, formerly at Hyde School and more recently at St. Paul's Church, has found a more permanent home at the Zervas School, 30 Beethoven Ave. This move was necessitated by the fire last spring at the Hyde School. The center has been renamed the Beethoven Senior Drop-In Center.

While the location is different, the Beethoven Senior Drop-In Center will continue to offer a wide variety of programs and services for Newton's senior citizens. Hot meals provided by West Suburban Elder Services are offered daily. An advance reservation is required. In addition, the Newton Health Department's Senior Health Maintenance Clinics will now be open daily at the center. Call the center for the schedule of clinic hours.

Steve Holmes, chairman of the Council on Aging noted, "We are extremely grateful to St. Paul's Church for allowing the drop-in center to be temporarily located at the church during the summer months."

According to Howard J. Lipton, Director of Human Services, "We are pleased to become members of the Zervas community. The School Department's personnel have been very cooperative and we have had a smooth transition into our new home."

Boys' Club opens fall season soon

Judge Eliot Cohen

NEWTON — Newton Boys' Club will open its doors for the 1981-1982 fall and winter season program on Monday, Sept. 28 at 2 p.m., it was announced today by Judge Eliot K. Cohen, president.

The club will be open daily Monday through Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 6:30 to 9 p.m. for the membership. On Saturdays the hours range from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All boys between the ages of 7 and 18 years are eligible for membership and are advised to enroll soon as possible. Early registration will give them the opportunity to sign for the favorite activities they plan to undertake for the coming season.

President Cohen further stressed that the main objective of the club programs is to "provide boys with an opportunity to develop basic skills in areas of interest to them and to others. We feel that by stressing qualities such as sportmanship, cooperation, perserverance and honesty we can help boys not only to build better lives for themselves, but also to become valuable assets to the community. The degree to which we can accomplish this goal is our measure of a successful season."

A total membership of approximately 550 boys and young men were served on a daily basis this past year. New equipment has been installed in the complex, alterations have been made in the club rooms and the playground area to insure the best possible accommodations for the membership.

Alexander will head tax assn.

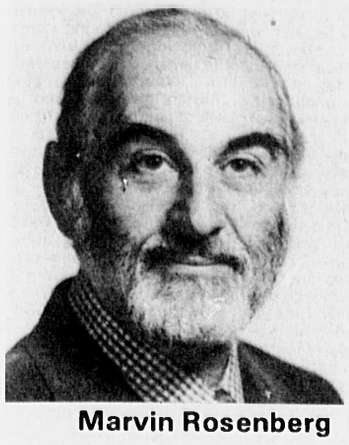

Joseph Alexander

NEWTON — Joseph A. Alexander, president of the Newton Taxpayers' Association, Inc. since Oct. 1, has taken on the added duties of executive director and executive secretary of that organization.

The executive position of the 45-year-old, 650 member group was previously held for 33 years by Lorenz F. Muther, Jr., until his retirement last year and by Francis J. Faulkner for a brief interim period on a temporary retainer basis.

"We have tried, effectively over the years to help keep local taxes lower than they would have been, and to get our expended money's worth for the citizens of Newton," said Alexander.

Social service director named at St. Elizabeth's

Marvin Rosenberg

BRIGHTON — Newton resident, Marvin Rosenberg, has been appointed director of Social Services at St. Elizabeth's Hospital of Boston.

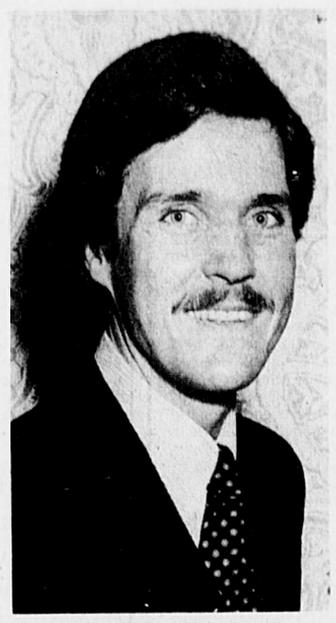

He has served since 1978 as director of Community Health Services.

Prior to coming to St. Elizabeth's, Rosenberg was director of Community Health Services at the Faulkner Hospital.

He is a graduate of the University of Colorado and received his masters in Social Work from Adelphi University School of Social Work in New York.

Among his professional affiliations are membership in the National Association of Social Workers, American Public Health Association, Massachusetts Public Health Association, and New England Health Education Association.

Hotel makes appointment

Gary Albee

AUBURNDALE — Gary R. Albee has been appointed manager of the S&S Livestock Co. Restaurant in the Marriott Hotel, Auburndale, Robert W. Horgan, general manager, has announced.

Albee will supervise preparation of a new menu for the restaurant and oversee improved services. He joined the company at the Newton Marriott Hotel in 1973 and was promoted to assistant manager of the Fairfield Inn Restaurant before joining Marriott's corporate food and beverage staff in Washington, D.C., in 1979 as manager of Service Standards.

There he was responsible for developing and implementing service training programs for new Marriott Hotels as well as conducting various management training programs.

During his assignment with corporate Marriott Hotels, he participated in the opening of 13 Marriott Hotels in the United States and abroad.

Obituaries

Leo A. Morrell

A funeral mass was celebrated Thursday, Sept. 17, in St. Jean's Church for Leo A. Morrell.

Mr. Morrell, a resident of Newton, died Tuesday, Sept. 15. He was an employee of the City of Newton Highway Department and a member of Italian-American Veterans' Post No. 50.

Husband of the iate Grace Morrell, he is survived by three brothers, Ernest of Watertown, and Joseph and Curtis of Newton; and a sister, Louise Landrigan of Cambridge.

Ralph Sanborn

Private funeral services were to be held for Ralph M. Sanborn, 91, of Newtonville, who died Saturday, Sept. 19, in Wellesley Manor Nursing Home after a long illness.

He was a former Newton teacher, coach and league commissioner for high school sports.

Mr. Sanborn attended Waltham High School and graduated from New Hampshire College in 1913. He received his master of science degree from Harvard in 1922.

Mr. Sanborn's teaching career began in 1917 at Wilton Academy in Maine. He taught at Thornton Academy and began teaching in Newton after that. He was a physical education teacher and high school football coach in Newton from 1931-39.

In 1955, Mr. Sanborn became the Suburban League commissioner, a post he held for several years after his teaching retirement in 1960. He was also faculty nanager of athletics at Newton High from 1940-60.

He was the husband of the late Pearl Sanborn who died in 1978. They were married for 62 years.

Professionals out of work

By Voni Weaver

Listen to this: "At one suburban Mass. Dept. of Employment Security office in June 1975, the machine that punched out the checks broke down. The staff went into a frenzy. A scruffy looking, middle-aged man in work clothes stepped out of line and asked whether he could help. He politely identified himself as a mechanical engineer... 'The machine,' he said, 'probably just blew a fuse.' He ran to his car and returned. In a few minutes he replaced the old fuse and the machine began printing again. The clerk then curtly told the engineer to go to the end of the line because he had moved out of place. 'Okay,' said the engineer, 'but give me back my fuse.' The clerk then allowed the engineer his former place. The incident was not even shocking to the others in line..."

Sound familiar? Certainly does, especially the part about the checkprinter breaking down. Although this scene dates from the seventies, when defense spending cutbacks forced manys the industry along Route 128 either to shrink or to close entirely, it has a melancholy resonance today, as does much of Paula Leventman's material in her book, "Professionals Out of Work."

Anyone whose life is affected by tax dollars, that is to say every one of us, is experiencing still another recession as the result of Prop. 2 ½ and like legislation. A book that began 10 years ago as a thesis addressing "downward social mobility" grew into an intense and deeply felt five-year study of what happened to a selection of people with splendid qualifications who were squeezed out of work.

A Newton resident since 1968, Mrs. Leventman, currently visiting professor and director of urban studies and Wellesley College, manages to use the arsenal available to a sociologist to place her participants in their proper strata, to compare them with each other and with the rest of us, without for a moment letting us forget the human beings involved by means of that best of all instruments, the interview.

She gives us excerpts from conversations she held with these people, who were born in the thirties, who remember the Great Depression, who strove for the education, the degrees that should have ensured secure professional lives, and who then lost their jobs. As they undergo rage, frustration, depression, apathy, we feel with them a range of emotions as searing as they are predictable; and think either, there but for the grace of God, go I, or there go I.

Mrs. Leventman does what she can to avoid sociologese, a language that looks a lot more like our mother tongue than it is, actually, without diminishing the scientific value of her text. I think she manages well and found myself racing through on a first reading to see what happened next as if I were reading a novel. High marks for a textbook indeed.

Nurses association will give flu vaccines

WABAN — Local businesses can protect their employees from influenza through a program offered by the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Visiting Nurse Association.

The VNA has announced a stepped-up program of giving flu shots to employee groups at business locations. "Since the flu can strike suddenly and causes employees to be away from work for periods up to three weeks," states Ms. Beverly Harmon, R.N., coordinator of the project, "we have found this on-site program to be effective."

A variety of influenza viruses are expected to be prevalent this year, according to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. The VNA will be administering A-Bangkok, B-Singapore and A-Brazil vaccine. It is recommended that each person have one shot.

The VNA will schedule visits by nurses to businesses with 10 or more employees. Those employees unable to receive a shot at the time can go to the VNA, 1589 Beacon St., on a Wednesday evening between 6 and 8 p.m.

The program is being provided at cost by the VNA as a community service. "Not only is the flu hard on employees and their families, it can cause unnecessary disruption in a business," adds Ms. Harmon.

The VNA is currently contacting many area businesses about the program, which will be available starting on Sept. 15. "We have the vaccine available now," says Ms. Harmon.

Call the VNA at 244-4880 for information.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

CREATIVE HOME FINANCING

If you're in the market for a home of your own, you're probably in the market for a home loan, too. A conventional mortgage is usually the first kind that comes to mind, but other alternatives do exist.

These include • privately insured loans • GI-insured loans • FHA/HUD-insured loans • Farmers Home Administration loans • urban "homestead" loans • "house-to-house" loans • variable interest rate loans • graduated payment mortgages and • HUD's subsidized homeownership program.

To learn about these possibilities, talk to a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® before you start looking. REALTORS® are real estate professionals, and forms of financing are part of their expertise. They can tell you what's available in your community, and how you can qualify.

Stone, wood class

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Arts Center is offering for the first time a class in "Stone and Wood Carving," for both beginners and those with previous experience.

The course is to be taught by Angelica Lee, who has exhibited her work in many locations in the Boston area, including the Copley Society and the New England Sculptors' Association.

The Newton Arts Center is at 61 Washington Park, Newtonville. Classes begin this week, but it is still possible to register. For further information, call the center at 964-3424.

Center holds trips for seniors

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Arts Center and the Newton Community Schools are co-sponsoring theatre trips for seniors at special prices, which include roundtrip bus transportation from the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, Newtonville.

The first trip will be to the Wednesday, Oct. 14 matinee at the Colonial Theatre to see Paul Osborn's 1980 Tony Award winning comedy, "Morning's at Seven," starring Rosemary Murphy, Maureen O'Sullivan, Kate Reid, Teresa Wright and Russell Nype. The four loving sisters, three husbands, and a 40 year old bachelor and his fiance of the past 12 years all contribute to the merry mayhem. Prompt reservations advised. cPD Call the Newton Arts Center, 964-3424, for further information on this play and details about the Dec. 2 trip to the Hartman Theatre at Boston University to see Tammy Grimes in "The Millionairess."

Uphill battle for Marquis

Newton's Mann remains formidable

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Mayor Theodore Mann was again behind his City Hall desk following last week's preliminary election while mayoral hopeful Bruce Marquis began the groundwork for his second campaign.

As Mann tended to the business of the city - a job 60 percent of the electorate told him he was doing solidly - Marquis thanked his supporters and started soliciting additional endorsements.

What Marquis admitted may be a tougher search is the one for an upfront issue. "For me to win the final election, either an issue has to come about that gets people so upset that they come out to the polls and/or we have to come up with a creative way to get people out to vote," he said.

For the 37-year-old insurance salesman and father of two, six weeks remain to build what he hopes will be a competitive coalition.

In Mann, however, Marquis faces a political fixture that has spent more than 20 years, including 10 as mayor, in constructing one of the most powerful city coalitions statewide.

Although Marquis was competitive on the city's north side in the preliminary, he got soaked on the south side where Mann registered 4,714 votes compared to 2,136 for White and himself.

Marquis

Mann

It is this bastion of support, which includes a large Jewish population and a solid liberal, democratic base, that any opponent of Mann's must crack.

Even White, who received liberal support throughout his aldermanic tenure, could not pierce the incumbent's armor. Marquis said he will try and gain the support of democrats citywide (including those who had supported White) for the non-partisan election.

Money too may be a problem for Marquis, although he said he expects to raise more than $15,000 before November. In preparation for Tuesday's election, Marquis blitzed the the city with more than $15,000 of promotional work. Comparatively, Mann spent $10,225 as of Sept. 4 and White just $4,589.

However, Marquis' coffer is near dry except for the $3,000 he claimed he raised at his victory celebration while Mann has at least $16,000 in the kitty.

"I was shocked," said White, 32, of Mann's overwhelming victory. "How do you run against someone who gets 60 percent of the vote.

Sounding the shofar for Rosh Hashanah

Rabbi Stanley H. Dreifuss of Temple Beth Israel, sounds the shofar symbolizing the start of Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year of 5742. The shofar, a ram's horn, is a call for Jews to be judged by God for their deeds over the past year. The shofar will be sounded again to mark the end of Yom Kippur, the day of atonement. Area synagogues are holding Rosh Hashanah services through today. Yom Kippur begins at sundown on Wednesday, Oct. 7.

Brutality shocks condo residents

Elderly women terrorized

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

NEWTON — A brutal robbery in which two elderly women were terrorized, drugged and handcuffed has residents of a plush 20-unit condominium complex on Commonwealth Ave. in shock.

Many shaken residents of the complex at 209 Commonwealth Ave., two blocks from Boston College, refused to discuss the incident, but others expressed anger and disbelief. Police are searching for a 30-year-old armed woman and her male companion in connection with the robbery at the complex which occured early Sunday evening.

Residents and trustees of the complex maintained that security at the building is tight and that the robbery could have happened anywhere. "This is a peaceful building," said one trustee.

"It's a terrible thing," said one of the condominium owners. "It shook me up but good...It's (crime) not only here. It's all over."

"This is the first time anything like this happened around here," said another condominium owner who was out of the building when the robbery occured. "It's all tense (here). We're doing the best we can."

> "It's a terrible thing," said one of the condominium owners. "It shook me up but good...It's (crime) not only here. It's all over."

"If I got my hands on that broad (burglar), I'd make her mush," exclaimed one of the angry trustees of the building.

Police speculated that one of the tenants in the building buzzed the front door lock which allowed the robber to enter the building. The intruder apparently used the name of a person one of the elderly women knows to enter the building. After handcuffing and drugging the two elderly woman, the robber ransacked the five-room apartment while a man suspected to be her accomplice waited in a car outside.

The victims of the assault were too shaken up to discuss the siege of terror. "No more," pleaded a relative at the condominium. "I want no more...We are in no mood."

Meet Matthew...the actor

By Donna Lombardi
Staff Writer

WABAN — Matthew Flynn, of Waban, greets his guest with a wide grin, a jump in the air and a perfect cartwheel.

"I'm Matthew," he announces enthusiastically. He is as vivacious and energetic as any 7-year-old should be. "Matthew," says his mother, Delia Flynn, is a high energy child."

A second grade student at Angier School in Waban, Matthew was one of seven children from around Boston to be chosen for the Boston performance of, "The King and I," now playing at the Metropolitan Center. He is obviously enjoying the experience.

In his green Angier School T-shirt, red gym shorts and navy sneakers, he shuffles excitedly on the kitchen counter.

As his mother applies the makeup for that night's performance, Matthew examines his Kermit the Frog lunch box, filled with snacks to take along to the theater.

"I think it (working in the production) is good for him," says Flynn, who feels her son will benefit in a couple of ways. "The discipline is good. He knows that he has to be somewhere at a certain time. He knows that he needs to get enough sleep."

Also, Matthew, who was adopted from Vietnam when he was one-year-old, has met other Oriental children who are in "The King and I." "He sees more Oriental children who were adopted from Vietnam. That's good, too."

Aside from a small school production of, "The Velveteen Rabbit," in which Matthew was a narrator, he has never acted, but is excited about this new experience. As we traveled into Boston one night to take Matthew into the Metropolitan, he joyously sang his favorite song from the show, "Getting to Know You."

Matthew Flynn and his mother, Delia.

"He's really high," says Flynn, who worries that Matthew might feel let down when the musical is over. But for now, Matthew is happy, especially with the new friends he has made through the production.

Soon after we arrived backstage at the Metropolitan, Matthew has dashed away from us, looking for his friends. As they gather around him, Matthew shouts,"C'mon everybody,c'mon. The picture's going in the NEWSPAPER!" Matthew wants all his friends in the photograph.

Suddenly, Matthew catches a glimpse of a tall, slender young woman. She is "Tuptin," the beautiful slave princess who Matthew adores. Matthew jumps across the threshhold and into her arms. Tuptin, played by actress Patricia Anne Welsh, is equally fond of Matthew. "He's such an affectionate little boy," she says warmly.

Matthew talks animatedly about the "The King and I" particularly a scene when all the children sing a song called the "The Royal Bangkok Academy." Folding his hands and pressing them against his cheek, Matthew gives a demonstration.

"We believe in SNOW," giggles Matthew in an Oriental accent.

"I wear a yellow shirt, weird looking pants, a green sash and some jewelry," he says, describing his costume.

Flynn is glad her son has the opportunity to be in the production. "Children like makeup and costumes. It's a real fun thing for them notinq that Matthew and the other children are more energetic when they leave the performance then when they begin. "I think it's actors' high."

Squeeze play on quality of Newton sport program

By Jonathan Greenspan
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Tom Williams, Newton North's neophyte athletic director, does not have to search the back of his mind when it comes to describing the high school's athletic program.

Athletics at North over the past five years, have in one word, epitomized "quality."

Williams, who coached the boy's soccer team to three Suburban League championships during his five-year stint as head coach, is reminded of the reputation each day upon entering his new office.

On the wall are tributes to that excellence, a record string of five Dalton Trophys presented annually to the high school in Division I with the best composite winning percentage.

However, one thing which Williams' predecessor, Jim Ronayne, did not have to deal with was Proposition 2½.

This year, as a result of the taxpayers' mandate, North was forced to endure a five percent decrease in its athletic budget from $205,000 to $194,000.

At Newton South, which became a four-year high school this autumn, the operating budget was initially cut 4.9 percent to $166,336. However, because of the ninth grade addition, Athletic Director George Winkler was given some $15,000 in additional monies to boost the program's budget upwards to $181,336.

Yet both Williams and Winkler face the problem of maintaining a top flight athletic program with reduced funding, equipment, and coaching.

In other words, the squeeze is on.

"We're trying to maintain a quality product with less than the number of coaches needed," said Williams. "I'm very concerned that we may not be able to maintain the quality that we've maintained in the past."

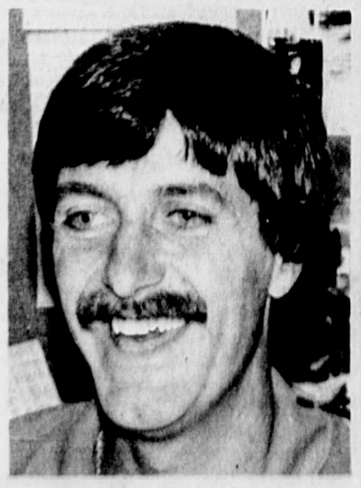

> "We're trying to maintain a quality product with less than the number of coaches needed," said Williams. "I'm very concerned that we may not be able to maintain the quality that we've maintained in the past."--Tom Williams

Winkler, although he considered his situation "fortunate," said it was going to "be tight."

Two sports, riflery and sailing, were completly cut from North's athletic budget. The remainder of cuts at both high schools were in team schedules, transportation, equipment and the number of coaches.

"The Suburban League (which includes North) has maintained a commitment to one another in trying to hang on to the same programs in order to maintain continuity and a good, competitive league," said Williams.

Marquis faces uphill battle against Mayor Mann

Although I've had my disagreements with him, it's a real compliment to his tenure in office."

Alderman Joseph DePasquale, a White supporter, said the problem with beating Mann is that he has a history of faring well even in the wards he loses.

"He's almost unbeatable if this continues to happen," said DePasquale reciting past election results. On the south side, "White was number two when it came between he and Teddy."

White, who was preparing for a vacation Wednesday, appeared awed by the mayor's victory: "Ted Mann has convinced me he can beat anyone in this city," he said admiringly. "If God came in with $100,000 he may have a chance."

"Most of my votes were for Mark White," added the four-term alderman discounting he picked up a large anti-Mann contingent. "A lot of liberals had serious problems choosing between me and Teddy and they went to him."

Ward 7, where White is an alderman-at-large was particularly puzzling to the incumbent alderman. Alderman Terry Morris noted that a lot of people from the ward have supported Mann over the years and despite "the Republican after his name he is perceived as being liberal, progressive."

White was also disappointed with what he perceived as an unfair shake on the city's north side, particularly the union vote that went to Marquis. Union leaders Danny McLaren, Louie Rufo and Bob Hand all supported the newcomer, people whom Morris said "definitely should have supported White given the positions he has taken."

Ward 2 Alderman Elaine Gentile noted that White, despite being a south side alderman, had done quite a bit for the north side. White, chairman of Public Safety and Transportation Committee, recently led the fight to retain the fire department ambulance service, generally perceived as a north side issue.

"Even though they (north siders) got along with Mark, they aren't great supporters," said Gentile. "He's too liberal for them."

Alluding to his early years on the board, Alderman Richard McGrath said White's image as a "young, aggressive windmill fighter" stuck despite his maturity over the past few years. "People didn't see the growth as I saw it and it's unfortunate he still looks young," said McGrath.

In addition, some political observers believe that Marquis - in several precincts - rode in on the coattails of School Committee candidate Leonard Gentile who had received the enthusiastic endorsement of State Rep. Joseph DeNucci.

Although DeNucci did not publically endorse any mayoral candidate, a well publicized flare-up between White and the representative in the spring cost White votes in the Italian sections of the city. In the four precincts which Gentile won big, Marquis took three of his four precinct victories.

"I'm absolutely not going to crack the Jewish vote," said Marquis of the mayor's strength. "I have said all along if I receive 25 percent of the the vote in Ward 8, I would be happy."

Between White and Marquis they received less than 20 percent of the votes cast in Ward 8 Tuesday.

Marquis did say, however, he expected to pick up two-thirds of the White preliminary vote. Added to his 2,790 votes, the 1,600 White crossovers would give Marquis 4,390 votes.

White disagreed, saying most of his votes would probably go to Mann. Morris, a White supporter, thought it was unlikely that the people who supported White were going to switch to the Marquis camp.

Others believed that the votes would split with Marquis taking the north side and Mann the south. White, many believe would have been a better drawing card in wards 1 through 4 than Marquis will be in wards 5 through 8 in a head-to-head clash with Mann.

McGrath, a White supporter, thought the anti-Mann vote would go to Marquis while he was unsure where the philosophical votes would go.

"You've got have a reason to vote out an incumbent," said Morris. "There doesn't seem to be any big issues."

Alderman Lisle Baker, who has publically endorsed Mann as of Tuesday, asked, "Why trade him (Mann) for a new model when you have a level of experience that is doing pretty good."

> "Ted Mann has convinced me he can beat anyone in this city," he said admiringly. "If God came in with $100,000 he may have a chance."
> --defeated challenger Mark White

> "I'm absolutely not going to crack the Jewish vote," said Marquis of the mayor's strength. "I have said all along if I receive 25 percent of the the vote in Ward 8, I would be happy."

Woman foils rape try at Boston College library

By Sarah Clayton
Staff WRiter

NEWTON — A Boston College student told police she foiled a rape attempt late Friday night while studying in a room at the law library.

The unidentified woman told police a man, approximately 6' tall and about 20-years-old, followed her into a study room around 11:40 p.m. Friday and began talking in an obscene manner to her.

When she reportedly tried to run from the room, the suspect blocked the doorway. She said he then pushed her to the ground and allegedly began tearing at her clothing.

The woman said she began screaming. She said she found a ballpoint pen and stabbed her assailant on the upper left side of his chest.

Whether it was the stabbing or some outside noise, the assailant was momentarily distracted, and the woman told police she seized the opportunity to push him away and run into an outside parking lot of the law school on Centre St.

The suspect is described as a white male of medium build with brown hair, and wearing a leather jacket and a blue shirt with a cut-off T-shirt over it, Newton police said.

Condo residents shocked

One of the victims was Mrs. A.L. Kleven. The other was a relative whose name police refused to disclose.

The three-story brick complex was peaceful Monday afternoon. Few residents were seen leaving or entering the complex. A trustee and building attendant at the site refused to be quoted on the incident.

Dorothy Cook, one of three trustees at the building, said additional security measures are being taken in the wake of the robbery. Many of the condominiums have burglar alarms.

"Our security is as good as Fort Knox right now," asserted Cook.

Cook criticized the media for blowing the robbery out of proportion. She claimed the "publicity" from the incident could result in another robbery at the building.

"I think this building is very secure," she said. "I think we've done a super job of keeping it that way...This could have happened anywhere."

Meet Matthew Flynn... the young actor

But Matthew does get tired, as he performs several nights a week, and twice on Saturday and Sunday. He has had to miss some, but not much, school when he has been too exhausted to attend.

"He's a little tired and flies off the handle more easily," Flynn says, but adds that Matthew is still doinq well in school, where he may give a sinm.ing performance for the first grade class.

It was Matthew who decided that he wanted to try out for a part as one of the king's children, after his father saw a newspaper advertisement announcing the auditions.

"Well, I said that I would go just for the fun of it, not for the money or anything," Matthew remarks, adding that he makes a weekly salary of about $260. One of 50 children who tried out for a part, Matthew admits that he was a bit nervous at the audition. "Maybe just a little."

Although he is enjoying the fun and new friends, Matthew doesn't talk about becoming an actor someday. "I think I'll be in the Olympics," says Matthew, who would like to be a gymnast. "I'm going to travel around the world to China, Japan and California, to Disneyworld!"

These members of the King and I cast, led by Matthew King (center) are all smiles.

Will Matthew be disappointed when the production leaves Boston and he returns to his normal, everyday life? He shrugs his shoulders. "I don't know. It depends."

Squeeze play on quality of Newton sport program

"Eliminating riflery and sailing did not have a disastrous effect on the Suburban League because not everyone offered these programs."

The cuts Williams said would have the most detrimental effect on the athletic program was in the area of coaching. The coach-player ratio, formerly 20 to 1 at North, is now roughly 35 to 1. North eliminated three coaches, two from the football program, and reduced the number of games varsity squads play from 22 to 20.

As a result of the greater coach-player ratio, the "type of instruction" offered is no longer as personalized. Athletes, who in the past received attention from an assistant coach while the head coach worked with first-stringers, may get lost in the shuffle, cautioned Williams.

"In this type of situation, the kids start dropping," continued Williams. "We messed up maximum participation. You can't blame the kid for that. The ratio has dropped."

"This is what we're concerned about," he added. "One of our major objectives is providing maximum participation."

At South, where some of the ninth grade programs were axed, youngsters will be encouraged to play junior varsity ball. "However," noted Winkler, "there may be a possible backlash as we may have to cut for the first time where we only have two programs."

The immediate effects of these reductions are obvious. It is the devastating long-range effects of athletes receiving inadequate training and dropping from the program that is the worry here.

Other cuts at South included a reduction in the number of non-league games so that the basketball and lacrosse schedules were reduced from 20 to 16 games. Ninth grade teams will no longer be bused to Weeks Junior High nor will the swim squad be provided busing to Newton North five days a week. Additional cuts at South include:

- Ice rental time reduced 23 percent.
- Ticket takers reduced 33 percent.
- Supplies and materials reduced 11 percent.
- Uniforms and equipment reduced 11.5 percent.
- The elimination of one-half an assistant for boys soccer.

"The money saved here was enough to keep all our sports," said Winkler. "We were very fortunate but what's going to happen during the second year of 2½ we don't know."

"We can't cut equipment and supplies any more. We're only buying replacement uniforms," he added. "What is really needed is an influx of money."

Williams, noting the emotional and physical development athletics provide, said it was unfortunate people look toward athletics as one of the first places to cut funding.

"Unfortunately some look upon athletics as a frill despite taking up only one percent of the school department's operating budget," Williams noted.

A recent listing showed that Newton North's athletic budget was second in the Suburban League to Waltham's budget of $218,000. Waltham endured a 28 percent cut from a year ago while Cambridge was slashed 47 percent in its athletic department, Brockton, 32 percent and Brookline 25 percent.

In the Dual County League, Newton South's budget was $39,000 more than its closest opponent, Lincoln-Sudbury ($142,000).

Active life suits Upper Falls man

By Donna Lombardi
staff writer

UPPER FALLS—Wherever the action is, that's where Andrew Shen likes to be.

A former political reporter who for nearly two decades covered international politics in Southeast Asia, Shen describes himself as a person who likes to be in a busy environment.

"Wherever it's active, that fits me," says Shen, an Upper Falls resident.

Shen, 43, a native of the northern inland province of Chekiang, China, is no longer a reporter, but he's keeping busy at his new post at the foreign air desk of Garber Travel Company in Brookline, a job that he says "suits him."

As an expert on Chinese customs, Shen has been advising company officials and potentials travelers on trips to China. He was recently given the opportunity to return to his homeland, which he and his family were forced to leave 33 years ago.

Though Chinese society has changed since Shen left , he points out that one ancient tradition has remained the same- Chinese hospitality.

"The Chinese people are traditionaly friendly. Hospitality is an honor of the family."

Shen's family was forced to leave when he was a young boy because his father was an official of a government that lost control to Mao Tse-tung in 1949.

"He was a manager with the Salt8 Administration," explains Shen. The administration was a government organization that controlled the salt industry in China. When Mao gained control of the country, government officials under Chiang Kai-shek were forced to flee, or face punishment by the new communist regime.

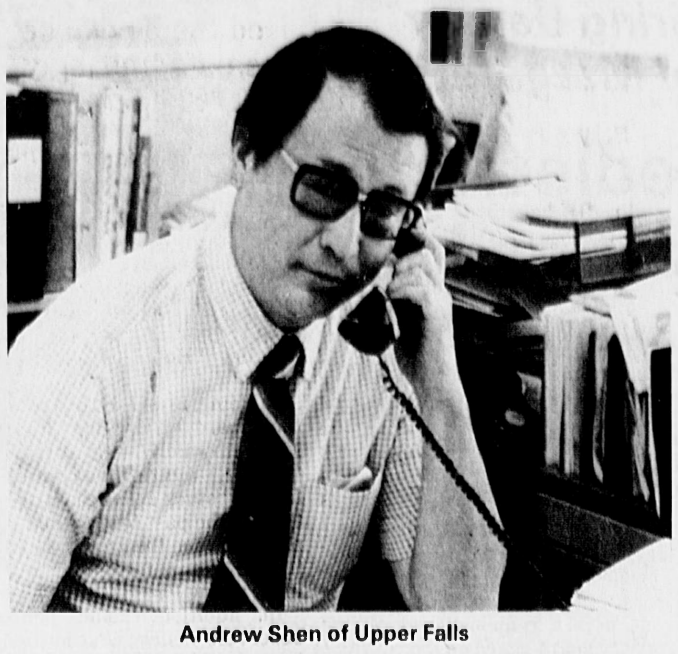

His family, which included his parents one brother and three sisters, moved to Taiwan, where they heard reports "of tyrranny, trials without jury."

Shen and his family lost contact forever with the friends and relatives they left behind. "We thought we might cause trouble for them."

However, Shen tried to find any family members who might still be alive, as he returned to China last summer.

"My mother gave me a list of relatives from two hometowns," Shen remarked.

But when Shen gave the list to a guide, he was warned that he might not find any family members, particularly the older ones. The guide explained that they might not have survived the years of civil unrest.

Andrew Shen of Upper Falls

"I found no relatives," Shen remembers, but he waited waiting for communication from the guide who said he might still find them.

Shen was in Peking, which is least 1,500 miles from his hometown, so he was unable to visit his hometown during his short stay.

While living in Taiwan, Shen recieved a degree in journalism from Chengchi University. After one year in the Taiwan army, which is a requirement, he taught high school student for two years.

In 1963, he joined the Central News Agency as a correspondant. "I was in charge of diplomatic news," says Shen who adds that he had a close relationship with United Press International (UPI) reporters.

The CNA, which is partially controlled by the Taiwan government, was trusted by the government, according to Shen.

"The CNA plays a central role for national propaganda in Taiwan society," says Shen, emphasizing the fact that the country is united by the threat of China.

"The CNA is very much incorporated with the government."

Shen followed two years as a wire service correspondant with several years as a television reporter with the Taiwan Television Enterprise. He quickly admits to making the switch in mediums "because there's more money in it."

Although he enjoyed broadcasting because it was an"active job" Shen says, "I still like writing better." He continued to work for Taiwan newspapers until 1977, when his father became terminally ill.

By that tine, his family had moved to the United States and settled in Needham. Though they urged Shen to join them, he admits to worrying that he would not enjoy as comfortable a living in the United States, as he enjoyed in Taiwan.

However, he made plans to stay in Needham while his father was ill then return to Taiwan.

But Shen stayed in the ara settling with his wife and teenage son in Upper Falls. His father had died two days before he arrived in the United States, and he says,"I guess I felt guilty."

But the United States, says Shen, is a place he's now used to, although he was unable to find a job in journalism because he could not speak English.

"The longer you stay, the more you like it," he says of this area of the United States.

Be he is still fond of China and urges people to visit there. "It is quite different from what a traveler will see anywhere else in the world. Don't expect to see Miami Beach or New York City. It's unique in someting else."

"The people are different, very friendly," says Shen, who stressed that travelers would enjoy the traditional Oriental designs in landscapes and architecture, as well as the modern convienences, such as an impressively clean subway system.

Shen related an interesting experience he had while in the Forbi den City. He saw a young woman in a restaurant who wore colorful western clothing, makeup, and accessories. Although she was Oriental, she did not dress like the other Chinese woman, who still prefer the low key clothing prefered by the communists. But when the young woman left the restaurant, she covered herself with a traditional, inconspicuous Oriental jacket. "When she put it on, she looked like everyone else," says Shen.

Many of the Chinese people are still hesitant to adopt western ways, he emphasized, noting that the communists stress a "single model"

But Shen considered it a very successful trip, and suggests others would "have a marvelous time there as well."

Mann wants strict review of county budget

NEWTON — With a new law giving the Middlesex County Advisory Board power to cut the county budget, Mayor Theodore Mann has called for a "strict review" of the budget.

Mann, recently elected president of the advisory board, said that the county budget will be scrutinized closely for the first time.

"We are going to examine every facet of county expenditures," Mann said. "For the first time, we will have some clout...Now, at least we will have a say on how are dollars are being spent."

Mann has appointed a budget review committee to scrutinize the budget. In addition, he is setting up a meeting with the county commissioners and treasurer to facilitate the budget review.

Mann, a longtime opponent of county government, said the county should "develop a budget with the same kind of constraints that the cities and towns faced under Proposition 2½."

He added: "I still feel county government is an anachronism. Many of these responsibilities (county services) can be picked up by the state."

After a vote by the Board of Aldermen last year, Newton withheld its county assessment to protest of the lack of service and high cost of county government. Under a court decision, the city was forced to pay the assessment.

"We will expect to get the cooperation that the new law requires," Mann said.

City purchaser fears new law adds to red tape and hardships

By Steven Burke
Staff Writer

Purchasing agents in cities and towns throughout the state are concerned that a new state law designed to prevent corruption in the awarding of contracts may discourage competition and force smaller companies out of the bidding process.

The law, chapter 579, was the result of the Ward Commission's recommendations. The commission studied corruption in the awarding of state building contracts.

Newton Purchasing Agent Blair Kanbar said that the New England Purchasing Agents Association has formed a sub-committee in an attempt to amend some of the stringent requirements of the law.

The statute requires that bidders go through an extensive pre-bid procedure and demonstrate bonding capacity. The law also requires that companies file a certified financial statement.

Kanbar said the law creates "red-tape" and causes bidders "undue hardships." He said purchasing agents are not interested in "watering down the law," but making it more "workable."

He noted, "We want to make it more realistic."

"We just want to encourage more competition," explained Kanbar. "We feel this will discourage competition in smaller bids and create higher pricing that will be passed on to cities and towns. I don't think that was the intent of the law."

Kanbar said the law was "well intentioned," but "drafted in some haste." He also noted that few towns are complying fully with the law and the state does not have the personnel to police cities and towns.

Referring to Newton, he said: "We are trying to comply as fully as possible." He stressed that the law requires bidders to file an overwhelming amount of paperwork.

Kanbar recently met with aldermen and State Rep. Susan Schur (D-Newton) to discuss the problems posed by the new law.

Voter approval for incumbents

Two conclusions can be perceived about Proposition 2½. The property tax restraint measure is being implemented without all the disastrous consequences predicted by some, with real estate levies taking a pleasing dip, for one thing.

Moreover, mayors who were being hit hard away back as messengers bearing the bad tidings aren't suffering reprisals at the polls.

This week's Newton election was a good example. Incumbent Ted Mann, who has had his troubles with working revaluation into the new order of things, gained a handsome salute from the voters with 61 percent of the total in a three-man field and his largest winning margin.

Bruce Marquis, a political unknown until only a few months ago, achieved a modest surprise by taking second place and the right to face Mann in the runoff. He edged Alderman Mark White despite the latter's greater political exposure over a long period as a liberal activist.

Apart from acceptance of the Proposition 2½ aftermath, some Newton and Waltham parallels could be discerned. Like Mann, Waltham's Arthur Clark has had a long stretch in the chief executive role. Although his margin was by no means as great, nor his percentage of the vote in a four-man field, Clark had continued broad support through most of the city's precincts.

Even as frontrunners, the two mayors can be expected to bear down heavily on objectives as they seek to consolidate voter strength.

Farm advice needed

A complaint from the Middlesex County Farm Bureau over rough treatment on financial support by the Legislative Committee on Counties is worth heeding. Both Waltham and Newton have a stake in the action, even though farming this close to Boston is far from what it was a few decades ago as commerce consumes acreage.

Nub of the Farm Bureau's gripe is decision to cut County Extension Service personnel by 70 percent, much more than in any other region.

"In a state already 85 percent dependent on imported food, can we afford to deprive farmers and gardeners of expert advisers? When so few of our children live on farms, is it wise to decimate the urban and rural program of 4H?

Further: "What kind of a mess are we in when Beacon Hill doorkeepers are funded before agricultural experts, 4H leaders, or home economics?

These questions are pertinent. For proof of interest in agriculture locally we have the weekly Farmers' Market beside Newton City Hall, drawing fresh produce from scores of growers and hundreds of customers. Waltham is a focal point as the site of the University of Massachusetts Field Station and there are numerous area roadside truck garden outlets.

Agriculture should be sustained, not further choked off by imprudent cutbacks. Our feeling is the Extension Service, a valued resource for the farmers, should not be dealt so great a blow.

Pairing Barney and Margaret?

Redistricting battles loom

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The redrawing of congressional districts has become the major political battle of 1981 in state legislatures from coast to coast.

House seats are reapportioned among the states every 10 years based on the results of the latest census. The states then have to redesign their congressional districts so that all of them are roughly equal in population.

The 1980 census has forced states in the Northeast and the Midwest to give up 17 House seats to states in the South and the West.

The Republicans are waging a well-financed campaign to insure that most of those seats move from Democratic to Republican hands.

This effort centers on a Washington computer bank that provides Republican state legislators with redistricting plans favorable to their party. The GOP strategy seems to emphasize adding even more Democratic voters to districts that are already solidly Democratic, thus making neighboring districts more vulnerable to Republican takeovers.

As expected, the Republicans have scored some gains in the 15 states that have already adopted redistricting plans. But it appears that they will fall short of their goal of shifting a dozen seats to the GOP column next year through reapportioning and redistricting.

Twenty-nine states have not yet adopted redistricting plans. (Six states do not have to do so because they have only one representative in Congress.) Democrats will probably lose seats in Illinois, Michigan, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

They may lose another in Massachusetts, where Democratic Rep. Barney Frank may be placed in the same district with Republican Rep. Margaret Heckler. It's certain that some big battles lie ahead.

Frank was elected to Congress last after besting Waltham Mayor Arthur J. Clark in a hard-fought primary. Frank replaced Rev. Robert Drinan, who was forced to cancel reelection plans on orders from the Vatican.

The Republicans' greatest victories so far have come in Indiana and Texas.

In the Hoosier State, where the GOP controls the governorship and both chambers of the state legislature, the Republicans rammed through a plan that is likely to change the composition of the state's congressional delegation from six Democrats and five Republicans to three Democrats and seven Republicans. (The state will lose one House seat.)

Texas, which is currently represented in the House by 19 Democrats and five Republicans, will gain another three congressional seats. A coalition of Republicans and conservative

They may lose another in Massachusetts, where Democratic Rep. Barney Frank may be placed in the same district with Republican Rep. Margaret Heckler. It's certain that some big battles lie ahead.

Democrats pushed through a redistricting plan that may well enable the GOP to pick up at least six seats. Observers predict that all three of the new seats will go Republican in 1982 and that three moderate Democrats — Jim Mattox, William Patman and Martin Frost — will be in jeopardy because their districts that have been made more conservative.

California has been the only bright spot for the Democrats in the redistricting battle. Democrats currently hold 22 seats in the state's congressional delegation to the Republicans' 21. The redistricting plan enacted by the Democratic-controlled state legislature could add as many as seven Democrats to the delegation in 1982.

The Democrats are likely to win the state's two new House seats in 1982. Moreover, the redistricting plan threatens five Republican representatives while protecting all 22 Democratic incumbents.

For instance, the Democratic registration in the district of Rep. Robert Dornan, a conservative Republican, will increase at least 10 percent from its current 56 percent. Republican incumbents John Rousselot and Carlos Moorhead have been placed in the same district, and Republican Bobbi Fiedler will have to run for reelection in a far more liberal district.

Furious California Republicans say they will either challenge the plan in court or try to force a state referendum on the subject. Party officials say they will gather 350,000 signatures on petitions within the next 90 days to force an election.

Purse strings with a string

By J.J. Smith
State Columnist

Now that Tip O'Neill has been ground into mincemeat on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives, President Reagan has painted up a new bullseye – and the intended targets have reason to be concerned.

The reference is to local and state governments, politicians who for years have complained that Washington controls the purse strings and that controls from the nation's capital were hampering local and state lawmakers. Sure, there was great glee in accepting huge federal projects and grants but the complaint was that "the feds" told them exactly how to spend every last cent. Mandates and guidelines strangled them, they complained.

Now President Reagan is kayoing those mandates and guidelines, cutting them free of restrictive strings and giving local governors and officials the money to spend – with no strings involved. Under Reaganomics, local authorities have the responsibility of spreading the largess – putting them in an exposed and politically threatening position.

Predictably, the moans and wails proclaim that the "truly poor" will suffer. However, despite cuts made in virtually all programs, the actual reduction in available funds will not be nearly as large as is feared by some. Through the "block grant" principle, different levels of administrative costs which ate up a big slice of the appropriations are being stripped away.

The problem for the state governors and local officials is if the President's promised "safety net" fails to appear, the anger may not be directed at Mr. Reagan but at the local politicians now spending the money. Whether talking about rent subsidies, medical programs or other forms of social services, if they are reduced or abolished all Reagan has to do is point out the money was given to the local boys, and say "Ask them what they did with it."

What this does is to provide a handy and available new bullseye when frustrated recipients want to know who to blame for cutbacks — it'll be the local politicians directly in the center of the target. Until now, folks with problems were belting that huge all-absorbing pillow known as the federal bureaucracy, and the poor and the needy had no chance of winning. Most stopped fighting.

What this does is to provide a handy and available new bullseye when frustrated recipients want to know who to blame for cutbacks — it'll be the local politicians directly in the center of the target. Until now, folks with problems were belting that huge all-absorbing pillow known as the federal bureaucracy, and the poor and the needy had no chance of winning. Most stopped fighting.

In a sense, the new Reagan policy could be called "people power," for the first time in their lives the people will be able to know what's available in various programs, and have direct access to those responsible for shelling out this largesse. They'll have retributive power at the polls.

This poses awesome problems for state governors, state officials and local officials. They can't moan they don't have the money because it'll be there. There can't be payroll padding at the direct cost of reducing programs. Sloppy, slipshod agencies locally won't be subsidized without question as they were as part of the sprawling federal bureaucracy. Every cent must be used wisely, and accounted for at local levels.

That's why local governors and others are not happy with the new Reagan economic policy as it concerns them. It'll be their responsibility to streamline programs, set up realistic priorities and be accountable for every dollar, every decision made.

Presiden Reagan has thrown down the ultimate gantlet. He's giving the municipalities, counties and states what they said they always wanted — the chance to control this spending. Nobody knows whether the Reagan plan will work but if it doesn't the fault should be easily placed. And the "people power" wielded locally may have repercussions that will change the face of state and local governments in amazing ways. Time alone will tell.

Spare us the full-time pols

One question kept bothering me. Why? Why, did other states elect top-notch representatives and senators while Massachusetts gets stuck with economic illiterates whose only regular productivity is corruption, crime commission reports, taxes, and indictments? Why?

By Edward F. King

On Saturday, Sept. 19, this writer was privileged to be the guest speaker at the annual convention of the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) in Colorado Springs, Colorado. In case that you are not familiar with ALEC and its goals, let me state that the organization is open to legislators from all 50 states. At present, there are 1,300 members, all of whom are state senators, representatives, or assemblymen.

I was invited to speak because the leaders of ALEC wanted all of their members to hear about Propostion 2½, the founding of Citizens for Limited Taxation, the media reaction, and all other aspects of the tax revolt in Massachusetts. Knowing the hostility with which I am treated by legislators in Massachusetts, it can be said fairly that I arrived in Colorado with some trepidation.

My fears were soon disspelled and I was well received. In fact, the question and answer period was more than friendly. The Democrat Speaker of the New Mexico House of Representatives actually asked me why our limitation figure was so high. He correctly pointed out that our choice of a property tax equal to 2½ percent of fair market value still left us well above the national average and still among the highest taxed people in the United States.

I met and talked with many legislators from all parts of our nation. To say that I was impressed with their sincerity, intelligence, commitment, and quality would be an understatement. In fact, their contrast with the average Massachusetts legislator was both stark and disturbing.

One question kept bothering me. Why? Why, did other states elect top-notch representatives and senators while Massachusetts gets stuck with economic illiterates whose only regular productivity is corruption, crime commission reports, taxes, and indictments? Why?

I asked questions. And I think I may have the answer.

Other states have part-time legislators. Some are unpaid, many have small and insignificant salaries; most have limited sessions. For example, New Mexico has a 3-month limit to complete all legislative business.

What do these part-time, low-pay legislators do for the rest of the year? They go out into the real world and earn a living. They are farmers, ranchers, lawyers, doctors, business owners, sales agents, housewives, etc. And their contact with the working world keeps them in touch with economic reality.

I've heard people running for office on the promise of being a "full-time representative." After my Colorado eye-opening, all I can say to that is "Heaven spare us."

Race was not beauty contest

It's important to clarify the preliminary election results for Ald. Robert Katz.

His opponent, Marcy Richmond, did not engage in a race to win constituents either on the basis of her attractive good looks or on the basis of expenditure of "vast" sums of money.

It is clear to all of us in her ward who personally met her over the past summer that she is a bright, engaging and dedicated woman. She has focused on Newton in it's struggle with long-range issues and has found some very impressive solutions.

It is naive to believe that anyone today can present themselves in a public image format without expenditure. All of us trying to sell our products in the marketplace are keenly aware of the high costs of promotion in paper products, printing and mailing.

Mr. Katz, you are in the business field.

So you see, we voters in Ward 8 are quite cognizent of the difference between running "a beauty contest" and a political campaign. The difference shows in the results of the Sept. 22 election.

Revaluation methods topic of League forum

NEWTON — The League of Women Voters of Newton and the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Revaluation Forum on Wednesday, Oct. 14, at the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre at 7:30 p.m.

The evening program is planned to acquaint citizens with the methods used for the revaluation of residential and commercial property in Newton.

R. J. Finnegan & Associates, Inc., and Bob Palmer and Harold Brady of the Board of Assessors will make the presentation which will be followed by a question and answer period.

Admission to the Revaluation Forum is free and the public is welcome. For more information, call 969-1507.

Rare coin appraisals at Main Library exhibit

NEWTON CORNER — Rare Coin Investment Seminars will be offered on Tuesday, Oct. 6 and Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, as part of a a month-long program on rare coinage presented by New England Rare Coin Galleries.

The rare coin educational seminars, professional numismatic appraisals and consultations, and rare coinage exhibits will highlight October events at the Newton Free Library.

Numismatists from New England Rare Coin Galleries will be at the Main Library on those days from 3 to 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to bring in its favorite rare coins and currency for free professional numismatic consultations and appraisals.

Rare coinage including its historic and aesthetic value, rare coin collecting, and investing for fun and profit, and the fluctutating market will be just a few of the topics discussed during the seminars. Participants will also have a chance to look at rare coins and to see related photographs, slides and other visual materials.

The exhibit, "Introduction to Rare Coinage," will be featured in the six cases in the Newton Corner Library building. Viewers will see materials that describe how coins are made, coin dies, and examples of the key types of coins which represent American coinage.

There will be a visual survey that covers the origins of coinage and the varieties available for collecting, and a look at early U.S. and California gold coinage. There will also be a photograph and text display on the Buffalo Nickel which was designed by artist James Earle Frasier.

To register for the seminars or for further information call 552-7145. There is no charge for library programs.

Conservators feature photographic exhibit of 'Newton Outdoors'

NEWTON CORNER — The Newton Conservators' exhibit "Newton Outdoors" will be on view at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, from Oct. 7 - Oct. 21.

Photographs along with a guide to Newton's parks and information on the preservation of open spaces will be included in the exhibit.

During October the conservators, Newton's citizen environmental organization, is sponsoring guided walks in three of Newton's parks and a tour of solar installations at Newton homes.

The walks, co-sponsored with the Conservation Commission, will be on Sundays from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m., Oct. 4 at Novitiate Park; Oct. 18 at Webster Conservation Area East; and Oct. 25 at Webster Conservation Area West. Call 552-7021 for more information.

On Saturday, Oct. 17 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. citizens can tour solar installations including a solar green house, a new solar house, and a solar pool. Call 527-1928 for information.

The Newton Conservators is actively concerned with the preservation of Newton's remaining open lands for public benefit. The Conservators led the city-wide effort for city acquisition, with the aid of state funds, of the Webster Vale and Novitiate Park. They strongly supported the neighborhood — led campaigns for similar acquisitions of Norumbega Park and the Chestnut Hill Country Club.

Since their founding, the conservators have taken public stands on environmental concerns such as air and water quality, floodplain/wetlands zoning, waste recycling, road salting, and noise control. They welcome new members. For further information write: Newton Conservators, Box 11, Newton Centre, Ma. 02159.

Newton Centre retail district thrives

Dynamic

NEWTON CENTRE — When Murray Cohen and Tom Heidgard were negotiating with representatives of the Lil Peach convenience store chain last winter for a franchise, they tried to convince the "experts" that Newton Centre was not a typical shopping district.

There are few among the more than 80 retail storeowners operating within the four-block radius who would say otherwise.

Newton Centre for the business-wise entrepreneur continues to be a thriving marketplace despite a tightening of the belt and the proximity of the Chestnut Hill Mall. With a curious mix of retail stores, service enterprises, and sophisticated gift shops, the district retains a dynamic ambiance all its own.

If one can locate a parking space, the Centre is a fun place to shop either because of the aesthetic appeal of the Piccadilly Square complex or the uniqueness of shops such as the Shell Gallery on Union Street.

Patrons, and the treatment they receive here, are also an intricate part of the district's success.

"What we try to do is treat customers as though they're in a Newbury Street store," admitted Cohen, the proprietor of Murray's Liquors on Beacon Street and co-owner of the convenience store.

"Newton is considered a very strong market and Newton Centre is probably the best retail market in the city," noted Economic Development Director Sterling Hale. "The business there reflects both the image of the city and the areas that surround it."

"Newton Centre probably serves a market that is more affluent than a typical village shopping area," continued Hale. "And as long as the economy of Newton remains strong and the people in the community have the amount of disposable income they do, the area will continue to be healthy."

"We told them (Lil Peach) that in order to be successful here the store had to be done a little differently from the typical Lil Peach store," said Cohen.

"Hey, this is Newton Centre, not somewhere else, and we told them if they want to be successful here we didn't want the low end stuff," Cohen said. "They were experts in the food business but we knew Newton Centre. What we wanted was a higher grade of merchandise and a better decor."

The business, which is open until midnight nightly, is not surprisingly doing solidly.

Seven years ago when Cohen opened his first Newton Centre store the pickings were not as good.

"There was just nothing from Langley Road on that generated any type of traffic," said Cohen, noting the changover in businesses. "This end was dead."

On the other end, where Piccadilly Square now stands, the future was also bleak. Not until 1975, when developer David Zussman saw the potential of the Centre Street building, did this locale undergo revitalization.

"This section of Newton at the time we bought it was very depressed yet it abutted an affluent, thriving community," said Zussman, who plans to revitilize the area behind 49-61 Union Street and name it Piccadilly Gardens. "The old buildings were substantially neglected and what we did was revitalize it because we felt there was a market here to support it."

Today, all four corners of Newton Centre are turning profits as they are producing customers for their business neighbors. Several indicators - the rising cost of rent from $4.5 to $10 per square foot fives years ago to as high as $16 a square foot today; the increasing amounts of money outlayed toward business improvements; and the high density of pedestrian traffic - say that business in the district is generally very good.

"There's a lot of demand to get in here," said Heidgard, owner of Newton Seafoods and co-owner of the Lil Peach enterprise. "Most of the businesses here are doing very well."

The demand for office space in the district also attracts top dollar as shown by the current rehabilitation of the Methodist Church on Beacon Street by Architect Rudy Badar.

The building, which contains 31,000 sqaure feet of office space, was purchased in February 1980 and should be renovated by the end of next spring.

"The location is good because it is one of the better shopping districts," said Badar. "And because of the availability of public transportation (the green line) it is very convenient as far as office use."

Newton Centre district thrives

There is also a sense of community among the storeowners, many of whom who are from Newton, that strengthens the area. "Absentee ownership," a disease that effects many suburban shopping areas, has slid by Newton Centre.

"Basically we're a solid community based commercial area and for the most part we service our own," said Heidgard. "I'm inclined to say that whatever one is offering, they should make sure it is good and competitive with prices."

And despite the proximity of the Chestnut Hill Mall, the Newton Centre district has not been hampered. "If anything," said Hale, "the area has been helped by the advent of the mall."

Hale, in noting the differences between the shopping areas, said the mall serves a more regional clientele while the Centre services the shoppers of the immediate communities. "A lot of people would rather shop in Newton Centre," added Hale, alluding to the impersonal vastness of Chestnut Hill. "Also, the two areas provide different types of services for the most part."

"Essentially, the mall is meeting part of that demand and Newton Centre is meeting the other demand of the market," he added.

Heidgard, also president of the Newton Centre Association for Commerce, noted that with growth and the added influx of people, the parking problem in Newton Centre has become acute.

"My customers will often say they drove around the block three times to get to me," said Heidgard. "You know you lose business because of that."

The problem with parking is one most proprietors feel will not go away. It can, however, be alleviated with the aid of the business community.

"Business people have to be responsible and park as far away from the area as possible," said Louis Songer of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce. "Also, people who take the MBTA must be detered from parking in the Centre for the day."

MBTA offers discounts to monthly pass buyers

BOSTON — Sales of MBTA Pre-Paid monthly passes have reached an all-time high in September with 82,000 passes sold to commuters, General Manager James F. O'Leary said today.

"The MBTA is encouraged by such a large sales volume of commuters buying passes," said O'Leary. "We hope that more commuters take advantage of the monthly pass allowing purchasers unlimited use of the (T) for one set price. Commuters save money by purchasing the pass and do not have to wait in line for tokens."

O'Leary noted that everyone buying an October pass, which are on sale now, will receive a discount voucher worth $2 off the price of each ticket to the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Baily Circus coming soon to the Boston Garden. Passbuyers also receive discounts on auto insurance and admissions to various museums and cultural attractions throughout Boston.

"The record sale of monthly passes is due in part to the fact that pass prices did not increase with general fares on Aug. 1," said O'Leary. "Although pass prices increase in October, buyers of multiple-mode transportation passes will receive a greater discount than before and all pass buyers achieve a savings over token prices."

Old Almanac predicting snowy winter

By Ron Amadon

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The 190th Old Farmer's Almanac is predicting a snowy but warmer than usual winter for much of the country.

And for those who come down with the sniffles despite the mild winter, the almanac advises chicken soup is among the best of home remedies.

Abe Weatherwise, the almanac's fictional forecaster, claims he has been 80 percent accurate since his yellow-jacketed almanac was first printed in 1792.

Unlike the forecasts of colonial days, this data is now put into a computer along with "Time honored weather trend observations." Weatherwise takes that information and converts it into the time-honored verse that makes up his long-range forecasts.

The almanac predicts a major cold wave and snowstorm will move into the East and extend into the Southern states during late December and early January. Above-average snowfalls are predicted for parts of New England, the Midwest, the Ohio Valley and the northern Rocky Mountain region during the 1981-82 winter.

Milder-than-normal temperatures will occur throughout most of the country during the winter. The Western and Great Plains states will enjoy a warmer and drier winter despite a wet February and March east of the Rockies.

Spring will be colder than normal and summer and early fall will be dry, Weatherwise says.

Along with keeping Weatherwise alive, the almanac maintains other traditions. A small hole is still punched in the upper left corner so farmers can put it on a hook next to the stove or in the bathroom for reading on cold winter's nights. The usual charts on the stars, the tides and the gestation table for animals are also included.

Featured articles deal with the joys of owning a pet cricket, ("They don't eat very much") and menus from a cookbook used by the residents of Shishmarf, Alaska, including taste treats such as owl, bear feet, seal flipper and ice cream made from reindeer fat ("Any berries can be added to it.")

In keeping with the onslaught of winter, the almanac also contains a four-page article on folklore cures for the common cold.

Standing on one's head underwater, wearing a bag of onions, or drinking yourself to intoxication will do nothing to cure a cold, the author says. Neither will inhaling dry licorice leaves or growing a mustache.

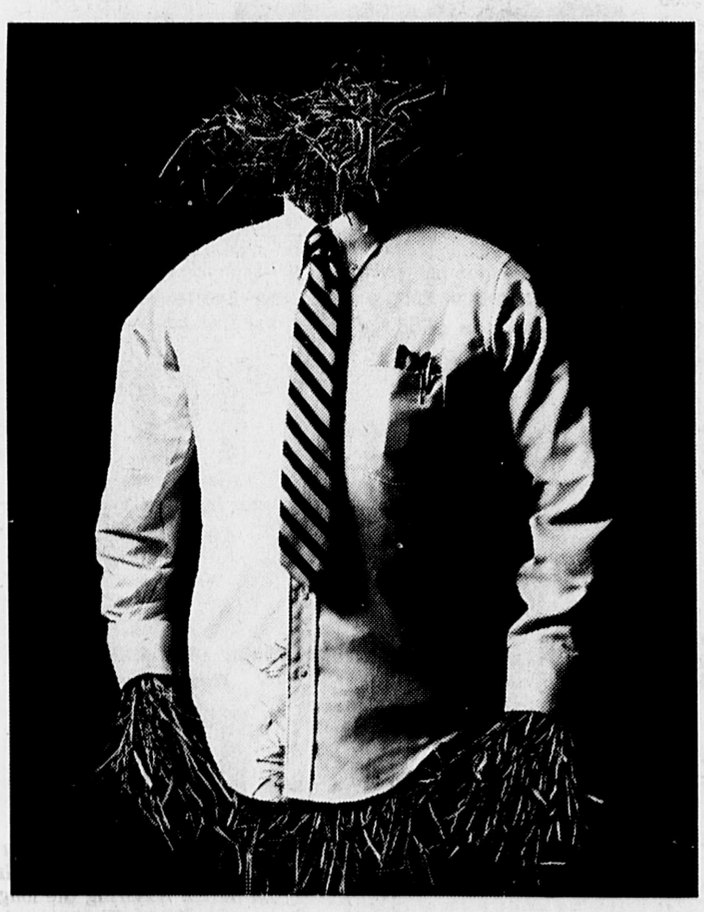

But a bowl of chicken soup will clear up sinus passages faster than other hot beverages, the article maintains.

NEWTON CORNER — Mayor Theodore Mann designated Saturday, Sept. 26 as "Helen Sandstrom Day" in the City of Newton, as Sandstrom, a long-time Newton Corner resident, was honored at the historic Pomroy House, where an elderly apartment was dedicated in her name.

Sandstrom, who for 30 years was director of the Pomroy House, located at Church and Eldridge Streets, Newton Corner, was the guest of honor at an open house of the Pomroy home, where many area residents were given tours of the three-story structure.

The 84-year-old Grecian style home will soon be a luxury condominium complex, featuring a caretakers apartment and four condominiums, in addition to the elderly unit which will be leased by the owners to the City of Newton under the rental assistance program.

Mayor Mann, who presented Sandstrom with a framed certificate, praised her for "distinguishing years of service" when she directed various activities at the Pomroy House and for her involvement at the Grace Church on Eldridge Street.

He also pointed to Sandstrom's present involvement in other programs, such as teaching a crafts course at the Carroll Center for the Blind on Centre Street, Newton Corner. In addition, Sandstrom, who is now retired, created a newsletter for elderly people in nursing homes and continues to be active in programs at the Grace Church.

"The government is a composite of so many things," Mayor Mann said to Sandstrom and a crowd of about 75 people, "particularly people like you."

Sandstrom, who briefly addressed the group of familiar faces, said, "All of you helped make the Pomroy House. You've all worked together in a loving way. Thank you for the honor that has come to me."

A brass plaque on a wall of the elderly unit identifies the apartment as the Helen Sandstrom Suite.

The street level apartment features a large combination living room and dining room, a bedroom, breakfastroom, kitchen, a full bathroom that has been modified for elderly use, and a fireplace. There is approximately 1100 square feet of room.

According to Mel Lipson, who developed the complex with Charles Nelson, an architect from Newton Corner, the complex will be completed in 30-45 days.

"Some fine finish work needs to be done. That's much more painstaking," Lipson said.

He estimated that it would cost $800 to $900 to run the apartment, however no more than $400 is paid to the owners, he said. Under the rental assistance program, the City of Newton determines how much the occupant pays the city.

Many of the Newton Corner residents who attended the event were pleased with the renovation of the home, which for the last 15 years belonged to the Pomroy Foundation and the Newton Community Service Centers (NCSC). The NCSC sold the house after the Davis School in West Newton was made available to the organization. One of the stipulations of the sale was that it become taxable property, so it could not be sold to a non-profit agency. In addition, Newton Corner residents urged that the historic value be preserved.

In renovating the Pomroy House, Lipson and Nelson were able to maintain the structure's historic quality, such as the detailed woodwork, and restore the outside.

Built by Freelan and Francis Stanley, inventors of the Stanley Steamer for the exclusive Hunnewell Club for men, it was sold to the NCSS when the Hunnewell Club could no longer afford to maintain the house.

The largest unit, on the third floor, features detailed archways, matching steercases leading to a spacious loft, Palladian windows and skylights. A winding steercase leading to a 200 sqaure foot square foot sun deck. It also features a pedastil sink, installed by the Stanley brothers, and a Ludwig pianno.

Sandstrom, who briefly addressed the group of familiar faces, said, "All of you helped make the Pomroy House. You've all worked together in a loving way. Thank you for the honor that has come to me."

Katie Lenaman, a Newton Corner resident, said she was happy with the restoration. "It's important that old buildings be restored."

Another Newton Corner resident, Harry Crosby, who is a member of the Planning and Developement Board, said, "I'm very much in favor or restoring it." He also praised Lipson and Nelson for working closely with neighbors as the two worked on renovating the house.

According to Lipson, 97 area residents signed a petition last spring that favored Lipson's and Nelson's plans to renovate the house.

It was all her day

Free school programs to explore science's mysteries

BOSTON — Every school in Massachusetts is eligible to participate in the free, 1981-82 Collaborative Education Program at Boston's Museum of Science, Museum officials announced this week.

Through action by the state legislature, all public, private and parochial schools may receive free admission both to the museum and to one of 17 specially prepared programs.

Topics such as sound, fire, cold, and miscroscopic life are stripped of their mysteries in the 45-minute program for children. Two topics are offered for the first time this year.

The first is "A Maya Expedition," for grades 4 and up, which is based on the museum's exhibit, Copan - Ancient City of the Maya. Artifacts similar to those displayed in the exhibit lend realism to the discussion, which focuses on the ways archaeologists read clues to vanished cultures. The program is adapted to the grade level of each student group, and includes a tour of the extensive exhibit.

The second new program is "Now Hear This," for grades 5 through 12. A series of lively demonstrations illustrate the properties of sound and speech. Originated or modified at the museum, the demonstration devices include a color organ, a computer that identifies voices, a drum that puts out a candle, and a gun that blasts off unheard in a vacuum chamber.

Other programs suitable for kindergarten through high school cover astronomy, biology, chemistry, and natural history.

Two new exhibits are also of particular interest to school groups. Opening Nov. 18, Mathematica: A World of Numbers and Beyond, is a non-academic approach to the fun of numbers with several do-it-yourself challenges. Shown previously in Chicago and Los Angeles, the multi-unit exhibit is now on long-term loan to the Museun of Science.

Opening in January is The Brain, a museum-designed exhibit which emphasizes the role of electricity in that organ. Films, models, EEG laser tracings, and preserved human and animal brains are among the unusual displays. Visitor participation devices range from a test of reaction time to an opportunity to activate an artificial arm used by amputees.

In recent letters to school administrators and PTAs, the Museum said that although the museum visit is free to school groups, the cost of transportation must be paid by the communities.

Teachers and school administrators may obtain a brochure of information by writing the Museum of Science, Boston, MA 02114, or calling (617) 723-2500, ext. 350.

Ethics Commission to hold hearings on interest law

BOSTON — The State Ethics Comnission held the first in a series of public hearings on the conflict of interest law, M.G.L. Chapter 268A, in Boston from 10 a.m. to noon.

Subsequent hearings will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 13, in North Dartmouth, at Southeastern Massachusetts University College of Visual & Performing Arts, Room)53, from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. and on Wednesday, Oct. 14, in Northampton Court House, Room 1, from 7 - 9 p.m.

Members and staff of the commission will hear testimony about proposed changes in the conflict law. The commission will consider this testimony along with written comments and suggestions in developing a package of amendments for submission to the 1982 legislative session.

The conflict of interest law has regulated the conduct of all individuals serving state, county and municipal government for almost 20 years. In recent years, especially since 1979 when the commission began to interpret and enforce the conflict law, there has been an increasing awareness of the law and what it means to people serving in or doing business with government in Massachusetts.

The commission now hopes to propose amendments which further the basic purpose of the law while adapting specific prohibitions to the ways government has evolved since the conflict law was enacted in 1962.

In inviting comment and testimony at the hearings, the commission has identified several areas for consideration, including the following: 1) To what extent should employees be prohibited from entering into contractual relations or have other employment with agencies of the same level of government that employs them?

2) How should section 19 apply to municipal employees with family members who are also employed by the same town?

3) Under several sections of the law, certain employees termed "special" are subject to less restrictive requirements than are other public employees. Should the method by which employees are designated as "special" employees be reformed?

4) Should individuals providing information to the commission be protected by making it illegal to discharge or take adverse employment action against them because they filed a complaint, provided information or testified at a commission proceeding?

EG&G reports firm will meet growth goal

WELLESLEY — EG&G has reported its primary earnings per share for the year 1981 will exceed earlier expectations and will meet the firm's long-term growth goal of a 20 percent gain over last year's reported $1.93 per share.

Speaking during a one-day seminar for investment analysts at the firm's corporate headquarters in Wellesley, Freed added that 1981 sales will approach, and possibly surpass, the $700 million level. The yearly seminars are presented for financial analysts and other investment specialists.

This year, 45 visitors were briefed on EG&G's management concepts and marketing strategies. In addition, detailed presentations were given on the company's commercial and government operations and on its new hydroelectric and coal-gasification ventures.

During the commercial operations review, it was noted that Quality Measurement Systems, a small unit of EG&G employing 60 persons, was divested in mid-August. EG&G's overall employment is continuing to rise, however, and now exceeds 18 thousand people worldwide.

Arts in Parks plans local trips

NEWTON — The Arts in the Parks program of the Newton Recreation Department is planning two trips to museums close to home.

The Museums of Cambridge will be explored with Connie Devereaux, an associate director at Harvard. After a short briefing over coffee in Cambridge, enjoy a guided tour of several Museums, followed by lunch at the Kennedy School Library Cafeteria and be back in Newton by 3:30 p.m. The trip is limited to 12. Fee of $15 includes transportation, museum admission, guided tour and coffee and lunch.

On Wednesday, Nov. 4, a trip to the Worcester Art Museum has been planned. The Museum's world famous holdings which span 50 centuries of art and sculpture will be the focus of the tour. Luncheon has been arranged for us by "Across the Street" at the Museum. The cost of the trip is $15.

To register for one or both of these trips, checks made payable to Arts in the Parks should be sent to Arts in the Parks, Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, Mass. 02166.

DeNucci co-sponsors resolution to end wave of fear among elderly

BOSTON — Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci (D. Newton-Waltham) has co-sponsored a resolution urging President Reagan and Congress to "alleviate the fears of those millions of Americans who would be adversely affected by any reductions in the social security system."

"The President has sent a spear of fright through our elderly citizens by indicating his intention to reduce social security benefits. Many of our elderly survive solely on what they receive from social security.

"To even suggest there might be a reduction in benefits is frightening to the elderly," DeNucci, House Chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, said.

The House resolution : states: "That the Massachusetts House of Representatives urges the President of the United States and the Congress to make every effort to alleviate the fears of those millions of Americans who would be adversely affected by any reductions in benefits and to maintain the levels of benefits promised to the Nation's elderly, disabled, widows, and children which are essential to the ... system."

Economist Paul Samuelson speaking at Boston College

CHESTNUT HILL — Economist Paul Samuelson will speak on "Reflections on the Post-Keynes Age" at Boston College, McGuinn Auditorium on Wednesday, Sept. 30, at 4:30 p.m. The lecture is free and open to the public.

The Nobel-laureate's lecture is the first of the Alice E. Bourneuf Lecture series, to be held annually in honor of Boston College's first tenured female faculty member in the College of Arts & Sciences.

Samuelson, the first American to receive a Nobel Prize in economics (1971), is institute professor of economics at MIT. He was a long-time colleague and friend of Bourneuf, who died last December.

For additional information, contact the Boston College Economics Department, tel 969-0100, ext. 4671.

Party will benefit aid to hospital

UPPER FALLS — The 1981 Party Day, sponsored by the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Aid Association to benefit the hospital, will be held on Oct. 21.

Chairman of this year's program is Mrs. Christy Rufo of Newton. Her co-chairman is Mrs. Jeffrey Ewell of Weston.

In addition to the traditional bridge, coffee and dessert parties, a special attraction this year will be a piano recital by Gretchen Bachrach Hutton. She will perform, with commentary, selections from Haydn, Schuman, and Bartok.

The performance will be in Allen Riddle Hall at 1 p.m. Proceeds from the 1981 Party Day program will be used to purchase a hemodialysis machine.

King names Cantor to agency post

WEST NEWTON — Governor Edward J. King has administered the oath of office to Mr. William VanNoorden Cantor, of West Newton, to the Advisory Council on Small Business.

"William's experience, along with his service to the public sector," said Governor King, "amply prepares him for this position."

For the past 9 years, Cantor has served as president of the E. C. Hilliard Corporation, in West Newton, which is a precision metal fabrication company.

After attending River High School, Cantor received his bachelor's degree from DePauw University in 1971.

Cantor is a member of several professional organizations: the Associated Industries of Massachusetts; the Smaller Business Association of New England; and the East Boston Savings Bank, where he is a trustee.

Bryant Club holding brunch

WALTHAM — The Boston Bryant Club will sponsor a champagne brunch at the Hillcrest in Waltham, Ma., on Sunday, Sep. 20, 1981 at 11:30 a.m. with a cost of $10 per person.

Dr. William T. O'Hara, president of Bryant, will attend with Dennis C. Macro, vice president for Institutional Advancement, and Joan Sorensen, director of Alumni Relations.

This year's Steering Committee for the Boston Bryant Alumni consists of Cathy Anderson, '80, of Needham, Ma.; Maribeth Benedetto, '79, of Newton, Ma.; Jean Lofgren, '80, of Needham, Ma.; Andrew F. Resnisky, '78, of Newton Upper Falls, Ma.; Sheldon Spector, '69, of Lexington, Ma.; Sidney and Kathy (Quint) Tinson, '68, '69, of Walpole, Ma. and Marion (Harrington) Witt, '44, of Weston, Ma.

The Steering Committee encourages Bryant alumni to join them at their first event for the 1981-82 season.

Cafeterias survive despite fast-food craze

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
United Press International

It was a simpler time, a more innocent time, a time when small luxuries provided big occasions. It was 40 years ago, when kids whose parents had scratched through the Depression had little experience eating out.

To ride the streetcar downtown, to attend a movie in a gilded palace like the "RKO Orfyum" and then to have dinner at a real cafeteria, a wondrous place of gleaming chrome and exotic aromas where a person had a choice of what seemed to be a thousand things to eat — in the years that straddled World War II, THAT was an event.

The chicken pot pies, their steamy, creamy insides waiting for a fork; the Salisbury steak (what an elegant name for hamburger!) with a snowy mashed potato volcano complete with crater of brimming brown gravy; the quivering ranks of red and yellow Jello wearing identical dollops of whipped cream; peach and cherry pies teasingly revealing their rich and gooey fillings through lattice-work crusts — those were some of the delectables that gave reality to the parental injunction, "Your eyes are bigger than your stomach."

Is all this now gone with the wind? Has the styrofoam-boxed hamburger, the cardboard barrel of fried chicken and the soybean "milkshake" captured the nation's stomach? Has fast food murdered the great cafeterias of America?

Answer: Not quite, not yet.

The oldtime cafeterias, at least some of them, live on in places like Peoria, Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Petersburg and Washington. There is even a real Automat, the fast track version of the middle American cafeteria, left in midtown New York.

The heyday of the full service cafeteria was 1925-1950. There have been a number of cafeterias built and opened in the last 30 years, but the evidence points to World War II as the cause of the cafeteria's decline in this country.

"After World War II, people just stopped eating in cafeterias as much," says Teddi Oppenheim, an aide to Kansas City cafeteria operator Justus W. Putsch.

"I think so many men came home from the war tired of standing in lines. They had the attitude they weren't going to stand in lines anymore for anything."

There are several oldtime cafeterias where you still can find lines every day.

Not far from downtown Dallas is the Highland Park Cafeteria, a 56-year-old local establishment which is regarded with some of the same possessive fondness as the city's football team and has gained some of the same broad fame.

"You can just say its the greatest cafeteria in the world and that would be enough," Mildred Foster told the New York Times in a recent long story on the Highland Park establishment.

The Dallas cafeteria, which is reported to be a personal favorite of pianist Van Cliburn and merchant Stanley Marcus, has a toney clientele drawn from nearby wealthy suburbs. But owner Ed Yates, son-in-law of the founders, says Highland Park is for "the little old lady down the street on Social Security" as well as for the rich and famous.

Yates, who has just opened two new suburban cafeterias, is not worried about fast food competition: "I have a feeling that fast food places are not affecting us. They've got their own markets. People get tired of french fries."

The Highland Park also is said to be popular with the Hunt family of oil and silver fame, and that is a link with another famous cafeteria, Sholl's, in the national capital.

Sholl's was the favorite Washington eating place of the founder of the Texas family, the late H.L. Hunt, who was said to be partial to the rhubarb pie and the low prices — both still available. There was a report that humorist Art Buchwald briefly tried Sholl's after a falling out with his regular haute cuisine French restaurant.

Sholl's has several downtown branches, the latest in one of those massive center city shopping complexes called Esplanade Mall. A branch that opened 25 years ago and still flourishes is called Sholl's "New Cafeteria."

The business was started by Evan A. Sholl in 1928 and at 81 he still checks out the premises every day. With Sholl's cheap good food — meat loaf was 75 cents and liver and onions 95 cents in the spring of 1981 — customers get cards with prayers of thanksgiving for Protestants, Catholics and Jews at each table.

Bromley said the choice includes seven to nine different meat dishes, 10 to 12 vegetables and 15 to 20 deserts daily. The average check is $2.70 and a meal that included the most expensive meat, two vegetables, rolls and butter, salad, desert and drink would come to about $4.50.

At Putsch's, there are nine entrees every day, always including fried chicken and roast beef. Also to be found at meatloaf, chicken and noodles, veal cutlet, hash, stews, barbecues, baked and fried fish and sausage and spaghetti. It also has about 15 salads, 10 vegetables and 10 deserts every day.

Baked meat loaf was going for $1.98 and deep sea codfish for $2.27 earlier this summer. Ms. Oppenheim estimated the coast of a well-balanced full meal at $4.

The Highland Park is said to be a little more expensive than many downtown cafeterias, but its variety is mind-boggling: 18 meats, 35 salads and 24 vegetables a day. A full dinner was estimated in the Times story to cost around $5.

A number of the cafeterias also have specialties that regulars rave about. At Putsch's, it is the spinach salad; at Robertson's a Huguenot torte, the recipe for which the proprietor says was given to him by his daughter one day 25 years ago when she returned from spending a day at a family friend's home.

As might be expected, a hot jalapeno macaroni is a speciality at the Highland Park. So is a desert made of pineapple, nuts and whipped cream, called "millionaire pie."

At 81, Evan A. Sholl, founder of Sholl's cafeteria in Washington, D.C., checks out the premises every day.

Beer battle is brewing

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The G. Heileman Brewing Co. may be reaching for a roundhouse punch in what its brochures once called the "Mississippi roadhouse brawl" between the nation's beer barons.

The one-time industry bantamweight (45th in 1960) is trying to buy the ailing Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. of Milwaukee in a $494 million deal that would make it a strong No. 3 in the nation.

The move could open a new front in the beer wars that have closed hundreds of small breweries and changed the industry that made Milwaukee famous.

The famed old-line Milwaukee breweries have not fared well.

Schlitz, once the industry leader, is being sold, it's Milwaukee plant shuttered for good although the corporate headquarters will remain in the city. The Pabst Brewing Co. is struggling with management problems, red ink and sales as flat as a day-old glass of beer. The Blatz Brewing Co. exists only as a label in the Heileman line.

The Miller Brewing Co. is a subsidary of Philip Morris, Inc., the huge tobacco conglomerate. While it is No. 2 in the industry, it is stalled — at least for the time being — in its bid to supplant Anheuser-Busch Inc., of St. Louis.

A merger would pit the 1980 No. 4 brewery (Schlitz) and the No. 6 brewery (Heileman) against Anheuser-Busch and Miller.

"I think this is important to the survival of Heileman and Schlitz," said Heileman president Russell G. Cleary. "We're fighting two very large companies in the industry and it's important we be a survivor."

There has been, he said, an "inevitable trend (in the brewing industry) that you had to be bigger to survive. You had to go forward or move backward. We saw an opportunity to build a bigger and better company."

The deal still has to be approved by the directors and shareholders of both firms as well as by the Justice Department's antitrust division.

A combined Heileman-Schlitz would have total beer sales of 28.3 million barrels and a brewing capacity of 40 million barrels.

A-B was the far away leader in 1980 when it shipped 50.2 million barrels, followed by Miller at 37.3 million; Pabst, 15.1 million; Schlitz, 15 million; Coors, 13.8 million, and Heileman, 13.3 million.

Miller — fueled by strong sales of Miller Lite, a low calorie beer introduced nationally in 1975 amid a classic advertising campaign — made most of the industry's headlines in the 1970s.

The executives Philip Morris sent to Miller were market-oriented and honed by the cigarette wars. They emphasized advertising and packaging and had a keen understanding of a segmented market.

For a time, it appeared Miller might be able to challenge Anheuser-Busch, but sales leveled out the past few years, leaving the St. Louis brewer in firm control of the No. 1 spot.

Located at La Crosse on the Mississippi River in what ad writers like to call "God's country," Heileman — established in 1853 by Gottlieb Heileman — ranked as the 45th largest brewer in the country in 1960 with sales of 385,000 barrels.

In 1971, Cleary took over as chairman and president after the death of his father-in-law, Roy Kumm, and pushed an acquisition program in which Heileman acquired several regional breweries.

The pattern was basically the same. Heileman would take over the acquired brewery's wholesaling operation, improve it and then introduce its top selling brands — Old Style, Special Export and Blatz — into the system.

Already strong in the Midwest and on the West Coast, the acquistion of Schlitz will give Heileman strength in the southeast, three modern Schlitz breweries at Memphis, Tenn., Longview, Texas, and Winston-Salem, N.C., a strong wholesale network and six additional national brands — Schlitz, Schlitz Light, Erlanger, Old Milwaukee, Old Milwaukee Light and Schlitz Malt Liquor.

Take out calories from Chinese food

THE SLIM GOURMET
Calorie-conscious cooking

By Barbara Gibbons

By BARBARA GIBBONS

When someone suggests "Chinese take-out" why not think of ways to "take out" the calories ... by making the food yourself at home? While popular "Chinese food" menu items may not be as fattening as some other fast food or take-out choices, some dishes can be deceptively high in fats or sugars (or both!)

Today, we pick three popular items from "Column A," all extra easy to do at home. You can make these in less time than it takes to drive to the restaurant, and save calories as well as gas.

Our "fried rice" isn't fried at all, and contains no fat or oil. What it does contain is extra vegetables. This makes a good side dish to serve with a simple main course like broiled chicken, lean hamburgers or fish, basted with a little soy sauce. A salad, and some melon for dessert complete a nutritious family meal.

'FRIED' RICE WITH ORIENTAL VEGETABLES

10-ounce package Oriental vegetables
1 cup fat-skimmed chicken or beef broth (or water)
1 cup instant rice
optional: pinch of ground ginger
1 egg plus 2 egg whites (or 2 whole eggs, or equivalent no-cholesterol egg substitute) half-cup finely minced onion
3 tablespoons soy sauce

Combine vegetables and broth in a saucepan. Cover and simmer until vegetables are just defrosted. Stir in rice and ginger, if desired; heat until broth or water returns to boiling point. Remove from heat and cover tightly. Set aside for 10 or 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, beat egg with 1 tablespoon cold water. Spray a large nonstick skillet or electric frypan with cooking spray. Pour on the egg mixture. Cook over low heat until nearly set, then mince the cooked egg into shreds with the tines of a fork. Remove the shredded egg from the skillet and set aside.

Spray the skillet with cooking spray and add the chopped onion. Cook over high heat with no fat added until onions just begin to brown. Now, combine all ingredients in the skillet. Cook and stir with a spatula until heated through. Makes six servings, approximately 125 calories each.

One of the least fattening dishes on the pop Chinese menu is "Moo Goo Gai Pan": diced cubes of chicken breast and vegetables in a clear sauce. Served with rice, it makes a complete meal ... with virtually no fat, if you prepare it our Slim Gourmet way. It's extra easy to make at home, using frozen mixed Oriental vegetables, with extra onions and mushrooms added.

LOW-CALORIE MOO GOO GAI PAN

1 large sweet Spanish onion, halved, sliced
1 cup thinly sliced fresh (or canned) mushrooms
2 tablespoons sherry wine half-pound chicken cutlet (1 skinless boneless breast), in 1-inch cubes three-quarters cup fat-skimmed chicken broth
10-ounce package mixed Oriental vegetables, thawed
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons cold water
2 teaspoons cornstarch (or arrowroot)

Spray a large nonstick skillet or electric frypan with cooking spray. Spread the onion and mushrooms in a shallow layer. Add the sherry. Cook over high heat, uncovered, until wine evaporates. Turn vegetables with a spatula and continue to cook, just until they begin to brown. Stir in chicken and broth; add defrosted Oriental vegetables. Cover and simmer 3 to 4 minutes, until vegetables are tender-crunchy and chicken cubes are opaque. Combine soy sauce, cold water and cornstarch (or arrowroot) until smooth, then stir this mixture into the skillet. Cook and stir over low heat until thickened and clear. Makes four complete meal-size servings, 140 calories each (half-cup plain cooked rice per serving adds 110 calories).

EGG DROP SOUP

3 cups fat-skimmed chicken broth (homemade or reconstituted)
2 teaspoons arrowroot (or 1 tablespoon cornstarch) cold water
1 egg

Heat broth to boiling in a saucepan. Combine arrowroot (or cornstarch) with quarter-cup cold water and stir into a paste; gradually add to the simmering broth over low heat, stirring until soup thickens slightly. Beat the egg with 2 teaspoons cold water. Off the heat, slowly stir the egg into the soup mixture. Makes four servings, 50 calories each.

NATURE'S KITCHEN

A 'sandwich' and salad dinner Mexican-style

By Mary Sutro Durkin

When reliable standbys begin to lose their appeal at family meals, we can look to other countries for new twists on old favorites. For example, Mexico's answer to a grilled cheese sandwich is called a quesadilla. While quesadillas come in many shapes and sizes, one of the most popular versions features Monterey Jack cheese and chili peppers wrapped in flour tortillas. When quickly fried to a golden brown, the tortillas are transformed into crisp, flaky pastry rolls — a marvelous contrast in texture to the creamy melted cheese within.

Homemade chile salsa is the traditional accompaniment to quesadillas. This spicy, colorful sauce, made of fresh tomatoes, onions and chili peppers, is as popular on Mexican tables as ketchup is in our own country. Starting with the basic recipe below, you can adjust the degree of hotness to suit your own tastes by adding the firey hot jalapeno peppers with caution.

Quesadillas can be served for lunch, as a snack or a dinner time entree. Team them with refried beans on the side to enhance the protein content of the meal, along with a salad of mixed greens, tomatoes, red onions and black olives. To add a spicy Mexican accent to the salad bowl, toss the greens with guacamole dressing, an innovative role for that popular avocado dip.

QUESADILLAS (Serves 6)

1 pound Monterey Jack cheese
1 7-ounce can mild green chili peppers
12 flour tortillas (7 inches in diameter)
oil for frying

Cut cheese into 12 strips, each 6 inches long. Remove seeds from chili peppers, then cut into thin strips. Place a strip of cheese slightly off center along one side of each tortilla. Place chili peppers on top of cheese. Roll tortilla over cheese and chilies. Cover prepared tortillas with a slightly damp paper towel to prevent them from drying out.

In a large skillet, heat half an inch of oil until sizzling. Place three or four tortillas in skillet, seam sides down. Cook over medium high heat, turning several times, until golden brown on all sides. Drain well on paper towels. Place cooked quesadillas in a warm oven while cooling remaining tortillas. Serve with chile salsa and, if desired, various garnishes such as shredded lettuce, grated radishes, chopped scallions, chopped tomatoes and guacamole. If using these garnishes, you will not need a separate salad.

CHILE SALSA (Makes approximately 3 cups)

6 medium-sized tomatoes
1 7-ounce can mild green chili peppers, finely chopped one-third cup scallions, finely minced sea salt and freshly ground pepper canned jalapeno peppers, finely minced (optional)

Finely chop tomatoes. Combine with chili peppers and scallions. Season to taste with sea salt and pepper. Add jalapeno peppers to taste. Store in a tightly capped jar in the refrigerator.

GUACAMOLE SALAD DRESSING

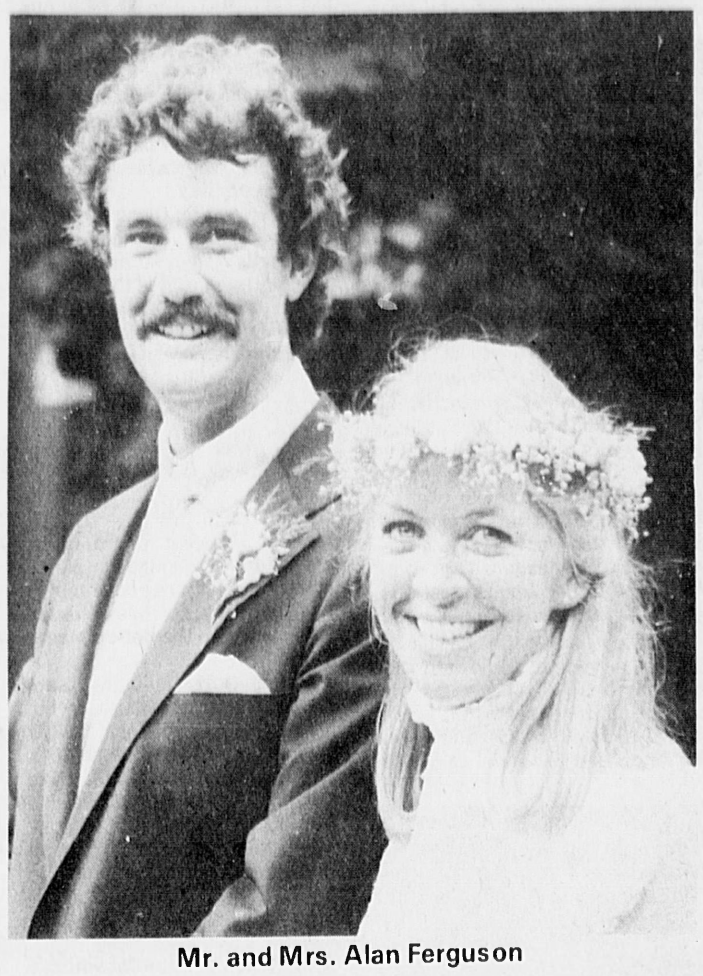

1 large ripe avocado
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon lemon or lime juice sea salt to taste
dash of Tabasco
oil and vinegar dressing

Remove skin and pit from avocado. Mash with a fork until fairly smooth. Stir in onion, lemon or lime juice, sea salt and Tabasco. Blend in enough oil and vinegar dressing to achieve a smooth, creamy texture. Pour dressing over mixed greens, tomato wedges, red onion rings and black olives.

Toss well and serve at once. If desired, garnish with a handful of alfalfa sprouts.

Weddings

Lisa Fallon marries Alan Ferguson in Sudbury chapel

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Ferguson

Lisa Fallon of Boston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fallon of Newton and Centerville, became the bride of Alan Gardner Ferguson of Gorleston, Great Yarmouth, England, on Sunday, Sept. 6.

The ceremony was held in the Martha-Mary Chapel in Sudbury, where a garden reception followed.

The bride, a tour director, received her degree from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Mr. Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson, R.A.F. retired, of Gorleston, is a graduate of Keele University, England. He is an oil engineer currently based in Nigeria.

After a motor trip to California, the couple will live in Cairo, Egypt.

Frances Shaer hears Reagan as Republican women covene

DENVER — Frances Shaer of Newton, president of the Republican Women of Newton, was among the 2000 women who heard a special address by President Ronald Reagan at the 21st biennial convention of the National Federation of Republican Women in Denver Sept. 17-19.

Vice-president George Bush was keynote speaker at the biennial banquet and James Watt, Secretary of the Interior, addressed the Friday luncheon.

Re-emphasizing the NFRW's push on crime were Gov. Jim Thompson of Illinois, co- chairman of the Justice Department's Task Force on Crime and Judge Vincent Femia of Maryland.

College representatives to visit North High in October

NEWTON CORNER — The Counseling Department of Newton North High School is planning two school and college nights for this fall.

They will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 6 and Tuesday, Oct. 27 at 7:45 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Both evenings are open to all Newton North High School students and their parents.

As in the previous school year, there will be no single college visits scheduled during the day for 1981-82. Instead, at these evening programs students will be able to learn about many colleges and universities at one time as well as be exposed to some schools they may never have previously considered. In addition, this will afford parents the opportunity to become better informed about a large number of educational institutions.

All schools and colleges that have visited Newton North during the past few years have been invited to participate. Among those that are planning to attend the college night on Oct. 6 are: Amherst College, Aquinas Junior College, Babson College, Boston University, Brown University, Carleton College, Chamberlain School of Retailing, Dartmouth College, East Coast Aero Technical School, Franklin and Marshall College, Goucher College, Harvard-Radcliffe College, Ithaca College, Katherine Gibbs School, Lafayette College, Lehigh University, Lesley College, Mass. Bay Community College, Mass. College of Art, Mount Ida Junior College, Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing, North Bennet Street Industrial School, Northeastern University, Northwestern University, Oberlin College, Pine Manor College, Plymouth State College, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Rhode Island School of Design, Smith College, Stanford University, U.S. Army, U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Marine Corps, U.S. Navy, University of Colorado, University of Mass. (Boston), University of Vermont, Wheelock College, Williams College, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and Yale University.

Brown Junior High organizes book donation drive

By Donna Lombardi
Staff Writer

NEWTON CENTRE — A Parents and Teachers Association (PTA) member and an English teacher at the Charles Brown Junior High School are organizing an effort to replace some of the thousands of books that were destroyed in the Aug. 15 fire which ravaged the school's library and destroyed several classrooms.

Susan Babcock, a Brown PTA member, and George MacIver, an English teacher, are asking other parents and teachers to donate books to replace roughly 15,000 books that were used by the Social Science and English Departments. Those books were in a storage room adjacent to the school library.

Most of the books in the storage room, as well as some 15,000 books in the school's library, were destroyed. The few books that were salvaged were too badly smoke stained to be used, according to MacIver.

Many of the books in the storage room, which were mostly fiction and paperbacks, are already being replaced, according to MacIver, who has donated many books from his personal collection.

However, storage space is limited, and MacIver is urging people to call him at the school, formerly named Meadowbrook Junior High, before delivering any books. "Right now, I'm using a large classroom (to store books)," MacIver explained.

MacIver has stacked books in that room using shelves from Weeks Junior High School, and shelves from within the Brown school, that other teachers are not using.

"I may get some lumber and construct some (bookshelves) myself," he added.

The informal book drive began recently after Babcock had a "chance meeting on the street" with MacIver. She suggested to MacIver that he compose a list of authors names that are suitable for junior high school reading.

MacIver thought it was a good idea and pursued it by talking with other teachers to find out which authors they had been successful with. In addition, he checked the city-wide junior high school summer reading list, as well as considering books he has used in his 23 years of teaching.

"There are a few ommissions. But the list is fairly complete." There are 97 authors names on the list, which is available from MacIver.

Babcock, who has a son at the school, and two daughters who will attend Brown next year, said she suggested the idea as a way to get books to students "as soon as possible."

"I thought it was the most expediant way to get books into children's hands right away," said Babcock, who is involved in library projects at the Hyde Elementary School, Newton Highlands, where two daughters are attending.

The city of Newton has already begun replacing the library books, according to Louise Freedman, the school librarian for the past eight years. Freedman, an aide and a secretary have been using a large faculty room, adjacent to the cafeteria, since the fire destroyed the library.

Less than 1,000 books have been replaced' according to Freedman. "It's a monumental job," she said, noting that the book catalogs were also burned.

By visiting other schools, and remembering what books the library previously had, she has been able to compose a list of books that the school needs. In addition, she has been searching for books through various book catalogs.

The books are being ordered from several different publishing companies and book jobbers from throughout New England, according to Freedman, who is now waiting for another shipment of books. Freedman and her aides are also working towards a deadline for the next order, which is in mid-October.

Arts Center co-sponsoring trips to theaters for seniors

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Arts Center and the Newton Community Schools are co-sponsoring theatre trips for seniors at special prices, which include roundtrip bus transportation from the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, Newtonville.

The first trip will be to the Wednesday, Oct. 14 matinee at the Colonial Theatre to see Paul Osborn's 1980 Tony Award winning comedy, "Morning's at Seven," starring Rosemary Murphy, Maureen O'Sullivan, Kate Reid, Teresa Wright and Russell Nype.

Frank joins strategy group

WASHINGTON — Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., has accepted an invitation to join a new National Strategy Council being formed by the Democratic National Committee. The Council will hold its first meeting the weekend of Oct. 16 in Baltimore.

The Council size will be limited to about 60 or 70 Democrats from throughout the nation selected from among the leadership of the Congress and national organizations of elected Democratic officials, as well as Democratic members of the House and Senate, governors, mayors, and state, county and local officials.

In addition to Frank, Senators Edward M. Kennedy and Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., were invited by the DNC to serve as members of the Strategy Council.

In his telegram inviting Frank to serve on the strategy council, Democratic National Chairman Charles T. Manatt said the group, which will meet about four times annually, would serve a variety of important functions for the Democratic Party.

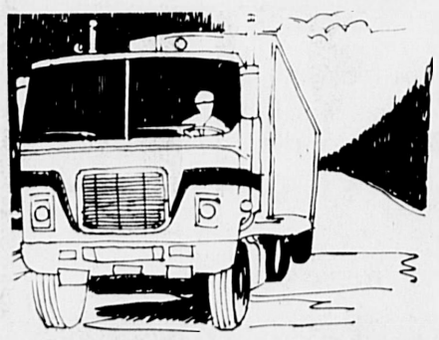

The council will give the party the opportunity to share information and ideas with its "ablest, most active elected officials," Manatt said, and it will provide Democrats nationwide the opportunity to participate in charting the course the party will take during the 1980s.

Manatt said the council would also serve to help unify the party and strengthen Democrats' ability to articulate new solutions to major problems.

Tough standards set as principal search begins

By Sarah Clayton
Staff Writer

NEWTON CENTRE — Wanted: principal for school adjusting to $2 million August fire and first year of grade reorganization. Must be "somebody who likes children" of junior high age.

A tall order to fill, especially the requirement that the applicant like junior high-aged children, Superintendent Aaron Fink joked with Charles E. Brown parents in an open meeting Thursday night at the school.

Fink met with about 40 parents to discuss criteria for the parent/faculty screening committee who will conduct the search for a new principal for Brown. The process for selecting the final candidates will start as soon as possible, Fink emphasized, since the School Committee has asked that the position be filled, if feasible, in January.

The job will be advertised, Fink said, both locally and nationally with an application deadline of Oct. 19. The ad seeks someone for "January or as soon thereafter as possible."

A few parents were concerned by the emphasis on filling the position in January.

Noting that the school is already coping this year with the transition from a three-year junior high to only 7th and 8th graders as well as the recent fire, one parent said, "Frankly, it seems to me that it would be more logical to have one year with an acting principal rather than another transition."

Others were skeptical of the type of candidates who would be available in January, especially if they had left their own schools in the middle of the year.

Fink assured them that there would be no favoritism in judging the candidates based on whether they would be available in January or next September.

Currently, the school is under the leadership of acting principal, William Jesdale. Jesdale served as assistant principal until former principal, Irwin Freedman, announced late this spring that he was resigning for a principalship on Martha's Vineyard.

Fink told parents that the screening committee will be balanced with faculty and parent representation. He added that both the PTA and the faculty would be responsible for naming their own six or seven representatives.

The purpose of Thursday's meeting, Fink said, was to allow the community to draw up their own criteria for what the new principal should be.

Most of the responses were general concerns about discipline, educational excellence and upgrading continuity between elementary, junior high and high school education.

One parent said wanted the academic option continued and another sought a person who would "visibly and demonstrably support his teachers' best efforts."

Other criteria mentioned were "a clear sense of management" and a "principal who can help teachers to grow" in a period where there is little mobility for teachers.

But, there was also some frustration and anger which surfaced as some parents described what they see as problems and failings of the school for a number of years.

"I'd like to know who sets up the philosophy of the school," one angry woman asked Fink. "Is it the principal, the parents, the PTA, the School Committee?"

"If it's the principal, then are we going to be stuck with his philosophy like we were stuck with Dr. Freedman's philosophy. If that's the way it is, then what are you asking us for anyway," she charged.

"I have three kids – two who went to Meadowbrook (renamed Charles Brown). When people would ask my kids where they went to school, they used to say, 'I don't go to school. I go to Meadowbrook,'" she concluded.

As a partial response, Fink said a principal needs to have "freedom to respond to differences in kids and faculty" at his school.

Another parent asked that the new principal have a desire to upgrade all programs "so some kids aren't hit with a ton of bricks at South (High) like I've heard."

Other parents pressed for greater emphasis on discipline because they see problems with vandalism , "cleanliness," modes of dress, smoking and "name-calling." "We'd like to know if there is any hope to raise the level (of "cleanliness" and dress)," one woman asked.

"Very often (at the junior high level), we are confronted by parents who have lost control of their kids for the first time and want somebody else to establish that control," Fink said and noted that that was a difficult problem for schools to solve when dealing with large numbers of kids.

"You're wrong if you characterize this school," Fink urged. "It's not the same as it was 13 or even five years ago."

When asked what problems face principals today, Fink pointed to "fiscal austerity."

"The problem is how do you maintain the energy of a school under this climate," Fink stressed.

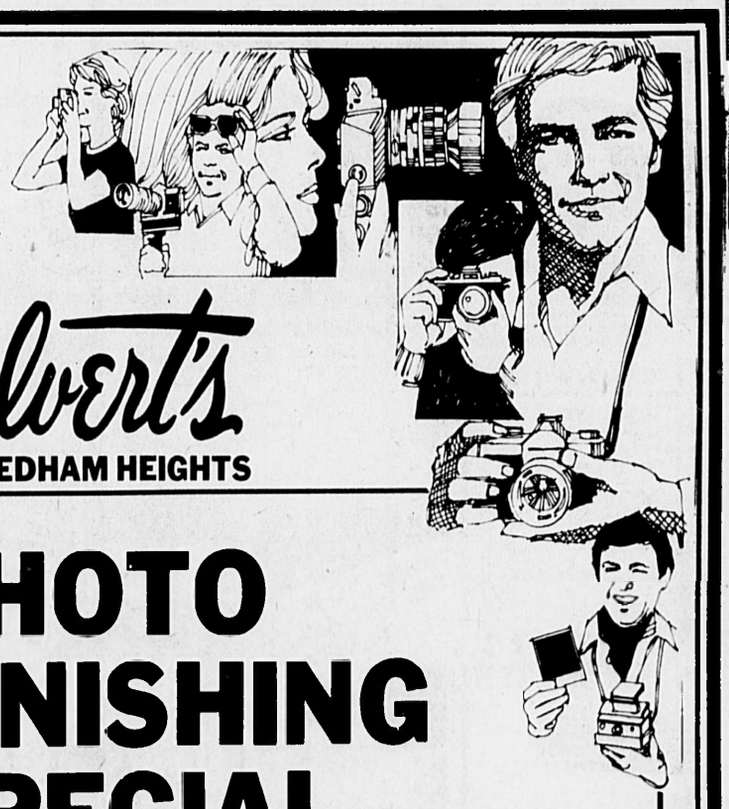

"You won't believe it 'til you see it. You should go over and get a demonstration of the BayBanks X-Press 24™ – It'll completely change the way you bank."

Activities for all ages

NEWTON — Theater trips for seniors, creative movement for pre-schoolers, solar energy workshops for adults are only a few of the hundreds of activities offered this fall by Newton Community Schools.

The complete listing of all programs is available in the catalogue, which will be mailed on Oct. 5 to all Newton households. For the first time, the catalogue will include a special insert of the Department of Human Service's "Golden Times" Newsletter for all residents over the age of sixty.

Registration for all courses will take place from Oct. 9-21, and activities will begin the week of Oct. 26.

Programs for adults will include courses in business, financial planning, exercise, cooking, health, and the arts. Adults will also enjoy a wide variety of special events ranging fron a Cantonese banquet in Chinatown to a seminar entitled "Pregnancy Over 30" to a workshop on furniture refurnishing.

Several innovative offerings have been designed to complement traditionally popular NCS programs. In Newtonville, the Cabot Community School will present U.S. Representative Barney Frank as part of its "Sunday Evening Series." Frank will be preceded by several distinguished speakers from Harvard, M.I.T. and Boston College who will discuss a variety of contemporary social issues.

In addition, the Auburndale Community School will open 12 of that area's outstanding houses for enjoyable walking tours on Sunday afternoon, on Nov. 1.

Teens (age 14 and older) are welcome to participate in many of NCS' adult programs. Students will also enjoy special "Teen Only" activities, such as drop-ins, babysitting clinics and craft workshops.

Activities for children are as varied as those for adults. This fall, youngsters will venture into Boston for a tour of the Federal Reserve Bank, travel south to New Bedford to visit the Whaling Museum, and go north to Salem for a tour of the Parker Brothers Game Factory. Programs for children will also include traditionally popular activites including after-school sports, theater games, arts and crafts, creative movement, sign language and gymnastics.

As a result of NCS' successful "Explore 81" program, academically advanced students now have the opportunity to take Saturday morning courses at Day Junior High. These sessions will stress critical analysis skills and expose the pupils to new areas of study. Students will choose four courses from a group of twelve possible electives that include energy, science fiction, technical drawing, mythology, creative writing and ceramic sculpture.

Pre-schoolers and toddlers will also have ample opportunities to enjoy community school activities. Fall pre-school programs include ballet, art, creative movement, music and storytelling. In response to neighborhood demand, several community schools have developed moms and tots playgroups where young parents may meet, socialize and share concerns with other neighborhood residents.

NCS and the Jackson Homestead will sponsor a series of activities. Taking place at the Homestead, these activities will include discussions on local history, Newton's older residences, and historical preservation. The series will conclude with a Dec. 6 tree-trimming party for children.

Activities for seniors at Oak Hill Park, Thompsonville and Upper Falls include exercise, discussion, and crafts.

Seniors are also invited to participate in a series co-sponsored by NCS and the Newton Arts Center. Entitled "Theater Trips for Seniors," this series consists of four trips to theatrical productions in the Greater Boston area. Beginning Wednesday, Oct. 14, the plays include "Morning's At Seven" with Maureen O'Sullivan, "The Millionairess," "Blithe Spirit" and a play yet to be determined. Round trip transportation is provided to and from the Newton Arts Center.

NCS will also continue its lifetime learning program of academic studies for seniors. Planned with R.S.V.P. and the Newton Community Service Center, the program features seminars in law, energy, Greek drama, great decisions, poetry and psychology.

In addition to the mailings, catalogues will be available at Newton City Hall, local branch libraries, senior Drop-In Centers, and the Education Center. For more information on how you can participate, plan or lead Newton Community School activities, call 552-7118.

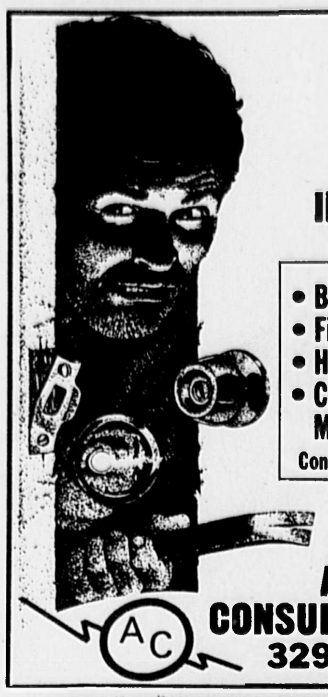

Aging workshop at St. Elizabeth's

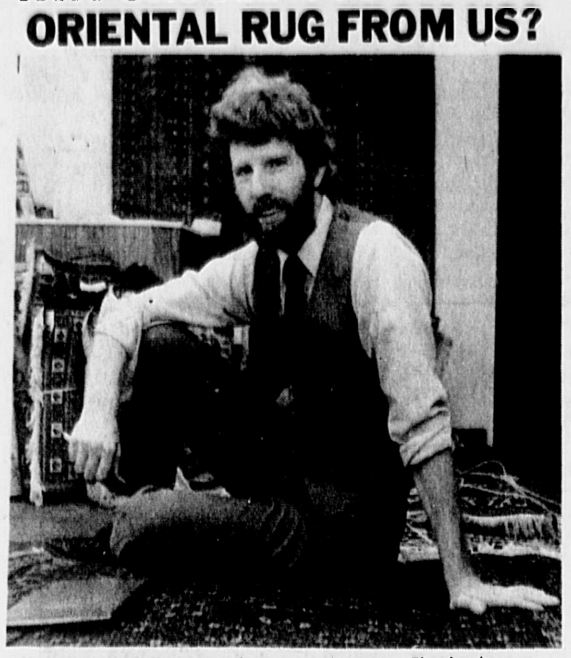

BRIGHTON — St. Elizabeth's Hospital's Department of Nursing, Inservice Education will sponsor a two-day workshop, "Relating Positively to Aging and Older People," for nurses, nutritionists, physicians, therapists and social workers on Oct. 6, 7 and again on Nov. 3, 4, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Keith Auditorium.

Pre-registration is required. Call 782-7000, ext. 2214. The program has been submitted for contact hours and a certificate of attendance will be given. The fee is $30.

The workshop, which is coordinated by Carol Ahern, R.N., M.S., will present current concepts on successful aging and emphasize that aging is a process that is lifelong and unique to the individual. A variety of learning techniques will be utilized to describe the adaptive mechanisms by which people cope with growing older.

Tiger defense turns back Medford

By Bob Duca
Staff Writer

The season is only two weeks old, but already the Newton North Tigers have had enough big plays to last until November. Last week it was the offense which brought them back from the dead. This Saturday the defense took over, picking off three passes and recovering a fumble as the Tigers slipped past stubborn Medford, 15-8, at Dickinson Stadium.

Both Tiger touchdowns were direct results of turnovers. Al Fortune scored on a four-yard run in the first quarter after a Medford fumble and Rich Marchioni swept left end for three yards in the third stanza following a Dave Rowland interception which had placed the ball at the Medford five.

And for the Tigers, that was it offensively. The final stats lead one to wonder how Medford ever lost. The Mustangs had more first downs (nine to eight) and outrushed Newton by a 2-to-1 margin (172 to 85), but they also committed those four costly turnovers as well as picking up 50 yards in penalties. Those kind of numbers tend to stop any offense.

"The difference in the end was that we outconditioned them," said Tiger Coach Norm Walker. "They had eight guys going both ways and it began to show."

It certainly did. Both Mike Todisco (97 yards in 17 carries) and Chuck Veneziano (74 in 18) tired in the fourth quarter. They were the heart of the Mustang offense – handling all but one run from scrimmage – but Todisco was forced out of the game three times in the second half with leg cramps and Veneziano lost some of his spark.

Thus the Tigers took advantage. The offense put together only one long drive all afternoon (a 77-yarder near the end of the first half which came up short), but then, when your defense is giving you the ball at the four and five-yard lines, you don't need too much of an attack.

The Tigers took the lead with just such a 'drive'. They had advanced the ball on their second possession of the game and driven to the Medford 41 before being stopped. A super punt by Bill Zeiner pinned the Mustangs to the 10, however, and after a motion call pushed them back to the five, Bill Drew pounced on a Veneziano fumble to set the Tigers up.

After gaining nothing up the middle, Fortune (45 yards in 13 rushes) burst through a huge hole off left tackle for the score. Peter Munsat's PAT made it 7-0.

The Mustangs' response was a 10-play, 69-yard drive in which they simply blew away Newton's defensive front for the only time all day. Todisco opened it with a 17-yard gallop right up the middle. After an incomplete pass, Todisco ripped off consecutive first down runs of 16 and 18 yards to bring the ball to the Newton 20.

Veneziano then took command, going off-tackle for two yards and sweeping left end for 15 more, giving Medford a first and goal at the three. The Tiger defense stiffened, holding Veneziano to two yards in three straight rushes, but quarterback Warren Olsen snuck it over from the one on fourth down for the score. Medford then took the lead, 8-7, by they faking the kick and handing the ball to Todisco on an end around.

The Mustangs appeared ready to take over when Veneziano intercepted a bad Tim Brandon pass on Newton's next possession and returned it to the 46. Olsen hit Gordon Maloney, who did a straight fly pattern up the right sideline, for 24 yards and Todisco and Veneziano put together runs of eight and 19 yards, respectively, to quickly place the Mustangs at the three with a superb opportunity to take an eight-point lead before the half.

But again Newton's defense, which is beginning to make these goal line stands seem routine, held. The Tigers stopped Veneziano for no gain and on second down, Marchioni flew up from his cornerback position to bury Todisco for a two-yard loss. A delay of game penalty cost the Mustangs five more yards and they eventually had to resort to an unsuccessful 33-yard field goal attempt.

The Tigers also compiled an impressive drive in the final minutes of the half, running off 10 plays and proceeding from their own 17 to the Medford six. Brandon, who split the QB chores with Marchioni, hit all the key plays, finding Mario Proia for 27 yards and Paul Howley twice for 19 and 16 yards. But they never got past the six. "That was our own stupidity," said Walker later, referring to an incomplete pass, a sweep which lost a yard and a motion penalty. "We just messed up. We should have scored right there."

The winning touchdown came early in the third quarter. The Mustangs took the kickoff and moved from the 33 to the Newton 43, but on second and 10 Olsen attempted to hit Veneziano coming out of the backfield. Instead he found Rowland, who stepped in front of Veneziano and brought the ball back 48 yards to the five. Marchioni rolled into the left corner of the end zone on fourth down and three for the TD and with the two-point conversion (Brandon pass to Howley), the Tigers had a 15-8 lead.

They preserved that with defense, halting one last Mustang threat when Neil Hadro picked off a pass with four minutes left at the Newton 18 and returned it 37 yards.

Newton North booters come up flat, lose 3-1

The Newton North Tigers played what coach Emilo Mazzolla called very honestly, "a terrible game," Friday as they were handed their second loss of the season, 3-1, by Cambridge, Rindge and Latin at Newton.

"The whole team was off," said Mazzolla. "Our passing wasn't there, we weren't executing and we weren't very aggressive. We matched up pretty well with Cambridge, but we only played one solid period of soccer. That's not enough."

The Tigers' only goal came in the second period.

Lions unbeatable, rip Weston Smith keys 14-0 Newton AA win

By Greg Porell
Staff Correspondent

Newton South rolled up 357 offensive yards while holding Weston scoreless until late in the fourth quarter and the Lions notched their second-straight win, 41-6, Friday at Proctor Field.

In another impressive display of its offensive weapons, Newton South raised its record to 2-0 while Weston slipped to 0-2.

"I think we did what we had planned to do," said Lions' coach Art Kojoyian. "We have a young group of kids that are playing well."

And that the Lions are. Quarterback Joe Spagnuolo passed for 106 yards, (completing eight of 16 passes) three touchdowns and was the team's leading rusher with 66 yards.

Spagnuolo has two gifted receivers to work with in Mike Antonellis and Dave Hill. Antonellis pulled in four passes for 61 yards and one uchdown with Hill snaring four passes for 45 yards and two touchdowns.

The Lions' defense played a strong game, with Jon Greenberg picking off two interceptions and the rest of the unit turning back the Wildcats' running game and shuting off the Weston passing game except for a short spell in the third quarter and the last minute touchdown pass from Rick Hall to brother Jeff.

Weston had a long day on the field, as Newton South pounded out 251 yards on the ground, but the Wildcats showed a great deal of character by not folding up as the game slipped away in the late going.

"I was pleased the kids didn't give up," said Wildcat coach Howie Neild. "They could of folded by the didn't. It was good to see them come through and score even though it was at the end of the game."

Greenberg's first interception in the opening quarter gave the Lions excellent field position at the Weston 35 yard line. It took only three plays before Newton South tacked the first points on the board as Spagnuolo conected with Antonellis on an 18 yard pass.

Newton South scored on its next possession when it took the ball 45 yards before Art Walton (6 carries for 57 yards) broke over the goal line on a three-yard run.

Weston's offense had trouble getting untrack and crossed the 50 yard line only once in the first quarter and that thanks to two 15 yard penalties against Newton South. A holding penalty pulled the Wildcats out of scoring position on the drive as would another Greenberg interception in the second quarter and a fumble in the third quarter.

"We gave the ball up too much," explained Neild. "We fumbled and gave it up a couple of other times also, but it was the Newton South passing game that won it for them."

The Lions were rolling toward another score in the second quarter before a fumble gave Weston the ball at its own 20 yard line. Newton South started back toward another score minutes later that was capped off with a Spagnuolo T.D. pass to Hill to make the score 20-0 at the time. Newton South recorded six first downs in the second quarter alone and went on to gain 19 first downs in all.

Hill and Spagnuolo connected on a 15 yard touchdown pass in the third quarter that was finished off with a Steve Mosca conversion kick (one of three he made) to make it 27-0.

Walton added his second touchdown run in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter and finished off the scoring with a Jon Greenberg 11 yard touchdown run.

Weston got the ball with 15 seconds left on the clock and the Hall brothers teamed up to score the Wildcats only touchdown of the contest. The conversion kick was blocked by the Lions and the game ended 41-6.

The Lions will be looking for their third victory Saturday against West Roxbury, while Weston takes on Medway.

Garrett Smith piled up 100 yards rushing, including a spectacular 32-yard touchdown run, to power the Newton AA Lions to a 14-0 shutout over Arlington Sunday at Highland Field.

Smith was the pivotal figure in both of the Lions' scoring drives. He started a 55-yard march in the first quarter with a 24-yard burst on an option play. Will Gardner capped that march by going over from five yards and Andy Kohn ran in the two-point conversion for an 8-0 edge.

Smith then did it all in the second quarter. With Newton taking possession of the ball at the Arlington 32, Smith slid through a hole and ran all the way untouched into the end zone on the first play.

Paul Cannata also aided the offense with 45 yards in only six carries. Newton, which has not allowed a point now in two games, were led defensively by defensive tackle Brian Tempte and linebacker Steve Dinisco. Quarterback Steve Altman also played a fine game directing the offense.

The defense limited Arlington only two first downs and less than 100 yards rushing.

Now 2-1, the Lions will be at Watertown next Saturday.

The Waltham Devil Dogs continue to roll winning for the third straight time by a lopsided score.

The Devil Dogs ovewhelmed Watertown, 32-0, Sunday at Leary Field.

Waltham has scored 92 points in its first three games and have yet to be scored on. The Devil Dogs first scoring drive was a four-play 98-yard drive that ended in a 77-yard touchdown jaunt by halfback Frank Tiano. Mark Carsuo kicked the extra point and it was 8-0.

Tiano scored on a two-yard run in the second quarter. Joe Hovespian picked up a Watertown fumble and rumbled over from three yards for another Devil Dog score. Hovespian had two fumble recoveries and an interception for Waltham.

Rich Sampson scored on a 34-yard run in the third quarter for Waltham making it 26-0. In the fourth period, Joe Arena went 67 yards on a sweep for the final Devil Dog score.

The Waltham defense was led by tackles Ray LeBlanc and Steve Schofield. The duo were disrupting the Watertown offense all day. Fullback Lee Wilcox had a good game running for 60 yards. The B team won 32-6 and the C team won 14-0.

The Newton Tigers were victimized by a couple of big plays and the result was a 14-7 loss to Chelsea in a non-league game. It was the first loss of the season for the Tigers.

Mario Valdez put Chelsea on the board in the first quarter on a 15-yard run. The Chelsea quarterback snuck in for the extra point. The Tigers charged back to tie in the second quarter.

The Tigers reeled off an 85-yard drive. It was capped by a one-yard touchdown run by quarterback Fran Yeradi. The conversion tied it as Yeradi hit Tom Dalicandro with a pass.

Chelsea scored the game-winner on an 80-yard romp by Valdez. There was a mix up and the Tigers were caught with just 10 players on the field.

The B team lost 14-0 and the C team won 19-0.

Brandeis nine posts 4 weekend victories

The Brandeis baseball team picked up four victories over the weekend by sweeping a pair of doubleheaders. On Sunday at Brandeis, the Judges defeated St. Anselm's, 4-2 and 2-1. Saturday, the Judges swept Merrimack College, 6-5 and 10-0.

Rollie Nadeau tossed a two-hitter to pilot the Judges to the 2-1 victory over St. Anselm's. Steve Reid drove in the two runs for the winners with an RBI single in the third and a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning.

Bob O'Brien's two-run single in the fourth inning powered the Judges to the 4-2 victory. Jeff Porkorny picthed six innings to earn the win. Reid and Mike Faila also drove in runs for the Judges.

Saturday at Merrimack, the Judges needed a Mike Koffman RBI-single in the seventh inning to edge out a 6-5 victory. Scott Nutting was the winning pitcher, but he needed help from reliever Kenny Silber, who got a pop out with two outs and two on to end the game.

The Judges waltzed to a 10-0 victory behind the one-hit poitching of Faila in the night cap. Ron Russell and Guillermo Caeser had three hits each for the Judges to power the offense.

Laura Stephens took third place in a personal best time of 19:33 to help the Brandeis University womens' cross country team finished second Saturday in a five-school meet at Boston's Franklin Park.

Northeastern University won the event, totaling 22 points. But Brandeis took second easily, finishing with 53 points. Rounding out the order were Emmanuel College (86), MIT (94) and Simmons College (99).

Also finishing the 5,000-meter course and placing in the top 10 for the Judges were Maura Siegal (fifth in 19:47) and Dara Silverman (10th in 22:24).

The race was won by Northeastern's Lisa French in a time of 19:03.

Now 4-2, Brandeis meets Tufts and MIT in a tri-meet Saturday at Franklin Park.

The boys' cross country team suffered its first loss of the season Saturday at Franklin Park. The Judges ran second behind Boston College in a five team meet. The Eagles won the meet with 27 points, while Brandeis had 46. Springfield finished third with 73, Brown had 92 and Holy Cross had 140 over the five-mile course.

Ed Connor was second in the race and the top Brandeis runner in 24:46. George Patriarca was fourth overall for the Judges in 24:57. Fernando Braz of Boston College was first overall in 24:32.

North booters fall flat

The Newton North Tigers played what coach Emilo Mazzolla called very honestly, "a terrible game," Friday as they were handed their second loss of the season, 3-1, by Cambridge, Rindge and Latin at Newton.

"The whole team was off," said Mazzolla. "Our passing wasn't there, we weren't executing and we weren't very aggressive. We matched up pretty well with Cambridge, but we only played one solid period of soccer. That's not enough."

The Tigers' only goal came in the second period. Trailing 2-0 at the time, John Whoriskey took a crossing pass from Paul Baccaro and slipped a soft shot past the Cantab goalie.

Newton PeeWees outskated, 4-1

The Newton PeeWee AA's opened Middlesex Youth Hockey League play Saturday with a 4-1 loss to Lexington-Bedford at the USA Rink in Winchester.

Newton took a 1-0 edge at 4:16 of the first period on a goal by Jay Cappello, but Lexington stormed back with one in the second and three in the third.

"We didn't get a chance to practice much during the week because of a mix-up and it showed," said coach Neil Schwartz. "The kids just ran out of gas in the third period."

Cappello's goal came on a quick wrist shot to the short, stick side of the goalie. He was assisted on the play by Chris Pike and Steven Silk.

Despite the defeat, goalies Neil Ronchinsky, Matthew McNevin and John Golden, who split each saw one period of action, all played fine games.

Schoolboy football preview

Tigers feast through 1st two weeks

By Bob Duca
Staff Writer

It's been feast or famine so far this season with the area football teams. On the one hand, we have Waltham High, Newton North and Newton South. All undefeated. All, to certain extent, very impressive thus far. On the other hand sit Weston High and St. Patrick's. Both winless. Both struggling for respectability. Somewhere in the middle are Watertown High and Newton Catholic.

We shall begin with Newton North, which, while managing to win its first two games, has done so in a very peculiar fashion. The Tigers opened two weeks ago with a come-from-behind 23-14 victory over Framingham North – not really playing well in the process. Last week they knew they'd have to play better to defeat a tough Medford team. They really didn't play all that much better, but they nonetheless won again, 15-8, sending them into next Saturday's Quincy game with a 2-0 record and a small measure of momentum.

The Tigers have relied on the Big Play more than any team has a right to expect to through the first two weeks. Last Saturday the defense took its turn, picking off three passes and recovering a fumble to set up all 15 points.

The fumble recovery by safety Billy Drew – a marvelous performer both defensively and offensively so far – gave the offense the ball at the four-yard line and one of the interceptions by Dave Rowland set them up at the five. Thus, the two scoring drives (?) by the offense came to a grand total of nine yards.

In fact, the Tigers really haven't put together a long, sustained scoring drive yet. They did march to a pair of TD's against Framingham, moving the ball 70 yards in one case, but both those marches were either started or finished by one Big Play. In the former case it was a 57-yard pass from Tim Brandon to Tim Mulvey and in the latter a 51-yard run by Mike Abbruzzese.

A 77-yard drive which came up empty was their only such effort against Medford. "The offense is a worry of mine at the moment," admits Coach Norm Walker. "We haven't been blocking the way we can. We've been missing our assignments."

But, he has no such worries about his defense. After a slow start in their opener, the 'D' has come on to overwhelm their opponents, coming through with two spectacular goal line stands and doing a number on Medford Saturday in the second half.

So what we are left with is the fact that the Tigers haven't yet reached their peak and are still 2-0. It is a good football team which is bound to just get better.

This Saturday they make the trek down Rt.128 to face North Quincy, which had its head handed to them last week, 26-0, by powerful Brockton. But Brockton does that to everybody, so don't use that as a barometer. North Quincy won't be a breather.

In Waltham, the word after Week I was El-Masry and after Week II it became balance. Running back John El-Masry did it all to give the Hawks an opening win over Natick, but last week, with Brookline keying on the senior halfback, Waltham presented two other worthy runners to triumph again, 28-16.

Brookline succeeded in stopping El-Masry, limiting him to 69 yards in 13 carries, but they weren't ready for Tom Roche or Frank Frenna, who picked up 65 and 61 yards, respectively.

That balance helped the Hawks to a 213-169 rushing advantage and the victory. Brookline broke on top in the first quarter on a 55-yard punt return, but Waltham wore the Indians down after that.

El-Masry brought the Hawks back with a two-yard run, Frenna broke a 34-yard TD and then Roche tallied from four yards to give them a 20-8 lead. El-Masry scored another touchdown from eight yards in the third quarter and school was out.

Waltham's next opponent is Weymouth North, which was blasted by Cambridge, Rindge and Latin, 16-0, last week.

Newton South, the third undefeated team, hosts Boston District I's West Roxbury. The Lions are coming off a 41-6 rout of Weston High and appear set for a fine season.

The Lions chalked up 357 yards of total offense Saturday, splitting that nicely with 251 on the ground and 188 through the air. Quarterback Joe Spagnuolo was the catalyst behind it all, completing eight of 16 passes for 106 yards and three touchdowns and also rushing for 66 more.

West Roxbury edged Madision Park last Saturday, 8-6, as Calvin Hill took a 40-yard pass from John Turner for the TD and Rich Clarke caught another one for the two-point conversion.

Watertown takes on Middlesex League rival Stoneham in a 7 p.m. contest Friday at Victory Field.

After opening with a 12-0 win over Dedham, the Red Raiders let a 15-0 first half lead slip away last Saturday and lost, 21-15, to Reading.

Charlie Everett, who had 158 yards in only 12 carries, led the early Raider surge. He scampered 47 yards on Watertown's first drive and then got the initial score with a 65-yard burst.

In the third quarter, quarterback Jim Smith found split end Vic Canino for a 79-yard scoring strike, and after Everett added the two-point conversion on a sweep, the Raiders seemed in complete command.

But it all fell apart as Reading came back with six points in the third stanza and 15 more in the fourth for the victory.

Weston, losers in its first two games by an aggregate score of 77-6, try to regroup at Medway, a 14-9 winner over Medfield.

St.Patrick's, meanwhile, meets Newton Catholic in a Catholic Suburban League battle.

St.Pat's has had a disastrous start, losing twice to Hudson Catholic and Columbus and being shut out both times. The Lancers had a bye last week, but they defeated St. Clement's, 24-12, in their opener.

Ball-carrying balance keys Hawks' 2nd win

By Frank Murphy
Sports Editor

The word is out that future Waltham High football opponents can't expect to key on big John El-Masry and ground the Hawks.

Brookline tried it Saturday at Leary Field and wound up on the short of end of a 28-16 score, the second straight victim of the Bob Connors-coached eleven.

Waltham showed excellent balance in its running attack in overpowering its initial Suburban League rival. There was only a slim margin separating the three top running backs in rushing yardage.

Left halfback El-Masry was top man with 69 yards on 13 carries, scoring twice on tackle smashes of three and eight yards. Fullback Tom Roche chewed up 65 yards on 13 attempts and registered on a four-yard thrust. Right halfback Frank Renna raced 61 yards on eight totes, including a 34-yard breakaway.

There was no question that Brookline came to town with intentions of bottling up El-Masry. The 205-pound tailback commanded particular attention after his spectacular opening-game performance against Natick when he exploded on TD gallops of 57, 46 and 47 yards and totaled 203 yards rushing for the day.

The senior co-captain did his share of the ball carrying Saturday, but was also effective as a decoy and enabled Roche and Frenna to dig out valuable chunks of yardage.

Coach Connors noted, "Brookline was very definitely concerned with John and moved their defensive linemen a little more toward him before any play started. Naturally, we went to Roche and Frenna and they proved that they could do the job."

Connors continued, "One of the things we got out of the game was that it took a lot of pressure off El-Masry. He won't have to figure that he has to gain 200 yards every game.

"Roche, although not a spectacular runner, has great leg drive and was carrying some off his tacklers several yards forward," he added.

The victory didn't come easy by any means. Waltham had several anxious moments. For the second game in a row, the Hawks fell behind at the outset. The Wealthy Towners took an 8-0 lead in the first quarter when tailback Tim McMahon wheeled 55 yards for a touchdown on a punt runback and quarterback Bruce Prunty rushed the extra points.

In the fourth stanza, McMahon got into the open again on a scrimmage run that started at the Brookline seven and he was brought down from behind by Matt Tiano at the Hawk 30 after a 63-yard gain. Brookline went on to punch out its second TD on that drive and pared the Waltham lead to 28-16.

Coach Connors had his second and third stringers in action at the juncture, trying to get them some experience and to see how they could hold up under pressure. Bob summoned his first unit, however, and slammed the door on the visitors.

Waltham turned the contest around in the second period with a 20-point outburst. The initial scoring onslaught was launched late in the first quarter on a punt return by Tiano to the WHS 30. The Hawks reeled off four first downs, and aided by a 15-yard personal foul penalty inflicted on Brookline, sent El-Masry four yards off left tackle to score standing up. Quarterback Mike Mula was sacked by Jeff Brothers on the point-after try and the Indians held an 8-6 lead.

Brookline fumbled away the ensuing kickoff at its 30 and Waltham struck pay dirt again in two plays. Frenna, helped along by a tremendous block by left guard Tony Caruso on 220-pound tackle Steve Kennedy, wheeled 34 yards to the end zone. Mula flipped to Frenna in the left corner for the two-pointer.

A Brookline miscue on a punt put the Hawks in scoring position minutes later. A bad snap from center went to Prunty instead of the kicker, who was tackled five yards behind the line of scrimmage. It took five plays and offsetting penalties before Waltham scored. A hastily contrived pass to El-Masry put the home team inside the 10 and Roche crashed off the left side for the TD.

The final Waltham tally was the result of a nine-play, 69-yard march. The Hawks got possession on a fumble recovery by Bob Qualters. Big gainers in that push were a Mula to Paul Logue pass for 23 yards and a 16-yard jaunt by Roche. El-Masry took it in from eight yards out on a tackle swing. Mula pegged to Marcou for the two-pointer.

"Mistakes hurt us again," rued Brookline Coach Ed Schluntz. "We were intercepted twice, fumbled the ball away twice and there was that bad snap on a punt that put us in the hole."

After evaluating the films, the Waltham coaching staff gave out their weekly awards as follows: Offensive Player of the Week–Frenna. Defensive Player of the Week–Kevin Reynolds. Special Team Player of the Week–Tim Pidgeon.

The Brookline game movies will be shown Tuesday night, 7:30 p.m., at the SDons of Italy Hall, Cedar St., at the weekly meeting of the Waltham High Gridiron Club. Coach Connors will be on hand to narrate the flicks.

Penn State looks good

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Joe Paterno isn't taking any time off to enjoy one of Penn State's biggest wins of his long coaching career.

While his friends and admirers in the Maxwell Club congratulated him Monday for the Nittany Lions' 30-24 victory over Nebraska during the weekend, Paterno's thoughts were centered on Penn State's upcoming match against unpredictable Temple Saturday at Beaver Stadium.

"It's hard to get people to believe this, but we always have a tough time with Temple," said Paterno, making a rare in-season appearance in Philadelphia. "In '78, we won in the last 30 seconds. In '76, we had to stop a two-point conversion with no time left and won by a point.

"The best way to put it coming into a game like this is that I'm nervous."

Since the series was renewed in 1975, the Nittany Lions have won all six games. Three of the victories in the first four years were achieved by a total of five points, but the Lions have won handily the last two years — 22-7 in 1979 and 50-7 last season.

Temple coach Wayne Hardin said his Owls, 2-1 following an upset loss at Delaware Sept. 19, have a bigger rival than Penn State — themselves.

"I don't care whether we're playing Penn State, Delaware or Rutgers, my only interest is in our side of the ball," he said. "It doesn't matter who's on the other side. We're looking for improvement, looking for better execution, looking toward the whole season."

Temple was off last weekend, but Hardin scoffed when it was suggested two weeks practice time would give his team a better chance against the Lions.

Partridge first as Tiger runners capture opener

Paul Partridge placed first to lead Newton North to a 15-36 opening-meet victory over Weymouth North Thursday in a Suburban League meet at Weymouth. Partridge ran the 2.5-mile course in 16:34.

Paul Passavan finished second for the Tigers in 16:36. Rich Austin was Weymouth's top runner placing third. The summary:

1, Paul Partridge (NN), 16:34; 2, Paul Passavan (NN), 16:36; 3, Rich Austin (WN), 16:41; 4, George Fulk (NN); Tom Carleo (NN), 16:51; 6, David Kagan (NN), 16:54; 7, Rob Costello (WN), 17:06; 8, Tony Leary (NN), 17:07; 9, Camb Laing (NN), 17:25; 10, Dan Reilly (NN), 17:35.

Newton North golfers lose 1st match since '79

The Newton North High golf team had an unusual experience on Monday–it lost. The Tigers hadn't lost a golf match since Brookline beat them in 1979 and Coach Jack Neville has suffered only two Suburban League defeats in his four-year career at North.

The streak was broken at 11 straight league wins by Brockton, 163-170. Bill Mackedon shot a 39 for the Boxers to have the low score at Newton's home course, Brae Burn Country Club.

Senior John Drew was the low scorer for the Tigers with a 41. Bruce Corwin was second for North with a 42 and Paul Shainian shot a 43. Kevin Campbell scored a 44.

The loss dropped Newton's record to 3-1 and lifted Brockton's record to 4-0. "We just played too sloppily today," said Neville. "Now, we have to hope someone can beat Brockton to give us a shot at the title."

The Tigers will try to get back on the winning track Friday against Cambridge Rindge and Latin at Fresh Pond Golf Course.

The Waltham golf team lost its second match of the season Monday to Quincy, 184-186, on windy Furnace Brook Golf Course in a Suburban League match.

Mike Fitzgerald was the low scorer for the Hawks with a 40. Gary Manoukian fired a 44 for the Hawks and Bill Thompson shot a 46. Joe Walter rounded out the top scorers for Waltham with a 51.

The loss dropped Waltham to a 2-2 record. The Hawks travel to Unicorn Golf Course and play Medford on Wednesday.

THE WORLD of Travel

by Hank Fleming
TIPPING
An important thing to remember when traveling abroad is tipping. Waitresses, waiters, barbers, hairdressers and porters are usually tipped at least fifteen percent everywhere. However, it is advisable to check with the hotel you are staying at or with the local Information Bureau to make sure. Hotels and hair salons in the city often expect larger tips than do the out-of-the-way places. If on a tour where gratuities are included, it is a good idea to reward for extra services.
Book with confidence through FLEMING WORLD TRAVEL & TOURS, 15 Crescent St., Waltham, whether your next trip is for business or pleasure. We invite you to come in and visit with our friendly staff who keep up to date on the latest intricacies of rates and schedules. If you see an advertisement for a package trip almost anywhere in the world call us with the details and we will do the rest. There is no additional charge to you for our services...your costs are the same as if you booked directly. Open: Mon.-Sat. 9-5:30, Fri. evenings til 8, other times by appt. Phone 899-5658.
THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL: St. Maarten - From $399 - plus tax and service, 8 days, starting November. Departures every Sunday.

Rosh Hashana has its own symbolic foods

By Aileen Claire

The shofar has sounded and marked the start of the Jewish New Year with the observance of Rosh Hashana. The 10-day period, known as the High Holy Days, will end with Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

Rosh Hashana has its own special symbolic foods. Honey and sweet dishes, for example, symbolize the hope that the days ahead will be sweet and happy.

Sweeten your new year with a holiday orange sponge cake and a traditional honey cake.

HOLIDAY ORANGE SPONGE CAKE

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
6 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 orange, sliced
Confectioners' sugar

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In a large mixing bowl, beat egg yolks until light. Gradually add sugar; beat until thick and light-colored, about 5 minutes. Stir in orange rind. Blend in dry ingredients alternately with orange juice. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry; fold into batter.

Pour batter into ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in 325-degree oven 50 to 60 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean. Invert pan over neck of bottle; let cake cool completely before removing from pan. Before serving, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and garnish with orange slices cut in half. This kitchen-tested recipe makes one 10-inch cake, about 12 servings.

HONEY CAKE

3¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup honey
1 can (6 ounces) frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
½ cup vegetable oil
/ cup brewed coffee
4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 cup chopped nuts

Grease and line two 9-by-5-by-3-inch loaf pans with waxed paper. Set aside. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, ginger, allspice and salt. In a small bowl, combine honey, orange juice concentrate, oil and coffee. In the large bowl of an electric mixer, beat eggs; add sugar, continue beating until light and fluffy. Blend in dry ingredients alternately with orange juice mixture. Fold in nuts.

Pour batter into prepared pans. Bake in 350-degree oven 15 minutes; reduce heat to 325 degrees. Continue baking 45 minutes longer or until cake tests done when cake tester is inserted in center. Remove loaves from pans. Cool completely. Remove waxed paper before serving. This kitchen-tested recipe makes two 9-inch loaves.

Needham selling tax exempt bonds

By Beverly Ford
Staff Writer

NEEDHAM — More than $310,000 in tax-exempt municipal bonds will be on sale at the Needham Treasurer's Office next week and local officials, anticipating soaring sales, are confident the bonds will be off the market quickly.

"I think most of (the bonds) will be sold within the first two days," predicted Town Treasurer Julio Farulla, noting that interest in the town's tax-exempt bonds has been "tremendous."

Sale of the bonds was unanimously approved last night after selectmen, at the recommendation of officials from the Shawmut Bank, set interest rates ranging from 8.5 percent for bonds redeemed in 1982 to 9.5 percent for those cashed in 1986.

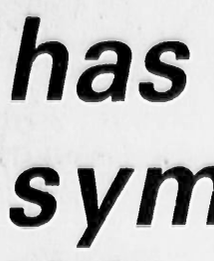

"The market is so starved in Massachusetts for tax exempt, high yielding bonds," explained James Botelho, Shawmut's vice president of municipal finance. He noted that since Proposition 2½ passed, only three municipalities have floated bonds. Botelho added, Needham's AA rating made the bonds even more appealing to prospective buyers.

The bonds, available in $1,000 and $5,000 denominations, will be available from Oct. 5 through Oct. 9 and will be payable in one to five years.

According to a timetable set up by selectmen last night, $81,000 in bonds will be payable on Oct. 15, 1982 at an interest rate of 8.5 percent. Three individual $70,000 bonds will mature in 1983, 1984 and 1985, with rates set at 8.75 percent, 9 percent and 9.25 percent respectively. A $25,000 bond with a maturity date of 1986 will yield 9.5 percent.

Although the bonds and the accompanying semiannual interest coupons may not be redeemed before maturity, they are payable to the bearer and therefore may be sold on the open bond market. However investors who redeem the bonds prematurely will face a penalty.

Money from the bonds will offset short-term loans which had been used to pay for fluoride storage facilities, handicapped access ramps to Rosemary Pool, the Foster land purchase and water piping in the town. Sale of the bonds was approved by Town Meeting last May.

PROGRAMS SUBJECT TO CHANGE

movies

THUR., OCT. 1

8-10PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS ON GILLIGAN'S ISLAND
Several of the original castaways are joined by the famed hoopsters Bob Denver, Alan Hale, Jr., Russell Johnson, Dawn Wells, Natalie Schafer and Jim Bacus. Fun on that ole South Pacific atoll.

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)
THE MANIONS OF AMERICA. (Part 2) Saga of the immigrant generation that put down roots, that grew and flourished into what is today hailed as "the American spirit."

10-11PM NBC (9 Central/Mountain)
THE SOPHISTICATED GENTS. (Conclusion) A murder investigation threatens to mar the reunion of nine members of a black athletic social club honoring the coach who inspired them as youths.

FRI., OCT. 2

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)
THE MANIONS OF AMERICA. (Conclusion)

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
JET PILOT John Wayne and Janet Leigh as two military fliers... one American (guess which one) and one Russian... working to carry out espionage for their respective nations until they fall in love.

SAT., OCT. 3

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
RED FLAG: THE ULTIMATE GAME

A fictional account of the incredibly realistic aerial war games routinely staged by the Air Force at Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada... the most realistic fighter-pilot training short of actual combat. An action-packed drama with Barry Bostwick, Joan Van Ark, Fred McCarren, Debra Feuer, George Coe, Linden Chiles, Arlen Dean Snyder and William Devane. Enemy tactics and combat lore.

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)

Brooke Shields

TILT Light-hearted adventure about a teen-age pinball whiz and her association with a struggling rock singer. Brooke Shields is the "whiz" nicknamed "Tilt" (hummm???) and Ken Marshall portrays the vocal entertainer. Charles Durning steals the show in this TV movie premiere.

SUN., OCT. 4

7-8PM ABC (6 Central/Mountain)
THE WAVE A chilling story of a teacher's experiment to prove that the horror of the Nazi youth movement could be spawned in this country.

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
GRAMBLING'S WHITE TIGER Bruce Jenner in a true story about the first white player on the Grambling College football team during a time of national unrest in 1968. LeVar Burton and Harry Belafonte co-star.

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)
MISTRESS OF PARADISE A beautiful Northern heiress marries a Southern plantation owner and discovers a frightening secret that threatens to ruin their love and their lives. Chad Everett and, in her telefilm debut, Genevieve Bujold in a lush and haunting thriller.

MON., OCT. 5

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
THE MIRACLE OF KATHY MILLER Drama based on a true story about a courageous young lady who survives a near fatal accident and went on to run "miracle miles" (10 kilometers) and receive England's Victoria Award as the world's most courageous athlete.

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
SIDNEY SHORR Tony Randall is a lonely artist who shares a loving but platonic relationship with a woman half his age... even raising her child as his own.

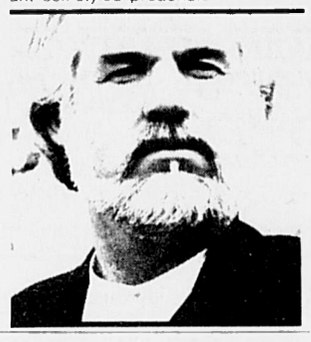

TUES., OCT. 6

Return of the Beverly Hillbillies

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
RETURN OF THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES The Clampetts and friends return in a new version of the long-running '60's hit, with a hilarious and improbable solution to the '80's energy crisis. Buddy Ebsen as "Jed", along with Nancy Culp, Donna Douglas and Imogene Coca debuting as "Granny's" hundred-year-old Maw.

WED., OCT. 7

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
COWARD OF THE COUNTRY Drama set during World War II, starring Kenny Rogers as a flamboyant self-styled preacher.

THUR., OCT. 8

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
CAGNEY & LACEY Loretta Swit and Tyne Daly as a couple of best friends and police officers who, while dealing with on-the-job sexism, outdistance their male peers by cracking a tough murder case.

FRI., OCT. 9

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
KILLER FISH Action thriller set in South America where thousands of deadly piranha spill over some waters and complicate a near-perfect jewel heist.

SAT., OCT. 10

8-9PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain)
HERBIE RIDES AGAIN. Part 1

Herbie, Walt Disney's versatile VW, performs with Helen Hayes, John McIntire, Ken Berry, Stefanie Powers, Keenan Wynn and over 50 supporting players, including three Lincolns and a ruthless '57 Mercury. Big wheelers.

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
ELVIS AND THE BEAUTY QUEEN Never say die! This one is about the tempestuous romance between the Tennessee beauty contestant and the rock idol. Don Johnson and Stephanie Zimbalist in the title roles.

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
HERO AT LARGE Season Premiere of the Saturday Night Movies with

John Ritter as a young actor, who, in emulating Captain Avenger, the hero he portrays in a publicity stunt, fights for justice and good midst the evils of the big city. Good intentions nearly backfire. Anne Archer, Bert Convy and Kurt Andon co-star.

SUN., OCT. 11

BETTE ★ DAVIS

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
FAMILY REUNION. (1) A heart-warmer with two-time Oscar winner Bette Davis as a New England school teacher who sets out to rediscover her family after a career of 50 years. Ms. Davis' grandson, J. Ashley Hyman, in his acting debut, portrays a former student who becomes a close companion.

MON., OCT. 12

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
FAMILY REUNION. (2) Bette Davis

TUES., OCT. 13

Conductor to take podium in Italy.

NEWTON — The Newton Symphony Orchestra's sixteenth season features soloists and orchestral programming, and new conductors, as music director Michel Sasson departs for a new podium in Italy.

Appointed the principal guest conductor at La Scala, Milan, and assuming an additional role as conductor of the Ballet Orchestra at the Vienna Opera House, Sasson will conduct the opening concert of the Newton Symphony Orchestra on Nov. 8, as well as the Celebrated Artist concert in May 1982.

Guest conductors Alan Balter and Victoria Bond will direct the January and March concerts of the NSO. Both conductors are winners of the Exxon/Arts Endowment Award, one of the most sought after forms of recognition and support for outstanding young conductors in this country.

Balter is presently the Exxon/Arts conductor with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, and Bond held that post with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra from 1978-1980.

Sasson, who was one of the founders of the Newton Symphony Orchestra in 1965 and its music director since that time, will be joined on Nov. 8 by his former colleague in the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Samuel Mayes, former Principal Cellist with the BSO. Mayes will be one of three soloists at the November concert, performing the Beethoven Triple Concerto.

Newtonites Yvette Roman Schleifer, of the famed Roman sister duo-piano team, and Roman Totenberg, renown violinist and director of the Longy School in Cambridge, will be the other soloist at that concert. In May, Sasson will make his final appearance as music director with the NSO, conducting the world-renown pianist Gary Graffman.

Several present members of the BSO are soloists with the Newton orchestra this season. Ann Hobson Pilot, Principal Harp of the BSO, will join the NSO first flutist, Edward Johnson, Jr., in Mozart's Flute and Harp Concerto in January.

In March, associate conductor and concertmaster of the NSO, Ronald Knudsen will perform, with his colleague in the BSO, Jerome Patterson, the Brahms Concerto for violin and cello. In addition, the March concert will present the first winner of the Pappoutsakis Memorial Flute Competition, Les Roettges.

The Newton Symphony Orchestra will continue its tradition of presenting a free Young People's concert on Jan. 23, 1982, with Newton South High School cellist, Chizuko Matsusaka, and an Esplanade Concert in mid-June.

A free concert at the Chestnut Hill Mall is also scheduled for Saturday Nov. 21, at noon. Dress rehearsals on the Saturday afternoon before the subscription concerts, at Brown Junior High School, Wheeler Road, Newton, will continue to be open to senior citizens and students at no charge.

NSO President and General Manager Constance Kantar notes a surge in the demand for subscriptions this year, and urges past subscribers who wish to retain their present seats to renew immediately.

The subscription price is $22.50 for four concerts. A check may be sent, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to the Newton Symphony Orchestra, P. O. Box 124, Waban, Ma. 02168. For further information, call 965-2555.

Auburndale corporation announces vice-president

AUBURNDALE — The appointment of Michael Kaminsky, Jr. to the position of Vice President of Operations has been announced by Robert C. Abbe, president of ADE Corporation, Newton.

Kaminsky will have the overall responsibility of organizing and directing all of ADE's manufacturing activities.

Prior to joining ADE, Kaminsky was for seven years with Sanders Associates, Nashua, N.H., where he served as vice president of operations and most recently at Data General Corporation, Westboro, as corporate director of Manufacturing, Planning and Control and successively as director of International Manufacturing.

Kaminsky, an Amherst, N.H., resident, received his B.S. degree in mechanical engineering at the University of Pittsburgh. He also studied at the Graduate Center of Rensslaer Polytechnic Institute and is a registered professional engineer.

Campus Notes

Dr. June Fox of Ellison Road, Newton Centre has been appointed associate dean of education of the Education—Special Education Division of Lesley College Graduate School. She has been a program advisor and professor of education at Lesley for six years.

Andrew Robinson of 54 Rochester Rd., Newton is participating in Beaver College's international program and is enrolled for a semester of study at the Institute of Political and Economic Studies in London. He is a government major at Connecticut College.

Judith Leacy of Lowell Avenue, Newtonville was recently elected Officer of the Day Student Organization at Wheelock College, where she is a sophomore.

Cosmetic firm names New England executive

BRIGHTON — Marina Tramontozzi, 20 of Brighton, has been named the Regional Representative/Account Executive for Madeleine Mono Ltd. Cosmetics.

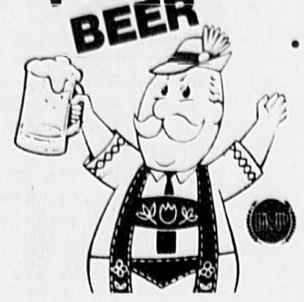

The appointment was made by Madeleine Mono, founder, director and president of the international company.

Tramontozzi is the Account Executive in charge of sales, training and promotions for Mono in all department stores and specialty stores which carry the line in Massachusetts and southern New England.

She began her career as a licensed cosmetologist immediately upon graduation from Mount St. Joseph Academy. Her first accounts were in the new Bloomingdale's in Chestnut Hill, where she doubled sales within a year.

As a counter manager for the larger account in Filene's at Chestnut Hill Mall, she doubled sales again and now, with three years of retail and promotional experience, an associate's degree in education and a growing reputation as a beauty consultant to fashion shows, theatrical productions and workshops, she is at 20 years of age, reputed to be the youngest such account executive in the field in the country.

Consignment shop opens at former gas station site

NEWTON — Spare Parts, a newly established consignment shop accepting furniture, collectables, antiques, jewelry and decorative accessories, has opened at 1149 Walnut St., Newton Highlands.

Spare Parts is a selective consignment shop specializing in a variety of home furnishings. Merchandise is displayed for a three month period. When merchandise is sold, 70 percent of the sale price goes to the original owner and 30 percent to Spare Parts.

The shop is open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., or by appointment.

Sy March of Peter Elliot & Co. Inc., negotiated the lease on behalf of Karen Levine and Naomi Stone, owners of Spare Parts and Kadehjian Bros., owners of the property which was a Texaco gas station.

Stone states, "The conversion of a gas station into a retail establishment is a positive addition to the upgrading of Newton Highlands as a unique shopping area."

"This location should prove excellent in the Newton area. Spare Parts is the only home-furnishing consignment in Newton. There is an abundant supply and a great demand for antiques and used furniture in good condition," March added.

Statewide construction contest announced

CHESTNUT HILL — A new construction competition – the 1981 Build Massachusetts Awards Program -- was announced recently by the Associated General Contractors of Massachusetts, Inc.

The competition is expected to feature entries from many of the state's top construction firms. The awards will recognize construction projects best exemplifying the association's guiding principles: skill, integrity, and responsibility.

Member projects reflecting those principles and the highest standards in project concept, design, and construction will be selected as award recipients. An independent jury will review all entries and select the finalists.

Contributions by the owner, designer, and general contractor to the overall excellence of winning projects will be recognized at an awards ceremony in February, 1982. Projects must have been completed in Massachusetts during the 12 months prior to Oct. 1, 1981.

Golden promoted

LEXINGTON — John J. Colden, Jr., of Newton has been promoted to director of information services at Honeywell Electro-Optics Operations (EOO), according to Larry G. Larson, vice president and general manager.

Golden joined Electro-Optics Operations in February as information services manager. Since then, he has developed this department's resources, including the acquisition of additional short-term computer capacity and a new Honeywell DPS-8/52 computer which will be delivered in February 1982.

Golden brings to this position extensive experience in system development, data center administration, computer performance measurement, and budget/program management, having served as the head of Corporate Information Systems at Compugraphic Corporation from 1978 to 1980.

He was also director of corporate information processing at the Schering-Plough Corporation from 1975 to 1978. Prior to this, Golden held positions in the application/software development area at several companies, and served as vice president for software development at Quantum Computing Corporation from 1969 to 1970.

Armenian Art Exhibit opens Friday, Oct. 2

CAMBRIDGE — Aram Bakshian, Jr., special assistant to the President for arts and humanities, will speak at the opening reception for the exhibit of the Diocesan Collection of Armenian Art and Antiquities, on Friday, Oct. 2 in Johnson Hall of Holy Trinity Armenian Apostolic Church of Greater Boston, 145 Brattle St., Cambridge.

The public is invited to the opening reception from 7:30 to 9 p.m. of the exhibit from the permanent collection of the Diocese of the Armenian Church, New York City.

The Oct. 2 weekend exhibit opens a series at the Holy Trinity Armenian Apostolic Church to celebrate Armenian cultural heritage. A month-long exhibit of the collected photographs of Ruth Thomason's Project Save Our Past will open on Friday, Oct. 9. Ani Kavafian, violinist, will perform in the church on Sunday, Nov. 1 at 4 p.m.

All events are free and open to the public. Among the members of the planning committee are Donald and Barbara Tellalian of Newton. Mr. Tellalian is chairman of the Parish Council.

The Newton Conservators are planning an Oct. 17 tour of solar homes in Newton. Pictured looking at the solar collector wall of Joel Katz of Newton are, from left to right: Virginia Taplan and John Bless, co-chairmen of the event, Joel Katz, solar homeowner and Sally Barnett, president of the Newton Conservators.

MDC skating season delayed

BOSTON — Metropolitan District Commissioner Terrence J. Geoghegan has announced that the 1981-82 ice skating season will begin on Monday, Nov. 16, with the opening of the MDC's 24 skating rinks. This date reflects a 4-week delay in opening the 17 enclosed rinks, which have generally opened during the third week in October. This action was necessitated by the cuts in the FY 1982 Parks budget.

Admission to all rinks is 25 cents for those under 18 years of age and for senior citizens and 50 cents for adults.

Public, private, and parochial schools in the MDC Parks District may use the rinks free of charge from 9 a.m. to noon on school days.

Adults accompanying children under 10 years of age to weekday morning and afternoon sessions will also be admitted free of charge.

Rinks will be closed on Thanksgiving and Christmas Day. On Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve, they will close at noon and on New Year's Day the rinks will reopen at 2 p.m.

For further information, please call the MDC Public Information Office at 727-5215.

Center holds diet program

NONANTUM — The Newton Health Department is offering another weight-loss clinic for adults starting Thursday, Oct. 1.

The program will be offered every Thursday morning from 10-11 a.m. for 10 consecutive weeks at Nonantum Multi-Service Center, 48 Silver Lake Avenue.

The program includes mild exercises, nutritional information, weekly weigh-in record and guest speakers.

Pre-registration is not required but a call to the center at 965-6390 would be appreciated. The service is free.

You probably know that with the President's Economic Recovery Plan, savers have greater tax break opportunities than ever before. But you may not know exactly what these opportunities can mean for you. Why not spend a little time reading this ad? You could save a lot of money come tax time.

How to earn federally tax free interest. Our new 12 month All Saver Certificate (available October 1) pays the highest allowable interest and lets you earn—for one time only—up to $2000 tax free interest ($1000 if you file individually). As the chart shows, the higher your income the more attractive the All Saver. In fact, at certain income levels, it would be tough to beat our yields of 20% or more. (By the way, if you're a 6 month certificate holder, you may be able to transfer that money into an All Saver without an interest penalty.)

If the monthly T-Bill yield is:	The tax free yield is:	Equivalent yield at gross yearly income of.* (%)
		$30,000	$40,000	$50,000	$60,000
12%	8.4%	11.61	13.24	14.59	16.28
14%	9.8%	13.54	15.44	17.03	18.99
16%	11.2%	15.48	17.65	19.46	21.70
17%	11.9%	16.45	18.75	20.68	23.10
18%	12.6%	17.41	19.85	21.89	24.46

*Based on a joint return with itemized deductions of 15%.

How to save for retirement and save on taxes. Starting January 1, 1982, you can take advantage of a tax break formerly available only to the self-employed and those not involved in a formal pension plan. So even if you now participate in a pension plan, you can still contribute up to $2000 into your own Individual Retirement Account (IRA), and really see a difference on your 1040. Because both your contributions and the interest earned are federally tax exempt until you begin withdrawals.

How to avoid confusion on the new tax breaks for savers. Not surprisingly, a flurry of often unbelievable promotions by institutions trying to get your money has accompanied the passage of these new laws. Frankly, we're interested in your money, too. But we're also interested in making sure you understand all the ramifications of these new laws before you invest a dime.

So if you're looking for a tax break, look past the fancy offers. Talk to the bank that just wants to give you the facts.

Together we'll get you started on an economic recovery act of your very own.

HOW TO PUT REAGAN'S NEW TAX LAWS TO WORK FOR YOU.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

CREATIVE HOME FINANCING

If you're in the market for a home of your own, you're probably in the market for a home loan, too. A conventional mortgage is usually the first kind that comes to mind, but other alternatives do exist.

These include • privately insured loans • GI-insured loans • FHA/HUD-insured loans • Farmers Home Administration loans • urban "homestead" loans • "house-to-house" loans • variable interest rate loans • graduated payment mortgages and • HUD's subsidized homeownership program.

To learn about these possibilities, talk to a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® before you start looking. REALTORS® are real estate professionals, and forms of financing are part of their expertise. They can tell you what's available in your community, and how you can qualify.

Touch The Life Of A Child

PROFESSIONAL

RADIOLOGY LIAISON NURSE

This is a unique opportunity for a mature, self-directive RN, with excellent communication skills and at least 2 years pediatric nursing experience, to provide continuation of comprehensive nursing care to children during procedures in the Radiology Department. You will act as liaison between the Radiology Department and all other departments within the Hospital.

For the above position, please call Jean Dionne, RN, Nursing at 735-6531.

TECHNICAL

PHARMACY TECHNICIANS

We're a pediatric institution with a unit dose and IV additive program. We currently have 3 full time openings for pharmacy technicians. Candidates must be graduates of a technicians program or have at least one year's experience in a hospital working as a pharmacy technician.

For the above positions, please call Triscia Devlin at 735-7781.

HISTOLOGY TECHNICIAN/ ORTHOPEDIC RESEARCH

Position available for BA/BS candidate with professional histology experience, preferably in a research milieu. Will work with plastic sectioning techniques on mineralized bone tissue in a lab investigating diseases of the bone. Training available in plastic sectioning. Must have precise, accurate sectioning skills and some professional experience.

ELECTRON MICROSCOPY TECHNICIAN/ PATHOLOGY RESEARCH

Medical technician needed for preparing and photographing tissue sections. Prefer 1-3 years of experience in electron microscopy techniques plus the ability to work independently.

RESEARCH TECHNICIAN/VIROLOGY

Experienced technician with clinical interest needed for research on viruses important in children's diseases. Tissue culture experience mandatory. Experience with animal viruses helpful.

For the above three positions, accepting resumes and applications only, to Beverly Thompson.

BUSINESS

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

This is a take-charge position calling for a dynamic individual to coordinate and support the daily activities of the Physician-in-Chief of the Hospital. Your principle responsibilities will consist of: maintaining the appointment calendar, files and correspondence; arranging travel, lectures and professional dinner schedules; and screening incoming calls. You should have a college degree or equivalent experience and the office skills (typing, dictaphone and medical terminology) necessary for a busy hospital environment. A professional yet pleasant personality is a must as you will be interacting with senior medical staff and top administration.

MEDICAL SECRETARIES

We have a variety of full time secretarial openings in our ambulatory and clinical service areas. These positions require excellent typing (60+ wpm), dictaphone, medical terminology, good interpersonal skills, and the ability to work in a hectic medical environment. Preferred candidates will have a minimum of 1 year experience. We have openings in our Cardiology and Seizure Units.

For the above two positions, please send resumes to Ed Hurley.

RESEARCH SECRETARIES/ ORTHOPEDICS

Two secretaries, one full-time and one part-time (hours flexible), are needed for this prestigious research laboratory. Positions involve typing manuscripts, grants and correspondence, as well as scheduling meetings and travel. Medical and scientific terminology are required. The successful candidates must be organized and able to work independently. Some college is preferred, along with typing of 60+ wpm and excellent spelling skills.

For the above positions, accepting resumes and applications only, please, to Beverly Thompson.

You'll find top salaries waiting for you at Children's, along with a great benefits package including health and life insurance, 3 weeks vacation, tuition assistance, long term disability and a pension plan.

OPEN HOUSE
CAREER OPPORTUNITIES
YES! WE ARE STILL ALIVE AND PLAN TO BE AROUND FOR A LONG TIME

Medfield State Hospital has immediate career openings in the following positions:
- Registered Nurses
- Graduate Nurses
- Licensed Practical Nurses
- Mental Health Associates

Working with emotionally distrubed and/or mentally retarded pesons can be a rewarding, challenging and growth producing opportunity. Salaries and benefits are competitive with area hospitals-- some, like no rotating shifts, 13 paid holidays per year, Registered Nurses and Graduate Nurses work only one weekend in four, are seldom offered elsewhere. We are having an open house at Medfield State Hospital, Clark Building, on Tuesday, October 8, 1981, from 1:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. Come in and see if we have the job you have been looking for.

If you cannot see us in person, please call 359-7312, Ext. 363 or send your resume to:

- Toyota quality.
- Install new spark plugs and, if necessary, new points and condenser.
- Check timing and ignition system.
- Adjust carburetor.

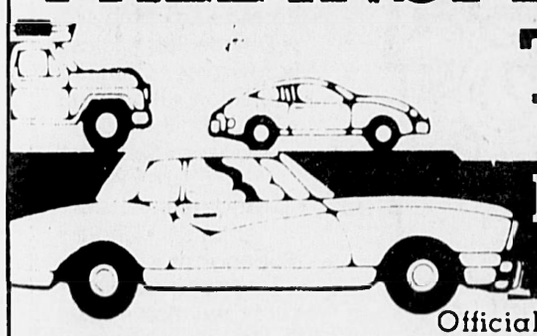

Now at your Toyota dealer, your Toyota is cheaper to keep than before. We've lowered prices on many of the parts and services you need most. Perk up your Toyota's performance and keep it operating efficiently with a tune-up. The price above is for any four-cylinder Toyota. Six-cylinder models slightly higher. For Toyota trained technicians and Genuine Toyota Parts, plus new everyday low prices, bring your Toyota to the people who know Toyotas best.

Bagles become a big business

By James V. Healion

WEST HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — This story is about bagels. Read on, it could get better.

Sure you know what a bagel is. It's a Jewish English muffin shaped like a shiny doughnut with a hole in it. Tastes good, too.

But if you didn't know what it was and heard the word "bagel" for the first time, how would you know what it was? You wouldn't have anything to hang your hat on. An 'English' in front of a muffin, at least you got something to go by. But the word 'bagel' all by its lonesome?

It's things like this that bother Murray Lender, the president of the world's largest bagel bakery. He expects to produce 450 million bagels this year, and somebody out there won't be eating a bagel because they don't know what it is.

Lender went home one night wondering about the person who doesn't know what a bagel is, turned on the tube, and there to hU?-Qamazement was David Zalssen giving Susannah York the whole megillah, as they say around bagels.

Janssen was playing a San Francisco cop in the CBS movie, "The Golden Gate Murders," and she was portraying a nun from South Africa. He was explaining what a bagel was, and how good it went with lox and cream cheese.

"If he were talking about toast would it have been the same?" asks Murray Lender.

What do you have to sell?

Auto shop owner killed in accident

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — The owner of an auto repair shop was killed Monday when a a car he was working on apparently fell on him after the jack stand collapsed.

Police said the victim of the accident, Douglas R. Harribine, 40, of Medfield, was discovered by a customer around 12:10 p.m. alone in the Newton Highlands Auto Body Repair Shop on Winchester St.

According to police, the man had apparently been working alone when the car fell on his chest and it is not known at this time how long he had been underneath the car before the accident was discovered.

Taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by Rescue Three, Harribine was pronounced dead on arrival with the cause of death determined to be "traumatic asphxia," police said.

A boost in the MBTA budget

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority Board of Directors Tuesday approved a proposed 1982 budget of $380 million — about 8 percent more than the transit line will spend this year.

The unanimous vote followed Transportation Secretary James Carlin's pledge that the recommended budget would result in as small a budgetary increase as possible for the 79 communities served by the transit line.

"We're dealing with four sources of funding, all of which are saying we can't pay any more," Carlin told the board.

He referred to the MBTA member municipalities, which include Newton, the state, the federal government and the passengers.

He added that about two-thirds of the requested increase will be used to pay off interest on past debts.

MBTA General Manager James F. O'Leary said the proposed spending increase would require only about a 1 percent increase in MBTA assessments for the cities and towns in the system's district.

He said that may be dependent on the MBTA keeping recently imposed fare hikes through the end of the year. Those could be reviewed because of rapidly declining ridership.

"The most significant thing about this budget is that the assessments are going to remain pretty much the same as they are in the current budget," O'Leary said.

MBTA Advisory Board Executive Director Philip Shapiro said the budget recommendation would be a "major surprise" to cities and towns, especially since Gov. Edward J. King recently said there would be level funding of state budgets.

The state splits the cost of the MBTA deficit with cities and towns almost equally, except for a special $40 million bail out passed late last year when the system shut down briefly late in the fall.

"I don't know how they're going to take it at all," Shapiro said. "But I think they thought he would come in with a budget that would be much less than the one he is proposing."

O'Leary said $21 million of the increase would offset fixed cost increases and the rest would go toward improving the buses and subways, increase cutback service, and provide better security.

Boys' Club begins new season Monday

NEWTON — Newton Boys' Club will open its doors for the 1981-82 Fall and Winter season program on Monday, Sept. 28, at 2 p.m., it was announced recently by Judge Eliot K. Cohen, president of the Newton Boys' Club.

The Club will be open daily Monday thru Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 6:30 to 9 p.m. for the membership. On Saturdays the hours range from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All boys between the ages of 7 thru 18 years are eligible for membership and are advised to enroll soon as possible. Early registration will give them the opportunity to sign for the favorite activities they plan to undertake for the coming season.

President Cohen further stressed that the main objective of the Club programs is to "provide boys with an opportunity to develop basic skills in areas of interest to them and to others. We feel that by stressing qualities such as sportmanship, cooperation, preservence and honesty we can help boys not only to build better lives for themselves, but also to become valuable assets to the community. The degree to which we can accomplish this goal is our measure of a successful season."

A total membership of approximately 550 boys and young men were served on a daily basis this past year. New equipment has been installed in the complex, alterations have been made in the Club rooms and the playgound area to insure the best possible accomodations for the membership.
